SOME people talk a whole lot, but at the same time say very little—others again express a multitude of facts in a few words. When we say Ward's Bulbs—Horseshoe Brand—are the World's Best, we say a mouthful.

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND THREE

This 25 Foot House Is Right on Our Shelves Ready to Wrap Up And Ship to You

SUPPOSE every time you ordered a bar of soap of the grocer, he had to make it.

Suppose every Buick or Cadillac was made

.s made up until

What do you suppose you would have to pay for things made up singly like that?

You are right, they would cost a lot more.

If it is sound business sense to make up standard soap, automobiles and pianos in advance, and have them all ready to sell, then why isn't it equally sensible to make up standard greenhouses?

It is.

It is the soundest kind of sound sense.

It's better for the buyer, which is you.

It's better for the seller, which is us.

Better for all concerned.

That, then, is what we are now doing.

Doing it with our houses for private places as well as the commercial houses.

This house shown is 25 feet wide and 50 long. It is our Curved Eave construction of highest quality throughout.

The workroom, like the greenhouse itself, is of sectional construction.

The benches have galvanized iron frames.

The heating piping and coils are all cast iron, and the boiler is the famous Burnham.

This house, all complete, ready for planting, we furnish for so little as $7800, which price even includes the masonry.

The only thing the $7800 does not cover, is the freight and the fares of our men to and from the job. These could not be figured, because of varying so with the location.

If this standard house No. 3 does not fill your needs, we have one 18 by 50; another 25 by 33, and still another 25 by 41 ft. 8 in.

All of them standard stock houses that can be shipped promptly and erected quickly.

Buy Your Fall Requirements Early

Do not get the false impression that prices will be lower two or three months hence. The intensive labor situation, the scarcity of raw materials and the continuous strong demand for prepared goods and Florists' Supplies all forecast even higher prices later in the season.

EARLY LAVENDER KING (BURPEE'S)

Burpee's Sweet Peas

The Twenty-two Best Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas for Florists

The first Spencer Sweet Pea in existence was brought to America by W. Atlee Burpee. Since then the House of Burpee has introduced over two hundred distinct new varieties, each an improvement on the past. And by constant hybridizing for the last ten years we have developed the new Fordhook Early-flowering strain of Spencer Sweet Peas. We can now offer you all the finest colors in the Early or Winter-flowering type of Spencers—everything offered is grown on our own Floradale Farm in California.

The House of Burpee is recognized as the AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS for Sweet Peas.

3390 Early Sankey (Burpee's) This truly magnificent white was awarded a special Silver Medal when exhibited at the great International Show in New York, March 20, 1915, also Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915. Black seeded. Pkt., 7c; oz., 80c; ¼ lb., $2.40; lb., $8.00.

3392 Improved Early Snowstorm (Burpee's) The result of a cross between King White and Yarrawa, it embodies the best qualities of those two varieties and easily eclipses all early-flowering white Sweet Peas to date. The flowers are of Yarrawa size, but finer form, as the standard does not reflex but is magnificently bold, though charmingly waved. A vigorous grower, the immense flowers are invariably borne in fours on very long stems. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the International Show, New York, March 20, 1918. Our Improved Snowstorm is so immeasurably superior to our original Snowstorm that we have now discarded the latter. Improved Snowstorm is the last word in Early-Flowering White Sweet Peas. Pkt., 10c; oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.50; lb., $15.00.

3342 Early Canary Bird (Burpee's) This is a splendid, rich, deep cream or primrose colored self. The flowers are of great size, beautifully waved, and usually borne three or four on a stem. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3376 Early Loveliness (Burpee's) The color is white, the entire flower being suffused soft pink and the edges distinctly picoteed with rose-pink. Pkt., 7c; oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $2.50; lb., $8.50.

3351 Early Enchantress (Burpee's) It is a bright rose-pink, becoming deeper toward the edges of standard and wings, gradually softening in tone toward the center of the flower. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3383 Early Pink Beauty (Burpee's) The color is soft rose-pink on white ground, richer toward the edges, gradually softening in color as it reaches the center of standard and wings. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3344 Early Cherry Ripe (Burpee's) A particularly bright and taking color and quite new in this section. It might be described as a glowing cherry or salmon-cerise self. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the International Spring Show, New York, March 20, 1918. Pkt., 10c; oz., $2.50; ¼ lb., $7.50; lb., $25.00.

3362 Fordhook Rose Improved (Burpee's) Quite distinct from our original Fordhook Rose. The flowers are of immense size, usually borne in threes and fours on very long, stiff stems. In color similar to the well-known George Herbert. A pleasing shade of rosy carmine. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3393 Early Splendor (Burpee's) A magnificent new deep rose self. The rich rose-crimson color is accentuated by the distinct white blotch at the base of standard and wings. The flowers are of great size, usually borne in fours on very long stems. Similar in color to the Summer-flowering Rosabelle. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3374 Early King (Burpee's) The finest early-flowering crimson. The flowers are of great size, perfect form, averaging fully two inches in diameter. Pkt., 7c; oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $2.50; lb., $8.50.

3386 Early Rosy Morn (Burpee's) Flowers grown under ordinary field culture have measured fully two inches in diameter. The flowers are usually borne in threes or fours on stiff, long stems. Color, a pleasing shade of rose with crimson-scarlet standard. Pkt., 7c; oz., 80c; ¼ lb., $2.40; lb., $8.00.

3375 Early Lavender King (Burpee's) A first-class lavender has been much wanted in this type, therefore, we have great pleasure in offering the new Lavender King. This glorious new variety is a rich, true, deep lavender throughout. Similar in color to the Summer-flowering varieties, Burpee's Orchid and R. F. Felton. The flowers are of large size, beautifully true waved form, and borne in threes and fours on stems of great length. Pkt., 7c; oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $2.50; lb., $8.50.

3399 Early Zephyr (Burpee's) This is a delightful shade of pale blue or lavender. It might be briefly described as a silvery blue self. An extremely dainty and charming variety. Pkt., 7c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $3.00; lb., $10.00.

3338 Early Blue-Bird (Burpee's) This is a charming shade of blue. Somewhat deeper than Wedgwood, but more of a true self, especially as the flower ages. In our opinion, the best blue for indoor culture. Pkt. 7c; oz. $1.00; ¼ lb. $3.00; lb. $10.00.

3380 Early Mauve Beauty (Burpee's) Color a pleasing shade of rosy mauve. The flowers are of immense size, often measuring two and one-half inches in diameter, yet exquisitely waved and of best Spencer form. A strong, vigorous grower and very free flowering. Charming under artificial light. Pkt., 7c; oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $2.50; lb., $8.50.

3346 Early Daintiness (Burpee's) This has always been a favorite since it was first exhibited in 1915, when it was certificated. We have only now been able to work up a sufficient stock to offer to our friends. A strong grower, with flowers of largest size and usually produced in fours. Color pure white edged rose. Similar to Summer-flowering Dainty. Pkt., 7c; oz., 80c; ¼ lb., $2.40; lb., $8.00.

3352 Early Exquisite (Burpee's) The ground color is a soft shade of primrose, the edge of the standard and wings being beautifully "picoteed" with deep rose-pink. Pkt., 7c; oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $2.50; lb., $8.50.

3361 Fordhook Pink and White (Burpee's) This is similar to the old Blanche Ferry, having a bright, rosy-pink standard with white wings, lightly suffused rose. Pkt., 7c; oz., 60c; ¼ lb., $1.80; lb., $6.00.

3357 Early Fantasy (Burpee's) Striped and marbled with rich rose-pink on a creamy white ground. Exceedingly bright and makes a telling bunch when cut. Extremely free and a continuous bloomer, the flowers usually borne in threes and fours on long stems. Pkt., 7c; oz., 80c; ¼ lb., $2.40; lb., $8.00.

The prices quoted are net for packets as well as larger quantities, f. o. b. Philadelphia, for delivery July to December.

The above varieties—each the best in its class—provide a complete range of colors. We have many other desirable varieties of Early-flowering Spencers on which we shall be pleased to quote prices upon request.

Dreer's Choice Double Herbaceous Peonies

With the present quarantine in force against the importation of nearly all kinds of bulbs, roots and plants, it will only be a short time when there will be a shortage of this class of stock and prices will naturally advance.

We are fortunate in having this season the largest stock of Peonies that we have yet produced, all in the finest commercial varieties, which we offer in strong divisions of three to five eyes each and in stock that is true to name. Ready for delivery after September 25th.

The Really Inspiring Resources of the Randall Establishment

There are many large buyers of Florists' Supplies who, like Mr. Schmaus, have not visited the Chicago Market for several years. To all such we say, "Come, come soon." There have been tremendous developments in the Florists' business in Chicago in the last five years, especially in Florists' Supplies, Ribbons and Chiffons. We merely state the fact when we say the Randall sales in these departments last month were more than double those of a year ago, constituting the largest month's business in the history of the house, larger even than the big autumn months of other years. It merely shows the growing appreciation of Randall's ability to serve the Trade.

We are doing a record business, but Florists are buying mostly for current needs, not for next Fall and Winter. Merchandise will be scarce next winter and NOT cheaper in price. All signs point to advances.

It is high time orders were being placed for Fall. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

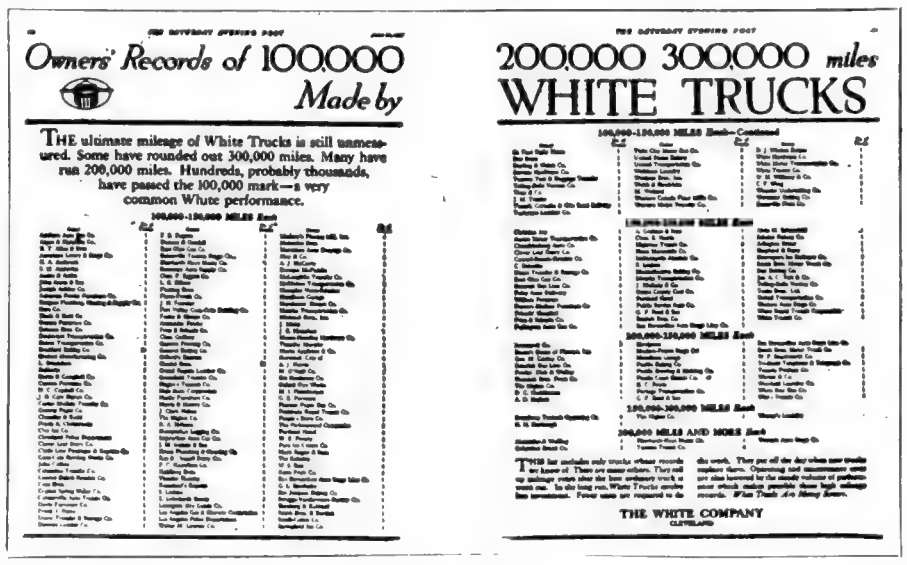
The Convention Number of The Review, coming out August 21, with full report of the Detroit doings, will be of special importance this year. The Convention Number is recognized as marking the real opening of the Fall buying season—and this year everyone wants to buy. But not everyone is selling—a good many are sold up. Therefore the special ads in the Convention Number will be watched for with more than usual interest, as showing who has stock and who has not.

Sellers are urged to send special advertisements without delay—if copy is not received before the rush, we have to pay double for setting the type.

Statements of Importance to Truck Buyers

THE following group of statements made by The White Company in recent advertising summarizes the achievements of the White Product—the White fleet growth, mileage records, honors won in commerce and war; reviews the factors of strength and permanence back of every owner's investment in White Trucks.



All bear on one simple fact: the real value of a motor truck; its ability to do the most work for the least money under all conditions.

"Year after year this list grows. It is something more than a list of well-known concerns owning ten or more White Trucks. It represents a yearly progress in added trucks per owner—the most extensive growth of individual fleets ever published by a truck maker.

"There are now 2774 White Fleets in actual service, totaling 33,139 trucks, exclusive of all single truck installations."

"The ultimate mileage of White Trucks is still unmeasured. Some have rounded out 300,000 miles. Many have run 200,000 miles. Hundreds, probably thousands, have passed the 100,000 mark—a very common White performance."

"The purchaser of a White Truck backs his investment in it with the strength of The White Company, with its years of successful experience, with its thousands of trained employees, with its tens of thousands of trucks in active service, with its millions of capital and a service organization, nation-wide, which has no parallel in the industry."

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

WOMEN'S WAY TO FLORISTS' WORK

Recognizing women's fitness for certain departments of horticultural work, many florists wish to give their daughters an education more than the experience of helping about the store or greenhouses. Those seeking for the schools best adapted to give this training will find much information below.

WHEREVER you find florists, you'll find among them successful women florists. In no other trade that is not occupied wholly in catering to women's needs will one find so many of the so-called weaker sex. In no other trade is it so common a thing for a widow to assume the business responsibilities of a departed husband. In no other trade does a "Miss" or "Mrs." so often occur before the name of the proprietor of a business employing chiefly men.

And this was as true before the war as it is today. The shortage of labor caused by the war made a greater call upon women for horticultural work than formerly, for their fitness had already been well demonstrated by those of the sex previously engaged therein. Since the scarcity of help seems likely to become aggravated rather than alleviated as industrial activity increases, women will have wider and greater opportunities in this field.

It's Not All Book Learning.

The skill of a woman's fingers is regarded as a valuable asset in a retail store, in arranging bouquets and baskets and in making up designs. There is scarcely a shop of size that has not one or more women in its employ. In small towns Mr. Florist has charge of the greenhouses and grows the stock, while Mrs. Florist manages the retail end of the business. The sons follow their father into the growing branch and the daughters help the mother.

Successful Growers, Too.

Not that women have shown lack of success in the capacity of grower. The demand for them in the store has kept them from the greenhouse. In the latter place they do quite as well about delicate tasks, though not equal to men in standing the temperature and in performing tasks requiring sheer physical strength. The Dale Estate, at Brampton, Ont., one of the largest greenhouse establishments in Canada, has employed a large number of women for several years and finds them exceedingly satisfactory.

Realizing the increasing possibilities of the trade and greater openings for women in it, florists throughout the country are sending their daughters as well as their sons to schools where they can get horticultural training, so that they may have a thorough knowledge of the scientific and perfected methods of horticulture to back their observation and experience in the greenhouses at home.

So strong has been the call for horticultural instruction that two schools devote themselves solely to courses for girls. Both have made a name for themselves. One is the Lowthorpe School, at Groton, Mass., the other the School of Horticulture for Women, at Ambler, Pa. Those who are planning a horticultural education for daughter will be interested in the courses these schools have to offer. If daughter is to start this autumn, now is the time to begin the planning, for these schools open not much more than a month hence.

Lowthorpe's Two Courses.

The Lowthorpe School has two courses, one a 3-year course in landscape architecture and gardening, and the other a 2-year course in horticulture and planting design. The first term opens about the middle of September, the second at the beginning of February, and the school year ends June 30.

The first year's landscape work includes (1) instruction in the principles of design and their application to landscape architecture; (2) architectural design, a course of reading supplemented by lectures; (3) drawing and water color sketching; (4) lectures on the history of gardens; (5) surveying, to familiarize the students with surveyors' work rather than to give them facility in its practice; (6) botany; (7) plant identification; (8) horticulture, including instruction in preparation of soils, methods of propagation, planting, pruning, hybridization and the care of greenhouses and garden.

Most of the work is continued during the second year. New subjects taken up are problems of earthwork construction, planting design and soil study. In the third year is added economic entomology, studying insects beneficial and injurious to plants.

This course has produced a number of women landscape architects of ability, whose work is considered of much merit in the east, where more of such work is done.

The course in horticulture, requiring only two years, covers (1) horticulture, including garden operations and greenhouse practice and management; (2) plant identification; (3) kitchen gardening; (4) hand methods of surveying; (5) planting design; (6) drafting; (7) botany, and in the second year soil study and entomology in addition.

Something About Lowthorpe.

Lowthorpe School is at Groton, thirty-six miles from Boston, in a district of beautiful country estates. The school, designed as a girls' "finishing school" of old New England days, is surrounded by seventeen acres planted to advantage. There are one large greenhouse, two smaller ones, and a conservatory.

In the school is the home of some of the girls, the others living in two buildings a short distance away. There surroundings are provided not only for comfort, but also for the stimulus of the girls in their study. Tuition at Lowthorpe is $150 per annum. Board is from $375 upward per annum.

About four-fifths of the women already graduated from Lowthorpe have made practical use of their landscape gardening training and are successfully established in places as far apart as Providence, R. I., and Portland, Ore. Several have offices of their own, many are assistants in the offices of landscape architects, and others are teachers and garden supervisors.

A Philadelphia girl is practicing independently as a landscape architect and receiving many well-paid commissions laying out the extensive grounds of industrial establishments. The color effects seen in certain Newport, R. I., gardens and the well-planned grounds that enhance the beauty of the homes in a well known New Jersey suburb are due to other Lowthorpe graduates. One woman has gone from Lowthorpe to be employed by the city of Baltimore as supervisor of vacant lots and back door-yards, with the result that she has made many unpromising sections of Baltimore bloom like a garden. One Lowthorpe graduate of a few years ago does work laying out country estates and gardens on Long Island. She not only makes the planting plan, but orders the plants and supervises in great detail the way in which they are to be used.

When the horticultural course has had the years behind it that the landscape gardening course has had, similar records are expected in that line of work.

At Ambler.

The School of Horticulture for Women, at Ambler, Pa., was founded in 1910 by a number of women who recognized the need of such an institution. The school property consists of seventy-one acres, twenty of which are used for horticulture. There are commercial and educational orchards, a nursery of ornamental trees, shrubs and young fruit trees, vegetable and flower gardens, greenhouses, hotbeds and coldframes.

The school buildings include an old farmhouse, containing the administrative offices and the dining rooms, and two dormitories, housing twenty students and the faculty. The other students obtain rooms in the vicinity.

Being two miles east of Ambler and eighteen miles north of Philadelphia, the school is near a number of large nurseries, seed gardens, greenhouse ranges and large estates.

Tuition is $150 per year. Board is $350 for the forty school weeks. The terms begin early in September and late in January, the summer vacation being six weeks and the winter vacation five weeks.

The diploma course requires two years. The courses of the junior year are fruit culture, floriculture, vegetable gardening, botany, chemistry, economic zoölogy, canning and preserving, carpentry, and soils and fertilizers, the first four subjects receiving the most emphasis.

The senior year's schedule includes fruit culture, floriculture, vegetable gardening, landscape gardening and drafting, woody ornamentals, botany, economic zoölogy, soils and fertilizers, and minor elective courses. There are in addition short courses on popular subjects each term.

JAPANESE LILY BULBS

ABOUT GIGANTEUMS.

What Will the Public Pay?

The following note appeared in the July 17 issue of The Review: "If you are a buyer of lily bulbs, you possibly received, some months ago, a circular offer of 7 to 9 giganteums at $65 per thousand. It is only of interest because now a New York dealer throws out the suggestion that, at the rate the market is rising, by the time delivery can be made, 7 to 9s will be selling at $250 to $300 per thousand and 9 to 11s at $500! These are double the figures thought of a fortnight or so ago."

It occurs to me that perhaps the speculative proclivities of a few importers have secured the ascendency over their common sense.

The ultimate consumer is the determining factor in the demand for a commodity offered at inflated prices. Advance in price in any commodity is attended by a dropping off in the number of consumers. These are economic facts that admit of no contention. Applied to the matter of lily bulbs as noted in the foregoing quotation, may it not be reasonably assumed that at $100 per thousand twenty-five per cent less bulbs will be purchased than would be bought at $75? At $200 per thousand the demand might be fifty per cent less and at $300 per thousand it probably would be seventy-five per cent less. Beyond $300 per thousand purchases would be so nearly negligible as to practically eliminate lilies as an item of commercial floriculture.

It has come to my knowledge that the concern which issued the circular offer of giganteums at $65 per thousand for 7 to 9s had ordered its requirements from a responsible Japanese shipper in January of this year, received acceptance notice of the order in March and deposited a letter of credit in Japan in June covering the amount of this order. From this it may be assumed that it acted in accord with business ethics and with the desire to offer its trade bulbs at a figure permissive of growing on with reasonable profit in view from the sale of the matured flowers. Yet honest intentions may sometimes be set at naught.

The Situation of Dealers.

This concern lately has received notice from the Japanese shipper abrogating the price agreement he made last March. This Japanese gentleman, who is a responsible business man, states as his reason for abrogating the price agreement made with the American concern referred to, that some American buyers have been canvassing the Japanese growers, offering fabulous sums for their crops, with the obvious intention of cornering the market. He cites a specific case of one buyer who "is contributing to collect here no less than 3,000,000 bulbs, offering wonderfully dear prices, which have much disturbed the growers' minds." He further states that interference with his growers by new American buyers has caused them to demand of him extremely high prices, with the result that he will either have to pay what is asked or be denied bulbs for his orders.

Hence we find that speculative manipulation has caused Japanese lily bulbs to increase in value approximately 100 per cent since June to the current date, with a similar increase highly probable at shipping time this coming fall.

Up to Trade and Public.

The degree of success that will attend this bold attempt to corner the market in one of floriculture's chief items is problematical. The florist of today is a different man from the florist of five years ago. Latent resourcefulness was developed by the exigencies of the war years, with the result that he can master situations that formerly would have proved untoward.

Lilies selling at wholesale at $3 per dozen, and at $5 per dozen retail, are profitable for both grower and retailer and attractive to the public. If the grower has to pay an exorbitant price for bulbs, however, it will be necessary for him to ask more than $3 per dozen for his product and it is questionable if the retailer would find sufficient public demand at the increased price he would be forced to ask to warrant his buying them. Hence the force of the ultimate consumer would regulate demand to a point that would make lilies of slight importance in the business of the majority of retail florists.

Last Easter was a highly successful one in both volume and value of business transacted, and this without azaleas and with about twenty per cent of the normal supply of lilies. The florist of today is adept at improvisation and lily bulbs at a price exceeding $100 per thousand will incite him to produce a substitute that will soon usurp the place occupied by lilies in public favor.

MR. MILLER IN JAPAN.

Writes Interestingly of Conditions.

I have received three issues of The Review and it keeps me in touch with the florists' trade at home. I am glad to note business is good and; from the prices listed, it is evident the growers are getting good returns for their products. I turned over The Review to several florists here in Japan who read English. They were surprised to notice that forced gladioli were bringing as much as 20 cents per spike, because here you can purchase two dozen for that price. The flowers are as good as any produced in our country and I believe are ahead of our outdoor glads. This is due to the good growing weather, there being plenty of moisture in the air at all times. When I arrived here June 7 the most prominent flowers in the stores were pompon chrysanthemums in all shades. These are grown outside. I will try to bring a few back with me, as I believe we could grow them as well in the south. Dahlias also were seen in quantities. Most of them are cultivated in pots and they attain a height of about eighteen inches, fine for a pot plant. These are sold at 10 to 50 cents retail, with from two to eight fancy blooms. Auratum lilies grow wild in the mountains and are sold cheaply.

The Lily Bulb Situation.

Easter lilies, in which I am most interested, are scarce, as many of the growers gave up growing lilies, due to the embargoes placed on exporting lily bulbs to America and Europe. Now everybody is after the few that are left. What had a bad effect on the price is that many firms not having experience in exporting lily bulbs, but associated with the farmers through buying other products, interested themselves in trying to aid the farmers in disposing of their bulbs last season. As soon as the embargo was lifted they sent out prices that the exporter paid before the war, as the farmer was glad to get any price. This was in January and the crop is harvested in August. Orders started to come in from all over, to these new concerns, but before they got their return answers the regular exporters started contracting and every exporter tried to get his full supply, while the crop is less than half. So one started outbidding the other. The fellows who had quoted low had wisely made it subject to crop conditions and market conditions. Soon they started cabling. The advance in some cases was 300 per cent. Even if these prices were accepted, it would be impossible for them to get their supply. The farmers are wise in this respect. The old customer gets the first chance if he is willing to pay the high price, as the farmer wants this customer another season.

A World Competition.

The buying is finished for this season, buying the crop in the field. In other years the crop was sold by sizes. Now the exporter takes the chances and gambles with the season. This week a field I saw purchased by a large exporter brought 20 sen per plant for all sizes, from 5 to 7 up.

Formosa lilies brought the highest price on record, 40 sen per bulb in the field being paid and the exporter harvesting the crop. There is no telling what the limit will be on giganteums. Much is due to the English and American buyers. Buyers overlook one fact: When they write to an exporter for prices they should limit that to one, as when they write all they themselves start artificial competition and prices, as the exporters nearly all go to the same source for their supply, and when all come the farmer as well as the exporter expects a large demand and the price goes up. I was told by large concerns in other lines that this system practiced by importers is responsible for high prices when there is no reason for them. England and Holland are cabling orders at market price and are more anxious about quantity than price. England is allowing the entrance of only twenty per cent of what was imported before the war. If that limit is removed, which many expect, by shipping time bulbs will sell here for twice the price that exporters sold them for early. Every item that changes hands here is changeable in price nearly daily. It would not be a business unless some speculation was done.

When I arrived here June 7 one could ship bulk freight, such as bulbs, as low as $5 per ton. Now space is hard to get at $10 or $12. At lily shipping time I would not be surprised if freight went as high as during the war.

I hope florists will continue to do a good business, so they can afford to pay the prices demanded for bringing lily bulbs to America and not let England and Holland take them from us. Conditions are everything but favorable. I have purchased some fine fields through our broker and will stay here until the bulbs are shipped. A. Miller.

THEATER CLUB.

A Ladies' Theater Club is being formed for the pleasure of the ladies attending the S. A. F. convention at Detroit. Any woman is eligible and all are invited to join. Dues are 50 cents and are payable to Mrs. C. H. Maynard, who may be seen at the convention hall, Tuesday, August 19. The date of entertainment will be announced later.

HOW SCIENCE HELPS

SCIENCE IN GREENHOUSES.

[This is the fourth and last installment of the article on "How Science Aids Florists," by E. A. White, professor of floriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.]

It is impossible to discuss fully all that scientific chemistry has done for floriculture. The results of this type of work have been far-reaching, not only as regards a plant's environment with reference to atmosphere and to soil and its fertility, but along the lines of insecticides and fungicides as well. We know that sanitary conditions in the home have much to do with keeping disease germs and insect pests from gaining a foothold; nevertheless, contagion sometimes spreads from less careful individuals in the human family. The same principles apply to plants, especially in greenhouses. The scientific chemists have solved many a complex problem for the florist in the eradication of both insects and fungi on plants.

In this work the chemist has been assisted in a considerable degree by the entomologist and the plant pathologist. The work of the entomologist has been to study the character and the life history of different groups of insects injurious to plant life, and through this intimate knowledge to aid the chemist in compiling formulas of sufficient strength to exterminate the pests. As certain chemical substances are injurious to plant tissue, the scientific work of the plant physiologist has also been necessary to bring about methods of insect extermination by the use of chemical substances which are effective, and which are in no way detrimental to the vigor of growth of plants.

The Value of Physics.

A question has sometimes arisen in various departments of agricultural colleges regarding the value of a knowledge of physics. One of the fundamentals of plant growth is light intensity, and the writer considers physics a most important subject for all students in floriculture. The science of physics has been of great value to the florist, but it might be much more so if some enthusiastic student would perform his experiments on light intensities in greenhouses and demonstrate the influence of different light intensities on different types of plant growth. We know in nature that there are many species of plants which are light demanding; others are shade enduring and even shade demanding. We usually consider that it is necessary that greenhouse plants obtain all the sunlight possible. This is, in general, true for most plants, but others demand some shade. The percentage of light under which plants make their best development is still a matter of conjecture. The physics of light, however, has been studied, and science has demonstrated the possibility of building greenhouses with the pitch of the roof at such an angle that the maximum amount of sunlight will be available.

In Ithaca and in some other sections of the United States, there is a low percentage of sunlight, especially during December, January and February. It is important for the flower grower that his plants get all the sunlight possible during these months. No branch of science will probably ever make possible the manufacture of artificial light equal in value to that from the sun. It therefore devolves on the student of physics to tell us how to so construct our greenhouses that the plants may obtain the maximum amount of light during such time as sunlight is available. In greenhouse construction, wood is an undesirable factor from many viewpoints. It quickly decays under the moist atmospheric conditions, and the necessity of using large dimensions, in order to secure strength, makes it detrimental to light intensities; yet, thus far, it has been found impossible to eliminate it from the construction of greenhouses because of the expansion and contraction of metal under the influence of varying degrees of heat, which breaks the glass.

Aid to Greenhouse Builders.

It is, therefore, desirable to eliminate as much wood as possible from the construction and to use the smallest dimensions for sashbars and supports. Recently, small wooden sashbars have come into general favor with greenhouse builders; wooden posts for interior supports have been eliminated, and a system of supporting the roof by various trusses is much in favor. Greenhouse builders are, therefore, depending on students of physics to demonstrate to them the supporting power of trusses for different sized roofs, so that the rigidity of the greenhouses may be increased. Upon this rigidity depends, in a large measure, the value of the greenhouse, for where there is considerable vibration there is a consequent breakage of glass.

It is impossible to properly demonstrate in a single article all that science has done and will do in the future to develop the art of flower and plant production. As has been stated, the necessity for an application of scientific principles to floriculture has been of comparatively recent origin. As competition increases in the world of flower production, there is sure to be a greater demand for scientific information, and the field of investigation is broad.

There is a constantly increasing demand for men in the flower-producing industry who have had broad scientific training. These men are to become in the future America's foremost flower producers.

RETAIL STORE ON ROOF?

GREENHOUSE ON HOTEL ROOF.

Offers Retail Possibilities.

"With the increasingly high main floor rentals in the congested hotel, office and department store sections of the city, the retail florist is put to it to find an advantageous place in which to display his wares for sale without sacrificing all profit to his landlord.

"If he is content with small fry in the way of customers, he will seek a basement or an upper floor. If he is after big fish, he is under the necessity of maintaining a costly establishment on the street level or of finding an equally advantageous location elsewhere. Then what is more natural than that he should make capital out of his quandary and retire to the roof, where, with a well stocked 'sky garden,' he has every bit of human psychology working for instead of against him? The advantage of light and fresh air are all on his side. The lure of an always fascinating panorama constantly draws buyers. In fact, he is right on top of hundreds of possible customers, whether his greenhouse tops a hotel or an office building. Then, too, it has the added attraction, in the eyes of the big game, of being out of the path of the rabble.

"Take, for an instance, the case of some of Chicago's most prominent loop florists. Will anyone venture to say that Oscar Friedman would suffer a loss of patronage in transferring the scene of his activities from Peacock alley, in the Congress hotel, to an elaborate roof greenhouse on the same building? Or that the Fleischman Floral Co. would find the figures on the wrong side of the ledger were its goods displayed for sale in a greenhouse on the roof of, say, the Railway Exchange building? From such a vantage point the attention of the patron would not be divided by some object foreign to the main issue."

On Top the Hotel Pennsylvania.

The foregoing query was suggested by H. O. S. Nichols, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, in connection with the "sky garden," so called by the hotel, just erected on the roof of the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York's newest and most elaborate hostelry. The main greenhouse is 55x85 feet. It is connected by a smaller one, at right angles to it, 16x40, leading to the big roof garden dining room.

As the work of erection progressed, the plans of the hotel management became more elaborate. At first the conservatory was named the "sky garden." Then, when the idea was conceived of lighting it by electric bulbs in the shape and color of butterflies, modeled and tinted as nearly like nature as possible, the name became the "butterfly conservatory." The decorations are planned to be oriental in character and lavishly carried out. Whether the greenhouse will be merely a conservatory for the enjoyment of the hotel's patrons, or whether the Hotel Pennsylvania will follow the lead of a number of other hotels and establish a florists' business in connection with it, is not yet certain. The latter possibility prompted the speculative remarks of Mr. Nichols.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

ANT EXTERMINATORS.

In the issue of The Review for July 24 I noticed that one of your subscribers complained of having trouble with ants. I was troubled with the pests and tried everything I could think of or had heard of, without success. They were large black ants and small brown ants, and it was not until I had tried ordinary florists' tobacco that I received results. I used it freely wherever the ants appeared and in about three days there was not an ant to be seen.

George Hammer.

I noticed an inquiry in The Review for July 24 regarding ants. The following is a method suggested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture which I myself used last winter with excellent results: "Make a syrup of one pound of sugar in one quart of water and add 125 grains of arsenate of soda. This mixture on cooling, after being boiled and strained, is used to moisten sponges, which are placed within reach of the ants. They convey the syrup to their nests, poisoning the whole colony. Arsenate of soda, however, is poisonous to animals and human beings."

While I did not use the above amount, I mixed a sufficient quantity of sugar and water so that, after boiling, it spun a thread. When it was cool, I placed it on the ground about the ant hills or where they seemed to congregate, and in a short time the syrup would be swarming with ants. After a few hours had elapsed there were no ants about, nor did any appear afterwards. I forgot to mention that I dropped four or five crystals of arsenate of soda in this syrup immediately after taking it off the fire and then stirred it for a few minutes. Arsenate of soda is difficult to get at a drug store because it is so little used, and has to be purchased from a wholesale drug house.

I hope this will be of benefit to others as it has to me, and I am glad to pass it along for you to print for their use.

C. A. Voris.

I have tried several ant exterminators, but find that Hammond's Slug Shot is the best. I have dusted it on ant hills, on plants and soil in pots and on seedlings in flats. It cleaned out the ants without injuring the plants. Last week I tested it out by sprinkling it in the cracks of sidewalks. In a few moments the ants were running wild and soon afterwards died. They do not go far before the poison takes effect.

While in New York state I used pieces of fat or meat and when the meat was full of ants I would scald it with hot water. However, this is bothersome and not so effective as Slug Shot. When I came to my present location there were ant hills all about the greenhouse, but now they disappear rapidly with the aid of Slug Shot.

F. R. Matsinger.

The best ant exterminator I have ever used is granulated sugar with just enough Paris green to give it a greenish tinge. A small pinch of this mixture, placed about the infested spots, will soon do the work. Care should be taken not to use too much Paris green, as the ants will not touch it. This remedy is for black ants. I have not had any experience with white ants.

John J. Whiting.

For the benefit of those who are troubled with ants, I would use the following remedy: Mix molasses and paris green, using just enough of the latter to poison all the molasses. Spread this on several small pieces of glass and place it about the greenhouse. In a short time the ants will swarm about the poisoned syrup.

Frank H. Ebner.

I saw in The Review a request for an ant exterminator. I have one. Get a 1-pound can of carbon bisulphide and an extra cork. This will be enough for from two to four applications. At night when the ants are all in their hole, pour one to four gallons of water in the hole. Next morning at sunrise the first ants will come out. Have a shovelful of mud ready, stand on the side that the wind comes from, pour the carbon bisulphide in the hole, cork the can and set it aside. Strike a match and drop it in the hole, keeping hands and feet at least two feet away. Wait from five to eight seconds and then put the mud over the hole. Stay away from it all day. If ants appear again, they are from a distant colony and you will have to make another application. Smoke out all ants within a distance of seventy-five feet of your property. Many cans of bisulphide are weak, but it will do the work.

E. Friedrich.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Dayton, O.—The real estate and greenhouses of the Miami Floral Co., the affairs of which have been pending in the Common Pleas court on receivership proceedings, were ordered transferred to Rolf Zetlitz, as purchaser of the property, in an entry filed in court July 19 with the approval of Judge R. C. Patterson. At master commissioner's sale, conducted under supervision of the court, the realty was bid in by Mr. Zetlitz for $33,000, and the personal property of the company for $2,000. Petition for appointment of the receiver was filed by William Kiefaber, and Attorney R. G. Corwin has been acting as receiver.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

J. J. U., Mich.—You can not "force" candidum; if the bulbs are planted out in early autumn they should flower.

J. R., Okla.—Don't cut back the vincas unless you want the growth for cuttings. Wrap each plant separately for shipping and cleat in box.

PROFIT-SHARING PLAN

RASMUSSEN PROPOSES PLAN.

For Employees' Profit-Sharing.

Outlines of a plan by which his employees will share in the profits of his business in 1920 were given by Anders Rasmussen, who has a range of 300,000 feet of glass at New Albany, Ind., in a letter to his employees under date of August 2. Mr. Rasmussen's plan is not worked out in detail, so far as the letter shows. The general scheme is, however, to divide twenty-five per cent of the year's earnings among the employees in accordance with their length of service and to distribute the remaining seventy-five per cent equally among all employees who have been in the employ from January 1, 1920, to January 1, 1921. The amount to be divided is the remainder when there has been allowed Mr. Rasmussen six per cent for his investment, five per cent for depreciation of the property and his salary. The sum which each employee receives is in addition to his weekly wages and is thought likely to be several hundred dollars a year if business in 1920 is as good as that of the last twelve months.

Mr. Rasmussen's Letter.

The letter to his employees in which Mr. Rasmussen outlines his plan reads as follows:

For several years I have cherished the idea, sometime, when my financial affairs permitted, to have my employees share in the profits of the business. The cyclone that partially destroyed our range has delayed this.

By January 1, if trade continues good, I shall be able to liquidate the balance of my indebtedness and I then propose to divide between all my employees all profits over and above a reasonable amount for interest and depreciation on my investment and a fair salary for myself for managing the business.

My plan is this: I will expect six per cent interest on my investment, five per cent for depreciation of the property and my salary. Of course the property has to be kept in repair and stock and equipment up-to-date. After this and other running expenses are paid, all other money will be divided as follows: Twenty-five per cent, or one-fourth, to be prorated to each according to number of years in my employ, as I feel that those who have been with me many years and have helped to build up the business are entitled to more than others who have been with us but a short time. Seventy-five per cent, or three-fourths, to be divided equally among all employees who are with us January 1, 1920, and stay with us to January 1, 1921. Those, if any, employed after January 1, 1920, or who leave before the end of the year, will not share in the profits, except in case of sickness or death. Of course weekly wages will go on as usual.

If we can increase our output and prices continue as good as the last year, or we can decrease expenses, or both, we can do better. On the other hand, if business gets poor, or we are overtaken by misfortune, we may have to be contented with much less, but at any rate, you have a great deal to gain, and nothing to lose.

I have always boasted that I have the best set of employees in the city, but there are several things that we can do to get better results. For instance, at a time when, as right now, we are a little behind with the work, we can try to put forth an extra effort and then take it a little easier at times when we are not so busy. We can take better care of our tools, and many other savings, that may suggest themselves to you as we go along, can be effected.

My reason for telling you of this plan so far in advance is that right now we are laying the foundation for our success next year. A good start is half the race won. I assure you I shall do my best to make the year of 1920 the best on our records and no one would be more pleased than I, if at the end of the year we had for each one of you a nice bonus, the bigger, the greater my pleasure would be, as well as yours. Let us all pull together.

SECRETARY YOUNG'S PAGE

PRESENT ADDRESS: HOTEL STATLER, DETROIT, MICH.

CONVENTION PREPARATIONS.

Secretary in Detroit.

The secretary duly arrived in the convention city and reported ready to the advisory committee, Vice-President E. A. Fetters, Philip Breitmeyer and Wm. Dilger, who were not only anxious to advise, but to lend material assistance, making the work of preparing for the big trade exhibition comparatively easy.

The secretary's first day was spent in Arcadia auditorium, making final decisions as to extra space. The unprecedented demand for space in the trade exhibition made it necessary to amend the preliminary plans somewhat.

It has been decided to hold the convention sessions on the second, or balcony floor, where permanent seats are arranged to accommodate 1,000.

The exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held on the same floor, two long tables being provided to extend the full length of the balcony on both sides. A good supply of water is handy for use of the exhibitors in this organization.

As the auditorium opens its regular season for dancing on the Saturday following the convention, August 23, exhibits must all be removed from the exhibition hall on Friday, as per our lease and contract. This being the case, the local interests have decided to comply with the wishes of exhibitors that the entertainment on Friday, the fourth day, be curtailed; so there will be little doing on that day. In addition, many of those who will attend have signified their intentions of leaving for home on Thursday night; so the entertainment features will be allowed to take up whatever time may be available during the three days of the convention.

The changes outlined above permit of a little more space being given to the trade exhibition, and so there is still time, if orders are sent in at once, to obtain a favorable location.

Detroit Florists Active.

It is most impressive to see the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," displayed in every flower store in the city, and also on the windshields of the florists' automobiles and delivery cars. This is the result of the good work of the special publicity representative for Michigan, M. A. Vinson.

In the evening the secretary had the pleasure of attending a meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, presided over by President J. F. Sullivan, at which the ladies of the local S. A. F. auxiliary were present. There was a good attendance and the meeting was most enthusiastic. The reports of the chairmen of the different committees showed that all arrangements were well in hand, and that every visitor will be well taken care of. Therefore, if everyone does not have an enjoyable time, it will not be the fault of the Detroit Florists' Club.

Henry Goetz, a member of the club, journeyed from Saginaw, Mich., a distance of ninety-six miles, to show that there was much interest in the convention in that section of Michigan. Mr. Goetz is also an enthusiastic booster for a Michigan state organization, and at the time of the convention a state society will be established, there being hope that the proposed affiliation amendments will be adopted at the convention. In such a case the state will be entitled to representation on the executive board.

Albert Pochelon, the energetic secretary of the F. T. D., in his usual forceful manner, reported arrangements that had been made to enlighten retail florists who are not F. T. D. members as to the wisdom of joining the organization. Although Mr. Pochelon has said much in the past of the good work of the F. T. D., he still has a little "dope" left in reserve and there is no doubt that at the convention a goodly number will be added to his list of members. The goal for membership for the coming year has been placed at 2,000, and there is an excellent possibility of this number being listed.

HAVE YOU YOUR ROOM?

The demand for hotel accommodations during the week of the S. A. F. convention at Detroit is so heavy that no room may be available if reservations are delayed too long. The late comers will find it hard, if not impossible, to be properly accommodated. Already the Hotel Statler is making arrangements to put many beds in some of the big sample rooms.

J. F. Sullivan,
Pres. Detroit Florists' Club.

A list of the leading hotels and their rates was published on page 14 of The Review for July 24. Send in your reservation at once.

Apply for Your Room.

I would again urge upon everyone going to the convention the importance of applying for hotel reservations to E. A. Fetters, 17 East Adams street, Detroit, at once. The hotels are all close together, and near the Arcadia auditorium. If Mr. Fetters is unable to locate you at any hotel specified, he will do the next best thing, but all will be taken care of in good shape somewhere. Don't miss the convention. It will be different from any that has preceded it and there is a good time in store for all who come.

At present the weather is cool and clear, making the use of a blanket necessary at night when sleeping.

How could this convention be anything but a success when everyone in the trade in Detroit is trying to do or suggest something which will help to make the stay of the visitors profitable and enjoyable? Even the president of the society, J. F. Ammann, has announced his intention of being in the city a week ahead of the convention, to see that the secretary and the advisory committee have overlooked no important detail. But he will find that Vice-President Fetters has all the work well in hand.

In the official program published in the society's "Journal," President Sullivan, of the Detroit Florists' Club, was erroneously listed as secretary of the club. The error, of course, has been recognized. John Young, Sec'y.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Week's Receipts Large.

The improvement in the support of our campaign fund noted in these columns in the last two weeks is sustained, the aggregate of contributions noted in this issue being greater than for some time reported. Our committees are pleased indeed at the showing made, and feel greatly encouraged. They are going ahead with their plans for a lively campaign this fall and hope to mature them for presentation at a joint meeting to be held sometime during the Detroit convention.

With many of the contributions come hearty endorsements of the work of the committees. The efficacy of the campaign is no longer doubted and from all over the country come assurances that its influence for good has been felt.

Still, our promotion bureau has a long list of florists who have not yet made a contribution to the fund. If these business men would decide what they are going to do, our committees could plan intelligently, for they would know what was likely to be behind them when completing plans. As has been said a number of times, contracts for magazine space must be made weeks ahead of publication, and it is not in our best interests to be cut out of some prominent publication because of unpreparedness. In other lines of trade, money for publicity work is quickly forthcoming and plans consequently are matured and put into execution without uncertainty such as we have had to experience. The jewelers have now resolved to raise a fund of $300,000 and are offering a substantial money prize for a slogan.

We are approaching the halfway stage of the fund, but considerably over a month late. Shall we reach our goal? We believe we shall, but we must have more support. Our subscription list to June 28 has been published and distributed. Do not withhold a subscription because you do not see Mr. So-and-So's name on it. He may be waiting to see yours. Look over our lists published in the trade papers each week and notice how now and then some community makes a clean-up. Observe, for instance, how Texas figures in the list this week. Why not round up your fellow craftsmen in your own neighborhood? You would certainly be doing them a favor. We want your help and it could hardly come at a better time than now.

Additional Subscriptions.

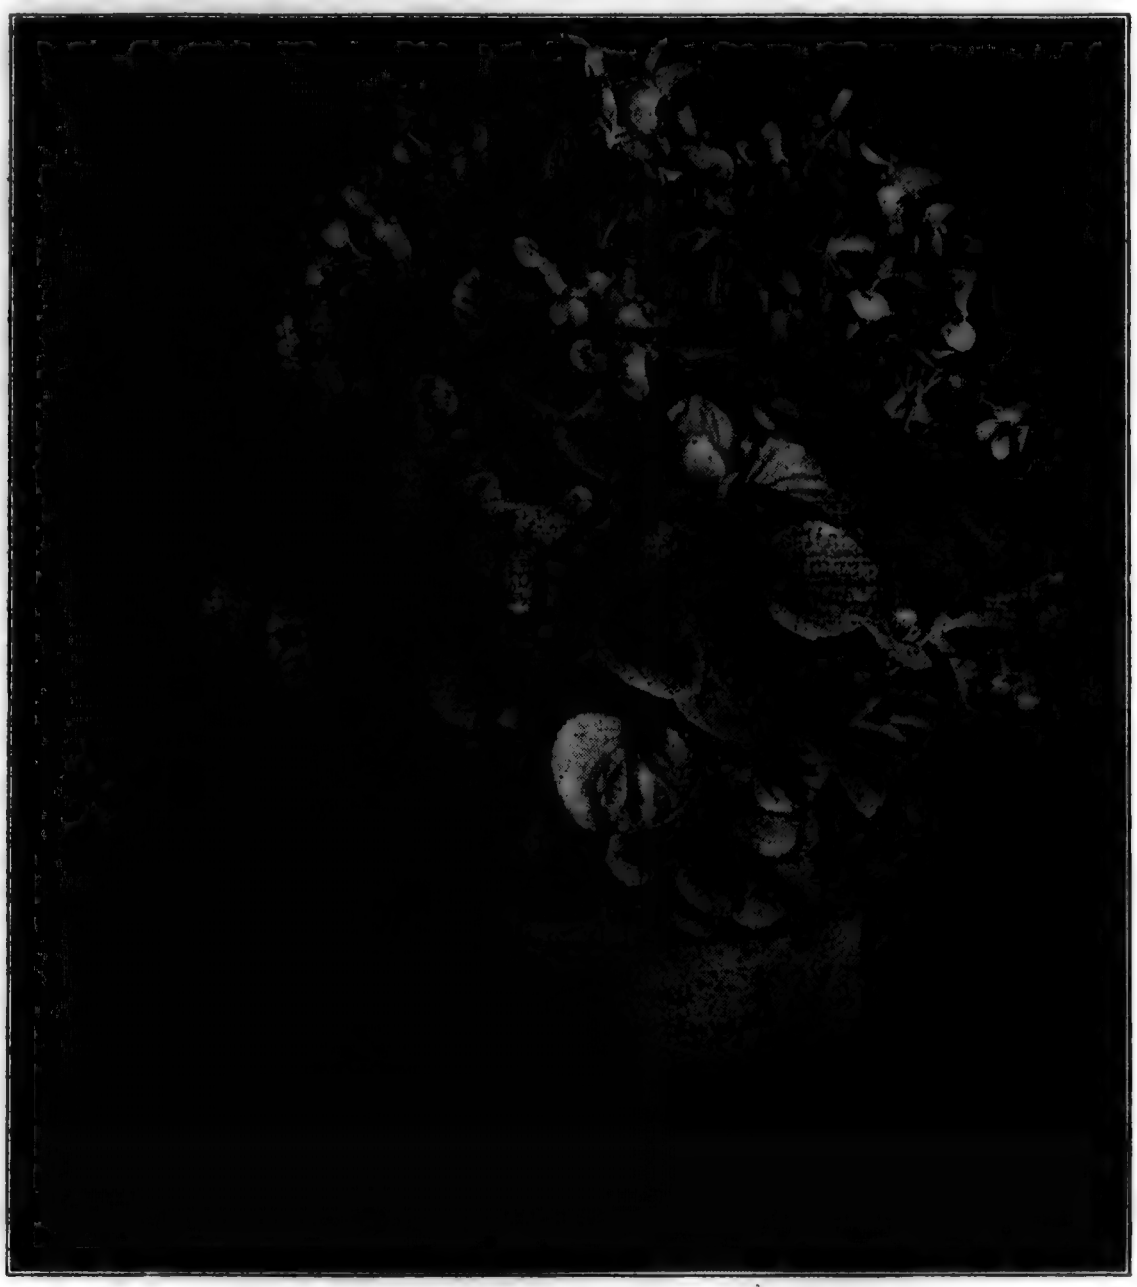
THE DETROIT CONVENTION.

Trade Exhibits.

All exhibitors are advised to ship their exhibits by express in ample time, marking them distinctly "Convention of the Society of American Florists, Arcadia auditorium, Woodward avenue and Stinson street, Detroit, Mich.," and prepaying all express charges.



The list of exhibitors is now quite large, but, owing to some important changes in the floor plan, a few good locations for exhibits are still available, if immediate application for them is made. Any house dealing in florists' supplies or auxiliaries, who is not represented at the exhibition, should not overlook the opportunity afforded to bring its products before the trade, as there is every evidence that visitors from all sections will be at the convention to buy their season's supplies.

Exhibitors desiring signs, desks, etc., should write the secretary at once, in order that their requirements may be met in good time. The following exhibitors are in addition to those previously announced:

J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago, Ill.
F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.
Farnsworth Co., Conshohocken, Pa.
Promotion Bureau, S. A. F. Publicity Campaign.
Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, Mich.
Earl L. Hempstead, Burlington, Ill.
H. V. Pearce, Detroit, Mich.
Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich.

The secretary's address is Hotel Statler, Detroit, Mich.

John Young, Sec'y.

E. E. Temperley's New Begonia, Christmas Gift.

TEMPERLEY'S NEW BEGONIA.

Because its colors adapt it so well to choice as a Christmas gift, that is the name with which E. E. Temperley, of Indianapolis, has christened his new seedling variety of Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine. Christmas Gift has blooms bright scarlet in color and foliage of a dark green. It is, says Mr. Temperley, a free bloomer and has the same habits as the mother plant. Christmas Gift thrives well in a carnation temperature, but grows best in one of from 56 to 58 degrees. In the accompanying illustration appears a specimen of Christmas Gift in a 6-inch pan.

NEW YORK TO DETROIT.

The New York Florists' Club has decided to travel by way of the Lackawanna railroad to Buffalo, thence by boat to Detroit. The party will leave New York Sunday, August 17, at 8:30 p. m.; Hoboken, 8:55, and Newark, 9:08 p. m., arriving at Buffalo 7:30 the following morning, spending the day in that city and Niagara Falls. Thence by the 6 o'clock boat, Monday night, August 18, arriving at Detroit 8:00 a. m. Tuesday, August 19. The railroad fare, New York to Buffalo, is $12.83; lower berth in Pullman, $2.16; upper, $1.62, including war tax. Boat fare, Buffalo to Detroit, $4.32; stateroom (two persons), $3.78.

From the way we are receiving applications, it looks as though we shall have over 100 in our party. Up to date we have the assurance of over fifty, and if we receive eighty applications we are guaranteed a special train.

August 11, between the hours of 2 and 5, the city passenger agent will meet the committee at John Young's office, 1170 Broadway, New York city, to receive the remittances for reservations. This is the last day for making reservations; so if you cannot attend, mail in your check so that it will reach me by this date and avoid confusion at train time.

For hotel accommodations, write E. A. Fetters, vice-president of the S. A. F., 17 East Adams avenue, Detroit.

If you desire further information, communicate with the chairman, A. L. Miller, whose postoffice address is Jamaica, N. Y.

A. L. Miller, Chairman.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Summer conditions continue. The demand for flowers is small and not at all regular. There are small rushes occasionally, but the greater part of the business is within small compass and about the volume customary for this time of the year. Asters and gladioli are arriving in great quantities and seem to move fairly well, although the prices range widely. There are some good asters and gladioli, but when the best have been sold there is an enormous balance to be taken into account and prices run down to the bargain point. If one were to be critical, it might be said there are some asters arriving which are not even entitled to reach the bargain point. The weather the last few days has been delightful in character and similar to that of early May. Consequently, the quality of indoor flowers has been better.

Roses continue to arrive in quantity and the quality is better than has been seen for many days, which stimulates sales. There is a fair supply of American Beauties, but summer prices prevail. Hybrid teas are also plentiful, with little, if any, change in prices. Most in demand are Hadley and Francis Scott Key, if Premier is excepted, as it is not in great supply. A few carnations are coming in, but the quality is poor. They are anything but a stock proposition for retail trade and there is an evident disposition to pass them up for the season. Orchids are rather scarce in supply. Some fairly good Cattleya gigas are available and bring a top price of $1.50; inferior stock sells as low as 35 cents. Lilium auratum is arriving in fair quantity and is bought freely at $10 and $15 per hundred for the best blooms. Easter lilies are not in good supply and, as their movements are not active, $12 per hundred is the top price for them. Miscellaneous flowers are fairly abundant and the variety of offerings is large. The weather is favoring the cut and quality in general is better than usual. Dahlias, buddleias and physostegias are newcomers.

Various Notes.

Herman Komitsch, of Secaucus, N. J., has sold his range to W. S. Chapin, of Gardner, Mass., who will continue the business. The orchid collection has been sold to A. C. Burrage, of Boston.

A. L. Miller, chairman of the New York Florists' Club's transportation committee, is sparing no effort to gather a large party for the Detroit convention. He has hopes of securing enough to warrant a special train, instead of special car accommodations. Some members of the party propose to return by way of Toronto, in order to see John H. Dunlop's new rose.

The severe storm of July 28 did damage to Henry Weston's range at Hempstead, L. I., to the extent of approximately $400. Many large trees in his neighborhood were uprooted. The storm was more violent than any that has before occurred within the memory of the oldest resident of the community.

Secretary Young, of the S. A. F., left last week for Detroit, where he will remain until after the convention.

J. H. P.

There will be a gladiolus exhibition August 23 and 24 in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park. Schedules are ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York. In this connection attention is called to the large collection of gladioli in the horticultural gardens of the New York Botanical Garden, in the south part of the grounds, only a short distance from the south gate. Here are brought together about 250 kinds; about 21,000 corms were set out. The primulinus hybrids have been in bloom for some time and are still flowering. The other varieties are now blooming. In addition to the above there is a collection of about forty kinds of cannas. Here is an opportunity for a comparative study of both gladioli and cannas. Each kind is plainly labeled.

George V. Nash, Sec'y.

The exhibition of the American Institute at the Engineering building September 23 to 25 will be chiefly of dahlias. The American Dahlia Society has offered twenty special prizes in conjunction with the institute's show. The chrysanthemum exhibition will be held November 5 to 7, at the same place. The Chrysanthemum Society of America will offer prizes in addition to those of the American Institute. Prize schedules for both exhibitions have been issued.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The two dominant flowers on the market are the gladiolus and aster. Both arrive in increasing numbers, but up to date there has been no particular glut of either, due, in great measure, to moderately cool weather. Gladioli, thanks to copious July rains, are of exceptionally fine quality. Prices vary from $3 to $8 per hundred, with some fancy varieties dearer. Asters have sold extremely well and until this week few went below $2 to $3 per hundred, with select blooms at $5 to $6 per hundred. Queen of the Market is the only variety yet in evidence. A few small carnations still come in, but they cut little figure. Roses are moving well at $2 per hundred and upward. Of newer varieties some nice Hearst, Prima Donna, Columbia and Premier are arriving. A few longiflorum lilies are seen and small lots of a variety of annuals. The only cattleyas now available are the medium-flowered varieties, Miss Williams and Harrisoniæ. One or two growers are sending in Bouvardia Humboldtii, and it sells readily at $2 to $3 per dozen. Demand for asparagus is light.

Various Notes.

Owing to the great demand for Carnation Morning Glow, Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, the raiser, has decided to offer it to the public again. Mr. Winkler two or three years ago started to advertise it, but later decided to keep the entire stock in his own hands. It has proved to be a great seller in the Boston market.

The sincere sympathy of numerous friends goes out to Alexander P. Duven, manager of the R. & J. Farquhar & Co. seed store, who lost his 18-year-old son and only child in an automobile accident at Scituate, Mass., July 27. Funeral services were held July 30, at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Dedham, and were largely attended. There was a magnificent display of floral tributes from sympathetic friends. Farquhar's seed store was closed on the afternoon of the funeral.

John W. Foote, [illegible] Reading, and Fred Holbrow, of Dorchester, are sending in fine shipments of fine beautiful pure white Bouvardia Humboldtii.

Report of the death of Robert Montgomery appears in the obituary column of this issue.

George W. Hamer, W. A. Hastings and W. McNamara, of the Boston Flower Exchange, are enjoying their annual vacations.

Arthur F. Estabrook, one of the trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for many years, and also one of its past presidents, died at his ranch in Porto Rico July 27, in his seventy-third year. Mr. Estabrook was an enthusiastic patron of horticulture and will be greatly missed.

C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, is sending in some splendid gladioli and asters and still has some fairly good carnations.

July gave us more than a normal rainfall, the amount being 4.63 inches, an excess of 1.27 inches. The mean average temperature was 74 degrees, or 2.7 above normal. The highest temperature in the shade was 101 degrees, lowest 55 degrees. There were seven clear, ten partly cloudy and fourteen cloudy days.

A. C. Burrage, of Beverly Farms, on the north shore, will soon be the largest owner of orchids in the United States, if he does not already hold that position. He is now building a block of eleven houses for orchids. He has just purchased the entire collection of Herman Komitsch, Secaucus, N. J. This is undoubtedly the biggest individual purchase of orchids ever made in this country. He had a representative in Europe making large purchases before Quarantine 37 went into effect.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, Arctic, R. I., are well pleased with Mrs. W. R. Hearst and Prima Donna roses and at present are sending in good blooms of these and several of the older varieties.

Cooler weather seems to be stimulating interest in the S. A. F. convention at Detroit. Surprise and indignation are expressed at Dr. C. L. Marlatt being on the program as one of the speakers.

Thanks to the splendid rains we have had of late, there is every indication of a splendid gladiolus exhibition at Horticultural hall, August 9 and 10.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Judd are enjoying a vacation at Topsfield, Mass.

J. T. Butterworth, of South Framingham, has the local market on cattleyas largely to himself these days. His specialty at present is the beautiful hybrid, Miss Williams, of which he has probably the largest and finest stock in America.

The North Shore Horticultural Society held a successful midsummer exhibition in Horticultural hall, Manchester, Mass., August 6. Exhibits were numerous and fully up to pre-war averages.

Robert Montgomery.

Robert Montgomery, the noted rose specialist of Natick, Mass., died suddenly August 5 from a complication of diseases.

Mr. Montgomery was born at Kirkinner, in Wigtownshire, Scotland. He served his apprenticeship in the trade at Galloway house, the well-known seat of the Earl of Galloway. He worked at his trade near Glasgow and then in 1880 came to America. He first found employment in America at Wellesley College, Mass., which was near his home. Later he worked at Dover, Mass., and then entered the employ of Norton Bros., remaining with them for seven years. After leaving Norton Bros. he entered into business with his brother John, now deceased, at Wellesley, and sixteen years ago bought his present place, on Worcester street, Natick, right on the line of the Boston & Worcester electric railroad. Mr. Montgomery specialized in roses and as a side line grew chrysanthemums. He had many up-to-date houses, which produced some of the finest stock sent to the Boston market.

Robert Montgomery was married and had four children. He lost a son in the war, killed in a submarine destroyer accident. One son, Alexander, has been a flower salesman, and Robert E. is a member of the firm of T. J. Grey Co. Alexander Montgomery, the prominent head of the Waban Rose Conservatories, is a brother.

Mr. Montgomery was director of the Boston Coöperative Market since it started and was at one time president of the board. He was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, a Mason and a Knight Templar.

George Anderson.

George Anderson, landscape gardener and nurseryman, died July 19, at his home, 5230 Woodland avenue, Philadelphia. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Anderson came to this country from Scotland in the earlies seventies. He took part in landscaping that section of Fairmount park which was the site of the centennial buildings and grounds in 1876. In later years he specialized in the cultivation of roses. He is survived by a widow and eight children.

J. F. Lembke.

The death of J. Fred Lembke, who for the last fourteen years has represented the W W. Barnard Co., Chicago, in Ohio, Pennsylvania and adjoining territory, is reported. His thorough knowledge of the requirements of the trade, his fairness in all of his dealings, his ever good humor and kindly disposition won for him a host of friends among the trade he visited and the respect and affection of his business associates.

Mr. Lembke was taken ill in the McKinley hotel, Canton, O., early last week and was removed to the Mercy hospital in that city, where he was operated on August 1, for appendicitis. He was unable to survive the operation and passed away August 3, at 11 p. m. His body will be taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. N. Pung, 68 Burleigh street, Milwaukee, Wis., and funeral services will be held August 7, at the chapel of Schmidt & Hilgendorf, undertakers.

Born in Germany, Mr. Lembke was with W. J. Smyth, and later with John Fuhrmann, Chicago retailers, before going to the W. W. Barnard Co., where he started on the road at once. The company received a telegram that he was coming along finely after the operation; then a sudden change took place.

THE CANADIAN CONVENTION.

August 12 to 14.

The Canadian Horticultural Association plans to entertain a record crowd this year at the annual convention to be held at Toronto, August 12 to 14. This will be the first convention since the end of the war and preparations are being made on a large scale. Inasmuch as the florists entertained 300 persons last year, despite the trying conditions the country was passing through, they are arranging to accommodate 500 this year.

Plenty of recreation has been planned to offset the business meetings. On the second day of the convention the florists will be the guests of the Retail Florists' Club at a picnic at Long Branch. Special electric cars will be provided to take the florists and their friends to the picnic grounds. A dance will be given in the evening. August 14 they will be the guests of the city and will be taken by automobile to visit the greenhouses of Sir John Eaton and Sir Henry Pellatt. In the evening the banquet will be given at the Prince George hotel. A boat trip across the lake, the next day, will complete the society's festivities.

The local committee consists of the executives of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association and of the Retail Florists' Club. H. G. Dillemuth is chairman of the convention committee; Alexander Simpson, secretary; Herman Simmers, treasurer, and J. J. Higgins, superintendent of exhibits.

Complete Program.

The complete program, in its final form, is as follows:

TUESDAY, AUGUST 12, 10 A. M.

Address of welcome, by Mayor Church.

The Review brings results.

GROW good stock to get good prices.

GET busy; there's a big season close at hand.

SLEEPING accommodations are at a premium in Detroit. Reserve your room at once.

THE man who sends out 2-inch stock in 3-inch pots will not get repeat orders next year.

RAIN came in various sections last week just when it was most needed for outdoor stock.

MORE than heretofore, the cyclamen will be called for to take the place of azaleas next Christmas and winter.

HAVE you bought and stored your coal for next season? There's almost sure to be a famine when winter comes.

FURTHER advance in popularity is being made this season by Canna King Humbert. There is none other the public likes so well.

CUT price buyers never come back, except for another bargain. Special sales seldom reach the customer whose steadiness makes him profitable.

THIS week's issue of The Review contains just twenty-one per cent more pages than the issue of a year ago, which shows how the trade winds are blowing.

SHIPPERS of plants in carload lots who are interested in the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed perishable protective tariff No. 1 will find a report concerning them in the Nursery Trade Department this week.

WITH the favor of the weather man, the S. A. F. convention at Detroit will set a record in attendance. Last season's business has made many florists feel that they can afford the trip as a vacation, and the questions in their minds regarding next season's business make them desirous of going for the trade discussion.

THERE is little question that carnations will command high prices again next season. The number of plants benched in most localities will not exceed, if it equals, the number planted last year. Then, too, the summer conditions have been such that much of the stock is small, so that it will be late in the season before quality or quantity is up to normal.

THE Darwin tulip called Laurentia, dark red, is recommended for gentle forcing as a companion to Clara Butt, the well known pink variety.

"COMPETITION is the life of trade," but there's a better living for all in coöperation. And that is what we are all most interested in—a good living.

IF some plantsman wants to make a hit, let him send a post-card on receipt of every order, stating when and how he will ship, even if when is today.

THE grower who cannot operate at his maximum capacity next season because he did not buy coal early will find only regret in high flower prices.

IT is too bad so many folks' judgment depends on which side of a deal they're on. Almost anything is good enough to sell, but it's different when one's buying.

THERE will be a larger demand for bedding stock next season than last, because the people have more money to spend and have become accustomed to our higher prices. Grow all you can, but have it ready early.

PAYING THE PRICE.

When you pay a good price for an article, you get good quality—or you get stung. When you pay a low price for an article, you get low quality—or you get a bargain. The times when you get stung and the times when you get bargains are exceptional. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred you get what you pay for.

PRICES DO NOT CHECK DEMAND.

No change from present high prices was forecast in the federal reserve board's monthly review of business conditions issued August 1.

"In general," the review said, "there is a disposition to accept present price levels and to expect a continuation of the prevailing level for some time to come."

In many districts high prices have not served to check demand. The possibility of obtaining goods was found to be of greater moment to the buyer than the price fixed.

Continued high prices, along with constant growth in trade, both wholesale and retail, and increased activity in some of the basic industries sustained confidence in the industrial situation and led to expansion in many lines during the month of July. Almost the only complaints heard concern shortage of raw materials and in a few districts labor troubles, although a majority of the districts report normal labor conditions.

TELEGRAPH LINES RETURNED.

Control of the telegraph wires of the country was returned to private hands August 1, when the government restored the lines to their owners. According to its promise, the Postal Telegraph Co. reduced its rates twenty per cent, the amount they were raised by Postmaster-General Burleson April 1. The Western Union Telegraph Co., however, continues at the same rates, making no reductions whatever.

In view of the energies directed by florists toward developing telegraph delivery orders, there is encouragement in the fact that the telegraph companies now will be of aid in this service, since they contemplate carrying out millions of dollars' worth of improvements immediately, which will make service by wire quicker and more efficient. Both of the companies recognize the conditions into which the lines have drifted under the economy of recent operations, and are emphatic in the expression of their intentions to better them as rapidly as possible.

THE GREATEST CLIENTELE.

"There is nothing like life insurance," asserted the insurance man. "Everybody is a prospect in my business."

"But it's pretty hard to make a good prospect out of the man without dependents, or out of the wife of a successful business man," responded Old Man Gloom.

"There is nothing like advertising," declared the solicitor. "Everybody has something to advertise."

"But it's hard to find what a salaried man in a good job, or a wife at home with her children, would pay to advertise," answered Old Man Gloom.

"Actually there is nothing like selling flowers," volunteered the florist. "Everybody buys flowers at least once in his or her life."

"Yes, everybody buys flowers once," agreed Old Man Gloom, "even if it's only a funeral wreath."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Stock is scarce. There are those who say that business is dull, but it is because they have no flowers. Anyone who has moderately good stock of any kind is doing a first-class business, remarkably good considering that it is midsummer and that last week for four days no street cars ran and the public attention was divided between the strike and newspaper accounts of race riots—no one seems to have seen anything approaching rioting except in the newspaper headlines. Beyond question, however, the disturbances greatly curtailed the local retail business. The better class of stores, especially those in the residence districts, did a fair week's business, but the small places which do not have automobiles found it slow to make trips to the market and difficult to make deliveries outside walking distance. Their purchases were light. On the other hand, shipping business was unusually good for the season. All the wholesale houses that cater to the country trade were doing a first-class business, limited only by their ability to supply good stock. When the wholesale houses not claiming to be the largest in the market report sales running from $1,500 to $2,000 per day under such conditions, it gives an idea of the tremendous difference between the present summer market and those of olden times, when wholesalers had little to do except play checkers for the greater part of the day.

Roses are less plentiful. The one exception is Premier, which is coming stronger each day. It is also improving in quality and is becoming a real competitor of Russell, heretofore the best and most popular variety. Russell still sells promptly and Columbia also goes well. It has been too hot for Milady. Other varieties are cleaning up in good shape, even shorts being in request. There are only small supplies of

We Offer a Large Cut of Asters for "Work"

GOOD Asters are by no means plentiful this season—weather too dry—but Amling's is able to offer a large quantity of nice, clean, short stock, just what retailers need now for "work." Queen of the Market, all colors. Let your orders come.

and other good Summer Roses

Premier is a leader with us, but you also will find here a satisfactory summer supply of Columbia, Milady, Russell, Sunburst, Ophelia, Montrose, Double White Killarney, etc. Order what you want.

Myrtle and other Gladioli

Myrtle is about the most useful of all Gladioli, liked for its color (pink and white), and the way it opens. If you don't know it, order a sample shipment today. We have Myrtle by the thousands (our grower holds the largest stock of the bulbs ever got together), and we also can supply many other good, newer kinds in quantity. All colors. They are splendid sellers now.

The Greens You Need

It should not be overlooked that Amling's also is headquarters for Greens. Everything. Good. Plenty.

A Letter to the Trade:

A Chicago wholesale house in last week's issue of one of our florists' papers had the audacity to insert a misleading 'Ad' to the effect that other Chicago Wholesalers were buying their left over stock or such stock as they were glad to get rid of, leading the trade to believe that these other Chicago Wholesalers were filling their orders with such class of stock, so in FAIRNESS to these other WHOLESALERS and in JUSTICE to OURSELVES, we therefore take exception to an 'Ad' of this nature and desire to announce through this same medium that in no case HAVE WE or DO WE ship out stock of such a nature, besides it is ridiculous to think that ANY REPUTABLE WHOLESALER WOULD WANT TO SEND OUT STOCK that would not give his customers THE BEST OF SATISFACTION, as to ourselves we can only add that time and again have our contentions been upheld by REPEAT ORDERS coupled with the fact that OUR SHIPPING TRADE HAS SHOWN A MARKED INCREASE OVER OTHER SEASONS.

good Beauties and those who are fortunate in having good long-stemmed Beauties are getting double the old-time midsummer price.

Carnations have practically disappeared. On the other hand, asters are much more plentiful. There are few which can be classed as decorative or exhibition stock. Most of the asters are small and short in stem, extremely useful for funeral work, but otherwise not of much account. The few really good indoor or irrigated asters are in strong demand.

In spite of the dry weather, gladioli are in good supply and are the chief reliance of the market. The quality of the stock is not so good as it would be with better weather conditions, but some first-class flowers are seen, including a wider range of varieties than in previous years. The prices, compared with years preceding 1918, are far better than usual.

Roses, asters and gladioli are practically all the flowers in the market. There are small quantities of all the other things on the list, but not enough so that there is any trouble selling all that are good; the trouble comes in filling orders.

July Business.

July of 1918 was better than the month in any previous year, but July of 1919 went considerably ahead. There was a space in the early part of the month when things were pretty dull and prices pretty low, but in the latter part of the month business was much better than even last year and prices were stiffer. The result is that most of the wholesale houses, probably all of those that seek out-of-town patronage, had good gains in sales. In most cases they consider it a highly encouraging fact.

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the death of Mr. Frank McCabe, City Sales Manager, and for fourteen years one of the most faithful and valuable employees of the A. L. Randall Company.

Amling Brothers Branch Out.

For several months it has been known that the sons of the late W. H. Amling were seeking a favorable opportunity for enlarging their operations, which already include two greenhouse establishments at Maywood. This announcement comes from Pana, Ill., where it was given to the newspaper by the Commercial Club:

Pana has landed another industry that promises in time to be the greatest of its character in the United States. It is to be an immense greenhouse plant for the growing of cut flowers and plants and will be located on the Harry Tanner plot of ten acres on East Washington street, directly opposite the new Moose Home. One acre of the ground is to be put under glass immediately, or as soon as the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Pana, can complete the steel work for the plant, and to this is to be added additional greenhouses until the entire plot of twelve acres, extending from Elm street intersection of Washington street at the Moose Home and Tanner residences, all the way east to Cedar street, is covered with greenhouses. It will represent an investment on the start of $50,000 and will be increased in time to an investment of $500,000 or more.

The name of the concern has not been decided upon, but it will be incorporated by Walter A. Amling and Herbert Amling, of Maywood, Ill., and George W. Scott, of Cudahy, Wis., men who have had years of experience in the greenhouse business as growers and developers. These gentlemen were here two weeks ago and entered into negotiations with the Pana Commercial Club and signed contracts which were ratified by the Commercial Club at its recent meeting. The Commercial Club deeds to the company ten acres of land of the site named as soon as it shall have completed enclosure of one acre under glass. In addition to the ten acres to be deeded the company, the officers and promoters think so well of the site and local conditions that they purchased two additional acres from Mr. Tanner, taking in all of the strip from Elm east to Cedar street.

It is understood that the death of Patrick Cudahy may change the plans of G. W. Scott, but not the main plan.

Pana is a good location: Good soil, cheap coal from wagon mines and quick transportation to four good markets.

resulted in Mr. Randall and associates taking over the establishment of the Traverse City Refrigerator Co., at Traverse City, Mich. Manufacturing conditions there are thought to be much better than at Chicago and the deal puts them in possession of a fully equipped factory with ample opportunity for expansion. It is planned to raise the output, first to fifty and then to 100 refrigerators per day. Edward Soderberg has gone to Traverse City to take charge of the financial management.

July Weather.

The summer has been bad for growers of outdoor stock, which includes carnation growers, whose plants were or still are in the fields. Following the hottest June on record, July was warm and dry. The mean temperature was 6 degrees above that of July, 1918, and nearly as much above normal. The precipitation was only 1.59 inches, almost all on the last day of the month, constituting a record for dryness for thirty consecutive days. There was eighty-six per cent of the possible number of hours of sunshine, or fifteen per cent more than normal, adding nothing to the joy of life under glass.

Various Notes.

Frank McCabe was buried August 1 at the old home of the family at Mt. Sterling, Ill. There were services for Chicago friends, in a chapel on North Western avenue, the evening before, at which there was a large attendance and a display of flowers which spoke eloquently of the high esteem in which Mr. McCabe was held. In the party which escorted the remains to Mt. Sterling were five of Mr. McCabe's associates with the A. L. Randall Co., Eric Johnson, George Haase, W. C. Florentine, Cassimir Gouza and Fred Nordley. John and Ned Gannon also were there. When last week's Review brought the sad news of Mr. McCabe's drowning to his old customers in all parts of the country the Randall concern was in receipt of many expressions of sorrow and sympathy to be sent on to his mother and the family.

wife, Emil Ehrhardt, Ed Meuret, Joseph Schoos and Sam Pearce, most of them members of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. Some of them will motor to Detroit.

There was a flurry in the market late last Saturday afternoon, not because of a spurt of wholesale business, but because of a sale made at the little retail store of Mrs. Williams, in the Lemoyne block, in the center of the wholesale district. The arrival of a Packard in Great Lakes gray with an escort of a half-dozen motorcycle policemen made a noise that drew everybody to the doors or windows. It was Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his wife, in town for the day. The stop was only long enough to permit Mrs. Daniels to buy some roses of Mrs. Williams and then the big gray car and the motorcycles were off with a rush and a roar.

members of the S. A. F. in Illinois. The latest names turned in were those of Sam Pearce, John G. Poehlmann, James B. Foley, Arthur Eichel, Frank Washburn and George Washburn, the latter two of Bloomington. New annual members are J. A. Johnson, of Effingham, and George Grimsby, of Clinton.

August Jurgens recently returned from Mississippi, where he spent several months on his bulb farm.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago and Pana, last week increased its capital stock from $125,000 to $200,000.

At Des Plaines, George Hoefle is building another big house, increasing his space fifty per cent. He grows only two crops, chrysanthemums followed by sweet peas.

A. Henderson & Co. received a car of Paper Whites on the Canada, which arrived at New York July 28, the first of the season.

August Lange celebrates his fifty-first birthday anniversary August 7.

W. H. Kidwell & Son are offering the famous old Wentworth avenue stand for sale.

W. Abrahamson, who conducts the store fixture department of the A. L. Randall Co., was at Cleveland last week to figure on the fixtures for the new store soon to be opened by the United Floral & Nurseries Co. He says three or four of the leading florists of Cleveland are figuring on new refrigerators or other equipment to help take care of rapidly increasing business and that it no longer is a question of price but of ability to turn out the fixtures in time.

William Wienhoeber and wife have returned from an enjoyable month's outing in Colorado.

At W. J. Smyth's Arthur Weatherwax says July business was good, although the race riots did not help any.

G. Swenson, the Elmhurst grower, turns out good stock, all right, but he ought to, considering his experience. Where is there an older active grower? Mr. Swenson was 75 years of age August 6.

R. E. Kurowski returned last week from a fortnight's fishing trip in Wisconsin. His prize catch was a 10-pound muskie.

Among those who will go to the Detroit convention are G. M. Reburn and wife and Albert Koehler and wife. Vincent Neil and S. Dumser will look after the display of the American Bulb Co.

F. F. Benthey, Nestor of the wholesale florists, celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary August 5. He makes his headquarters with Kennicott Bros. Co., where friends wished him many returns of the day.

Frank Schramm again is cutting the long Russells that have made him famous.

Two new Dodge delivery cars have been ordered to replace the Fords in George Wienhoeber's equipment.

C. J. Michelsen and family are motoring to North Dakota, a round trip of 2,200 miles for the Packard.

E. F. Winterson, Jr., left August 2 for Tipperary Cottage, his summer home at Sheridan Beach, near Michigan City. He expects to be gone three weeks or a month.

A. A. Martial, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., leaves August 9 for Toronto, where he will have charge of Poehlmann's exhibit at the Canadian convention, and then he will go to Detroit to take charge of the exhibit there.

A. T. Pyfer returned July 31 from his vacation and says he feels well rested. Mr. Pyfer visited John

There are several magnificent flower beds in Drexel boulevard parkway this season, but the best of them all is a big round mound of King Humbert canna.

Miss Nettie Parker, secretary of A. T. Pyfer & Co., Inc., left August 2 on a fortnight's personally conducted tour of the Yellowstone. The Misses Gebhardt, daughters of the Lake Geneva gardener, are in the party.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg will attend the convention.

Visitors.

Henry Schmaus, of Schmaus Bros., Paducah, Ky., spent last week here. It was a vacation and a business trip combined, because his firm needs a great many things for the big fall business that is in sight.

Harry Breitmeyer and wife drove their car from Detroit to Chicago last week. Mr. Breitmeyer says preparations are being made for a big S. A. F. convention.

Paul M. Palez came up from Little Rock, Ark., last week for a breath of our lake breeze.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., who has his office at Detroit this month, spent Sunday in Chicago.

Miss Laura Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., Cincinnati, was here this week on her way north.

Robert Newcomb is here this week, fresh from the Pacific coast.

George Stiles, of the Stiles Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., was in town last week with his wife. They were motoring to Benton Harbor for a vacation and from there will motor to Detroit for the convention.

The Market.

The market during the week has been exceedingly slow. Even the limited supply did not find a demand to use it up. Some report that the week's business has been below that of a year ago. At least one thing is certain; the supply of stock is far below that of last year. Asters, the flowers much depended on at this time of the year, are only to be had in limited quantity. Although poor, they bring good prices. The principal stock consists of gladioli and roses, gladioli being the favorites. Last week some good carnations came in. These brought $3 per hundred.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There has been a decided falling off in business. The supply of gladioli and of asters has exceeded the demand, causing a depression in prices and waste. Gladioli have been so fine that no fault can be found with the quality. This cannot be said of asters; the poor ones do not sell, and there are a good many poor ones. The supply of roses is much smaller, a decided help to those that do come. July has been a good month in the cut flower market. It opened and closed poorly, but was strong for three weeks in the middle. Where quality was shown, prices have been encouraging.

Gladioli.

Charles J. Theis jumped down from the counter where he had been seated, chatting with a friend, at the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., as Phil entered. "I cannot give you a market report," he said; "I would take a picture of those empty gladiolus boxes"—Phil made a mental picture of the pile of empties out on Sansom street—"contents all sold on a dull day, and put it in the paper. Then tell the readers why. Tell them that these gladioli were properly packed, so they sold quickly at top prices." Mr. Theis went on to say that he thought that sixty gladioli in a box were enough, although some good boxes with 100 spikes in each were shown on the counter. The important things were to cut the spikes with a couple of open flowers on each, not to crowd them in packing and to nail the cleat firmly on each box, so that the blooms could not be bruised through the spikes shifting in transit. Mr. Theis thought that cutting gladioli with all the flowers undeveloped was detrimental to color. A variety like Myrtle required sunlight in the field to secure the full warmth of its rich tint. Picking up a box of 100 Augusta and raising the tissue paper that covered the flowers, Mr. Theis remarked that such a box could be safely put in the retailer's refrigerator as it was and sold to a customer who wanted eight dozen white gladioli without regrading, because every flower was perfect and none was bruised. Such stock, he said, was worth the additional $2 per hundred asked for it.

Grace and Color.

There are two sides to successful growing of plants, the artistic side and the commercial. The plants must appeal to refined taste and there must be enough of them to make a market. Grace and color make beautiful plant life in the greenhouses of the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood. The graceful areca, the many-colored croton, the shapely dracæna and the pandanus, with their penciled markings, are in quantities that make possible the selection of hundreds, even thousands, of a single size of a given variety and then doing it all over again.

Take Areca lutescens. The day has been when a limited number of specimens were offered; the medium and small sizes were reserved for growing on. That day has passed. Areca lutescens is grown and offered in limitless quantities in all sizes, big and little. And such arecas, with broad, rich green leaves held erect with that grace that is their own!

Then the crotons. There was a day when ordinary, everyday values were offered in plenty and the gems were doled out with miserly care. That day has passed. Rich croton gems are offered in profusion. There are great quantities of the finer sorts, while the ordinary sorts are disappearing.

Take Pandanus Veitchii. There are two large houses of it, beautifully colored, gracefully drooping plants throughout.

Take dracænas. The plant embargo matters not. Dracænas are being produced as they never were before, and such dracænas! Massangeana and terminalis and Lord Wolseley and the Lord knows what beside. But stop a moment; here is Warneckii, considered a great sort, and its exquisitely marked sport, Dracæna Longii, a real gem.

Of course, nephrolepis plants are of immense importance at Norwood; Teddy Junior and the dwarf form of the true Boston and the crested Norwood are the sorts grown. A smaller number of varieties and a larger number of plants.

These are just the special features today. There will be others to follow.

Russell, Premier and Columbia

Not only a good winter forcing trio, but splendid summer quality, by far the best roses coming in now.

Norwood defies description at a crack; it is too big. The quickest way to grasp this fact is to look at the wonderful propagating bench, with a gang of men taking out and potting well rooted poinsettias, while another gang of men followed refilling the bench with another batch, also of poinsettia cuttings.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

From reports, the month of July was fairly good for business. Outside of funeral work, business at this time of the year is practically at a standstill.

With August 1 came extremely hot weather and the market is supplied with only a limited stock of good flowers. The retailers are only buying what is really needed and, of course, are not stocking up as in busy seasons. There are a great many poor flowers at all the wholesale markets, but they do not tempt the retailers.

There has been a considerable quantity of roses coming in daily, but the extreme heat of last week caused bad shipments and, unless cut tight, the blooms are wide open when they arrive. Most of them are short-stemmed and off color. The same may be said of carnations. They are practically out of the market.

Gladioli are the flowers that have a big demand daily and the fancy varieties hold up in price, while the common sorts are sold cheap. The fancy varieties are in the majority this season, as all the local growers are having success with this flower.

A good supply of asters is arriving daily, but the great bulk of them are of poor quality. However, in the absence of carnations, the demand for asters has been large. The price for the best is up to $8 per hundred. Not much of anything else is coming in at present. A good rain is needed to revive all other outdoor stock. A few consignments of single tuberose stalks helped out the trade. Few Easter lilies or valley are seen on the market.

In greens the trade buys quite heavily, especially of asparagus and smilax, of which the supply is equal to the demand.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its most important meeting of the year, Thursday afternoon, August 14. The feature of the meeting will be the election of officers for the coming year. The meeting will be held at the grounds of W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., in Kirkwood. Automobiles will be in waiting in the wholesale district and will leave promptly at 1 o'clock. Mr. Smith, who is known as a royal entertainer, is preparing for one of the largest gatherings of club members in years.

Edward Niebling, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., made it known last week that the stork left a baby girl at his home recently.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has enlarged its office. Joseph Krager, the bookkeeper, says they needed the room. The company received large shipments of florists' supplies last week.

Charles Kuehn, Jr., son of C. A. Kuehn, surprised his many friends in the trade when he announced that he was married July 26, to Miss Mildred Koenig. The happy couple are away on a short honeymoon trip.

FOR SALE

Retail florist business; about one acre of land, 13,000 ft. of glass, office and five modern living rooms, garage, delivery car, hotbed sash; in fact, everything needed to carry on the business; one of the best propositions in the Twin Cities, a market for everything on the place; all planted up and ready to step right into and go ahead; immediate possession if desired. For further particulars address

THOS. H. HALL,
3544 Leyndale Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

FOR SALE

Or lease, the widely known, eminently successful and old established business of the late Frank F. Crump, deceased, Colorado Springs, Colo. Excellent and well equipped plant of 55,000 square feet of modern glass; fully stocked and in first-class running order; convenient 6-room modern residence. This is an exceedingly attractive proposition and will repay the closest investigation; liberal terms to reliable party, but quick action required.

EDGAR CRUMP,
Box 606, Colorado Springs, Colo.

FOR SALE

My residence and 5,300 sq. ft. of modern built glass; planted to mums, carnations, general plants and ferns; 1¼ acres of land partly planted to shrubs and perennials; our town is growing so fast, I cannot keep up the pace and rather sell than be a hindrance to a well established trade; someone will get a snap by grabbing a real opportunity; come to Carlinville, Ill., and make me an offer.

ALBERT J. MUELLER.

NOTICE!

The Annual Meeting of the Florists' Hail Association of America will be held in Arcadia Auditorium, Detroit, Michigan, at 9 A. M., on Wednesday the 20th day of August, 1919.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—The Thorsted Floral Co., long in the greenhouse and retail store business, recently has gone into the wholesale florists' supply line and is putting in a stock that will include practically everything in staple supplies direct from the manufacturers. Those interested are thoroughly conversant with the trade's needs through their long experience in the retail business and are seeking out the best source of supply for each item.

PHŒNIX ROEBELENII.

One of the plants driven out of the market by the war was Phœnix Roebelenii. Small quantities of this palm of rapidly advancing popularity were imported from Belgium before Germany made her now regretted rush, but most of the plants seen in American flower stores were of home production. The seed came from a far-away locality in northeast India and the last shipment which came out before war engrossed the attention of all the world was submarined in the Mediterranean. For more than three years American growers received no seeds of Phœnix Roebelenii. We shall get them again now, however, because the Federal Horticultural Board has decided, in its wisdom, that no harm can come to the American people through bringing in the nuts of the palm family.

California has proven a congenial place for the phœnix. It is grown outdoors or under slat houses there. The accompanying illustration is a view of a slat house partly occupied by Phœnix Roebelenii at the establishment of Jacob Dieterich, recently purchased by Roy F. Wilcox & Co., at Montebello, near Los Angeles. In the course of time southern California will be sending palms east in quantity, taking the place of Belgium and Scotland.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

A scarcity of flowers was noted in the market during the first part of last week and prices on nearly every variety of cut flower advanced over the prices of the previous week. Good carnations are scarce and are bringing as high as 65 cents per bunch. Other outdoor summer flowers advanced in proportion, while roses, of which there are exceedingly few of good quality, have gone up considerably. Ophelias were selling at $1 per dozen and Russells at $1.50 the early part of the week.

The aster crop is steadily gaining in volume and shipping has started. Wholesalers are getting 35 and 40 cents per dozen for good asters. So far the quality is good, the blooms being large and on long, sturdy stems. Chrysanthemums are also becoming more plentiful and the flowers are increasing in size. Golden Glows are now bringing $1.50 per dozen.

Gladioli are still in good bloom and have been excellent sellers this season.

Orchids are practically unobtainable, one florist stating that he was obliged to cut down an order for a dozen blooms the beginning of the week. Gardenias, too, are running low and the price on both these flowers has advanced. Retailers easily get $1.50 apiece for orchids and from 75 cents to $1 for gardenias.

Various Notes.

The United Flower & Supply Co. reports a good demand for shipping stock. Just now they are filling orders for roses and carnations for out-of-town trade. Early chrysanthemums, including the white, yellow and pink varieties, are

WHERE SHALL I TRADE?

With ARMACOST & CO., of course!

Easy to answer that if you have visited our plant and have become acquainted with us. If you haven't we will try to tell you some of the reasons that have caused Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, to come to be recognized as the best and most dependable wholesale house on the Pacific Coast.

WHY

BECAUSE we are large growers and strictly wholesalers—we do not compete with our customers.

BECAUSE our Florists' Supplies are obtained in large quantities from first hands, saving you in our cost price and transportation. A full line.

BECAUSE we grow 85,000 rose plants. All leading varieties. Flowers shipped to you same day cut.

BECAUSE we grow 8⅓ acres of greens. Successful shipments last winter as far east as Ohio.

Line up with headquarters when you start to buy.

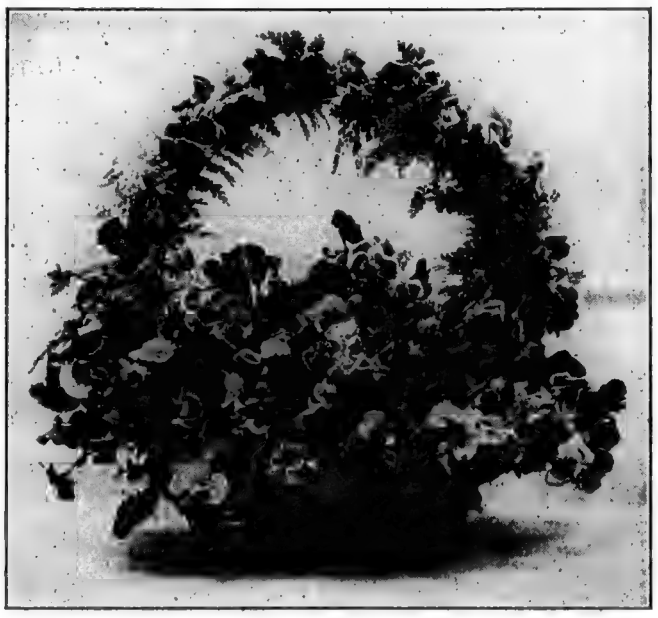
The Market.

The market is holding its own in comparison with former years, and no one has any excuse for being pessimistic. Good stock is scarce just at present, but it is getting better daily, and it will be only a short time until there will be plenty. Gladioli seem to be the strong feature on the market at present, and the prices are holding up well on the best varieties. There is plenty of outdoor stock to be had, but most of it does not hold up well and a great deal of it finds its way into the discard.

Various Notes.

A. F. Lalane has been taking a month's vacation on a sight-seeing trip through California, through the Yosemite Valley national park, to Lake Tahoe and through eastern Oregon, stopping occasionally at some of the famous fishing resorts, and finally arriving in Portland by way of Mt. Hood. Mr. Lalane purchased a Ford the day before he left. His trip covered over 3,000 miles.



James Forbes and William Fernberger were visitors in and around Vancouver, Wash., July 26.

Bert Clarke, of Clarke Bros., met with a serious automobile accident on the Columbia highway, July 29. Mr. Clarke was injured so badly that he is unable to be at the store.

John Feiden, Jr., of Feiden's Flower Shop, Great Falls, Mont., was a visitor in town last week.

Making vs. Buying Flower Pots

With one of our Concrete Flower Pot Machines, you can make much better flower pots than the clay ones, and at a fraction of the cost.

Not only can you save this expense, but you can sell concrete flower pots to other florists at a profit of 200 to 500 per cent. You can make

2½-inch Concrete Flower Pots for ¾c each
5 -inch Concrete Flower Pots for 1½c each
8 -inch Concrete Flower Pots for 4c each
12 -inch Concrete Flower Pots for 11¾c each

Our Concrete Flower Pot Machine will be on exhibition at the meeting of the Society of American Florists, Detroit, Mich., August 19, 20 and 21. If you are there, be sure to see it work. If not, send for booklet fully describing it.

FORMULA FOR GRASSHOPPERS.

I have a field of asters adjoining a hay field on one side. Grasshoppers are doing much damage to the asters. Is there any means of destroying the grasshoppers? F. M.—Mich.

The grasshopper pest is so common in some of the western states that many poison baits are employed there to save crops. The most effective one seems to be that which has come to be known as the Kansas formula. It is prescribed by the Department of Agriculture.

Take one pound of Paris green and mix, dry, with twenty pounds of bran. Mix thoroughly, but be careful not to breathe the dust. Then take two quarts of syrup of any of the cheapest grades, and add to it two oranges chopped up and the juice squeezed out. Put these two ingredients in three to four gallons of water and mix thoroughly with the bran and Paris green. The quantity of water should be enough to make a moist but not wet mash. The Department of Agriculture says the above quantity is enough to cover five acres of land, as it should be spread in small quantities, early in the morning. Farmers are advised to broadcast in the same manner that grass seed would be sown.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business is about holding its own, considering that the midsummer season is now at its height. Several heavy rains, minus electrical storms and wind, have lowered the extremely high temperature and brought some ideal summer weather.

Stock is coming along fairly well. Roses are better in quantity and in quality, selling at $4 to $12 per hundred. The supply of asters about equals the demand, selling as they come in. Excellent gladioli are coming in plentifully.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has returned from a week's visit in Philadelphia, where she met her two nieces upon their return from canteen service in France. Mrs. Williams' bookkeeper, Miss Emma Brunner, returned early last week from a two weeks' vacation at Wildwood, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. Langhans and their daughter, Miss Marion Langhans, returned July 29 from a week's sojourn at Cambridge Springs. They made the trip in their automobile.

Fred Burki and his son, Albert, passed through here last week returning from an automobile trip to Chautauqua lake, New York, where they spent a few days at the cottage of William A. Clarke, at Stow, opposite Bemus Point. They were accompanied home by Mrs. and Miss Burki, who left a week earlier to visit the Clarkes. Mr. Clarke will spend the month of August with his family.

Howard Hook, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., left July 26 in his touring car, accompanied by two friends, for Rye beach, Lake Erie, near Sandusky, O. They will remain there until August 28. Mr. Hook's sister, Miss Gertrude Hook, will leave September 1 to spend her vacation at Atlantic City.

Fred Kocher, Jr., son of Superintendent Fred Kocher, of the Bakerstown range of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., returned July 23 from overseas service and has resumed his former occupation as general grower. He was with the Motor Corps, 424th Supply Train, while abroad. He was in service about fourteen months.

Edward L. McGrath changed his vacation plans. Instead of motoring to the White mountains he spent a month at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, accompanied by Mrs. McGrath and their elder son, Howard O. McGrath, a student at Colgate University. The wife and son stopped at Washington for a visit. Mr. McGrath, whose health has been somewhat poor this summer, expects to return to the seashore for the month of September. Mr. McGrath's partner, Harry P. Langhans, left Saturday, July 26, with a party of friends, to camp and fish at Fairview, near the city of Erie. Later he will take the lake trip to Canada, stopping en route at Buffalo and Detroit, arriving at the latter city in time for the florists' convention.

Miss Sophia Glasier, bookkeeper for McGrath & Langhans, left August 1 for a three weeks' eastern trip to include Wilmington, Philadelphia and Washington. From Washington she will motor to Atlantic City with a party of friends to visit her mother. Paul J. Evans, a salesman for the same firm, recently spent a week with relatives near New

The Market.

The market held up well last week and, for this season, the demand has been good. As the heavy rains have decreased, the supply is better. Roses of all kinds are plentiful, but most of them are poor in quality; that is, small, short-stemmed and off-color. Saturday the street men reaped a harvest from these. There were plenty of them to be had, along Lexington street, in the original bunches just as they were cut—twenty-five to a bunch—for a quarter a bunch. The commission men thought it better to sell them for what they could get rather than to cart them to the dump Monday morning.

Gladioli, which, owing to the rains last week, were of such poor quality, and of which there was such a glut, have recovered and are not only in good supply, but of fine quality. Of course, there are still in evidence the old-time varieties, which do not sell at any price as long as the finer varieties are to be had.

Asters are beginning to arrive in good supply, but most of them are still short-stemmed. The white varieties are in great demand for funeral work. Fever-few and all miscellaneous flowers are in fair supply and as a rule sell well.

To sum up, the market is in a most satisfactory shape for August 1, and while no large orders have been reported, a steady demand keeps everyone fairly busy.

Various Notes.

Robert L. Graham met with an accident about ten days ago which has placed him on the inactive list. While superintending the rebuilding of two of his houses he sustained a fall, but did not pay any attention to it for several days. In the meantime his instep, which he had bruised, gathered, and he had to have it lanced. The doctors were afraid of blood poisoning, but Mr. Graham has now nearly recovered. He chafed under his enforced holiday, as Ferdinand Gerth and J. Harry Wagner, of the S. S. Pennock Co., have just returned from their vacations, which they spent together at one of the fishing shores on the Patapsco. If all reports are true, they are as good fishermen as they are flower salesmen.

Under the management of James L. Towner, the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. has taken on new life. The company has just remodeled the entire first floor and put a new front on the building. Mr. Towner reports business the best in the history of the establishment and is busy making arrangements for next winter. Mr. Towner is optimistic over the outlook for business. His idea, which is certainly a good one, is that next winter will be a repetition of last. It will not be so much a question of doing business as it will be of getting plenty of first-class stock to do business with.

Attention has recently been called to a new and likely field for some good florist. The new extension of the city limits, Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, is a fast growing section and just below this point, on Annapolis boulevard, there are two large cemeteries, in which quantities of flowers are used. This would insure a large Sunday business. On numerous occasions the boulevard has been crowded with people Sunday afternoons, most of them foreigners, and nearly every one carried a bunch of flowers. They are not expensive ones, but this class of people seldom go to the cemetery without flowers. Anyone who is thinking of opening a store would do well to look this field over. Tate.

The Market.

Lack of desirable stock has militated greatly against a satisfactory business in cut flowers. There has been no improvement in the class of flowers sent in during the last week or so, and the trade has had to rely mainly on home-grown stock to fill orders. The volume of the latter has been large, considering the season. As regards home-grown stock, tuberoses stand out prominently in quality and have been bringing around 50 and 60 cents per dozen wholesale. The crop is not large, but the quality is decidedly better than that of stock from outside points. Asters have been popular, but the quality does not come up to last year's. Dahlias are somewhat scarce. Spring-planted roses have been coming out. Gentians are selling well.

Various Notes.

Field work has been hampered by continuous rains. Labor is still scarce and none too competent. Chrysanthemums are coming along satisfactorily, but here and there the outdoor crop has suffered from too much rainfall.

The local meteorological office reports that from July 11 to the close of the month there were only four days here without rain.

The city is in the throes of an argument as to a fitting civic memorial of the war. Two out of many schemes are being discussed, one a public parkway connecting the two great parks of the city with their intermediate links, the other an auditorium. The bulk of opinion seems to lean towards the former. Its adoption naturally appeals to the florists and nurserymen.

Harry Papworth, president of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., and E. A. Farley, superintendent of the city park commission, expect to attend the S. A. F. convention at Detroit.

Fred I. Myers, for many years advertising and sales manager for Chris Reuter, has resigned to join the staff of the Chambers Advertising Agency, New Orleans. E. F.

vaudeville man wired, "Have you entertained my proposition?"

"No," General Pershing wired back, "your proposition has entertained me."

We have been on the firing line for more funds to complete our publicity program, necessitating the outlay of $100,000, and we have repeatedly mentioned the need of having plans made early enough to enable the committees to place copy in the best national mediums, to take advantage of positions, etc., but as yet we have only received $42,000. We still await the pleasure of the balance which will be necessary.

Now, the story of the manager's offer to General Pershing reminds me of the fact that we are still entertaining the proposition which permits every florist on the continent to contribute. And we will also say, as Pershing said, "Your proposition has entertained me." Because when our quota of $100,000 has been received, the dividends you will

The Market.

Local business was rather quiet last week, but the demand from out of town was good and helped to keep the market cleaned up fairly well. Supplies are not heavy. The stock is bringing fair prices.

The cut of roses is limited. Those that do come into the market sell readily. Easter lilies and rubrum lilies are in fair supply. Asters are fairly plentiful and are selling well. The cut of asters, however, is not so heavy as it usually is at this time of the year. Gladioli are in fair supply and, as a whole, are of good quality. They are selling well. Among other offerings are water lilies and snapdragons. Greens are fairly plentiful and are selling well.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard was about the market August 4 for the first time since he became sick a few months ago.

Ed. Bossemeyer, of C. E. Critchell's, returned from his vacation August 4, while Ed. Buschle's began on that date. The latter plans to spend his vacation at Middletown and Dayton, O.

Miss Claire Murphy and Lloyd Barnes, who is a steel inspector for the government, are to marry the middle of this month. Miss Laura Murphy left for the Cheneaux, August 4.

E. G. Gillett had some heavy receipts of gladioli and asters last week. They sold well.

Wm. Sundermann has signified his intention of attending the S. A. F. convention at Detroit. C. H. H.

Lynchburg, Va.—B. C. Farmer, 2109 Eighth street, who does a large business in vegetables and grows some flowers in hotbeds and coldframes, plans to build a greenhouse this autumn.

Cumberland, Md.—B. L. Gibbs, a member of the real estate and insurance firm of D. P. Miller & Co., who has been growing outdoor stock for the trade for seven years, has contracted for two houses, each 28x150, to be erected by the Lord & Burnham Co.

The Market.

Much to the delight of everyone, business is holding up well through the hot weather and every bit of available stock is being used. The weather has been so extremely warm and dry that much of the garden stock has suffered. A heavy rain and about thirty-six hours of moderate temperature, with the advent of August, gave outdoor plants a new lease on life. Gladioli from Colorado are being shipped in, as there is not half enough of the home-grown. Wholesale prices on gladioli are $6, $8 and $10 per hundred, according to quality. Roses, which are not plentiful, range from $4 to $10 per hundred. California asters are being received by some of the retailers, but the long journey makes them uncertain as to quality, though it can be said that some of the shipments have been remarkably good, considering the distance. Some tuberoses have been received from Texas and these have been in excellent condition.

Various Notes.

The wholesalers are busily engaged right now in house-cleaning. Noll, Pinehurst and Kusik are having their offices and workrooms painted and renovated throughout.

Ed Humfeld has begun to excavate for three greenhouses, near Independence, Mo. This was to have started July 1, but it was impossible to secure workmen and material for the buildings.

Among the recent visitors were Mrs. R. C. Hinz, Leavenworth, Kan., and Roy Murray, of Olathe, Kan.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has been offering some excellent sweet peas, which have sold as fast as they were received.

J. G. Eggleston has bought three small houses from E. G. Cheesman, of Rosedale, Kan., who sold out and is preparing to go to California. Mr. Eggleston intended to build some additions to his property at 4314 Pearl street, but when he found these houses for sale he decided to move them and make them into two houses, one of which will be about 13x73 feet and the other 20x90 feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Blake, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., were in the city recently on their way home from Monegaw Springs, Mo., where they had been spending a vacation.

Leon H. Archias, Jr., of Sedalia, Mo., was in the city two days last week in the interest of an exhibit he will have at the Missouri state fair, to be held in Sedalia the latter part of August.

Charles F. Edgar, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, and Sam Seligman, of Schloss Bros., New York, called on the trade last week.

William Day, who has had many years' experience in his line, is now in charge of the pot plant section of the Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, Mo. This will be one of the important departments of the business from now on. About 2,500 feet of glass will be added this fall. New employees are being added in all departments and preparations are being made for a big fall business.

Newton, Kan.—Charles J. Reeves, who has been in the market gardening business on a small scale, is erecting a greenhouse 20x100 feet.

Beatrice, Neb.—The Dole Floral Co. will increase the capacity of its range about twenty-five per cent. Two new greenhouses, each 36x100 feet, are to be erected and an extension, fifty-four feet long, is to be added to one of the present houses. The new work will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FIRST PAPER WHITES ARE IN.

There were 1,395 cases of Paper Whites and Romans on the Canada, which docked at Hoboken July 28. It was the first steamer to bring French bulbs this season. The consignees were:

	Cases
Bernard, Judae & Co.	446
Maltus & Ware	60
International Forwarding Co.	350
H. F. Michell Co.	174
Henry & Lee	120
Equitable Trust Co.	245
Total	1,395

The Patria, from Marseilles, followed the Canada into New York harbor by only a few days, and it is understood its cargo consisted principally of bulbs.

REFRIGERATION TARIFF.

The hearings of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed perishable tariff No. 1 are now in session in Chicago, having previously been held in western cities. The proposed tariff will not change freight rates at all. It merely places a charge for refrigeration service on perishable products. The rate of $5 per car, for an entire trip to any but the farthest western points covers the cost of providing a refrigerator or fully insulated car. Extra charges for other services will not affect the trade, who seldom require them.

EBELING LOSES SUIT.

The case of Rynveld vs. Ebeling was decided in favor of the plaintiff in the appellate division of the Supreme court. The suit involved an order of bulbs shipped f. o. b. Holland in unmarked cases to the agents of the Holland firm in New York. While the bulbs were en route Rynveld Bros. changed their agents on this side, and as a result the bulbs lay on the New York docks unclaimed and finally reached F. H. Ebeling, in Syracuse, in worthless condition, according to the defendant. A clause in the catalogue of the Holland firm, referred to in the order, stating that "the buyer assumed all risk on bulbs f. o. b. Holland," was upheld by the court in the suit brought by Rynveld Bros.

DANISH SEED DEVELOPMENT.

Big Increase in Trade Recent.

The development of the flower-seed industry has taken place in the last decade and especially during the last two years, because of the war. Firms in America, England and France that previously purchased flower seed from Germany have during the last two years tried the Danish varieties. As the Danish seed seems to have proven quite as good as the German, it is hoped that this export field will be enlarged. Among the varieties raised are: Aster, bartonia, calendula, California poppy, candytuft, chrysanthemum, clarkia, cynoglossum, forget-me-not, godetia, gypsophila, larkspur, lupinus, mignonette, nasturtium, nigella, pansy, poppy, strawflower and sweet alyssum.

Bulb Industry of Growing Importance.

Bulbs of tulip and hyacinth were first imported from Holland about twelve years ago, and the acclimated strains have proved unusually good for forcing purposes. The home market now consumes all the available supply, but it is hoped soon to have a surplus for export of a quality that will rival the Dutch originals.

As the flowers are grown only for seed or bulb production, there are extensive fields of them in bloom during the whole summer. The tulip fields in the spring are especially noteworthy and attract many sight-seers.

Exports Before and During the War.

Official statistics regarding the Danish seed exports are meager, but the following figures showing the business done by the largest firm in the district (and in Scandinavia) should convey a good idea of the seed situation there now and before the present economic unrest. In 1914 about one-third of the firm's total output was sold in Denmark and two-thirds exported. In 1918 five times as much was sold in Denmark as was exported, a large quantity being also put in storage. But only one-eighth as much was exported in 1918 as in 1914, as during the last two years seed exports have been practically prohibited, a special license being required for such seed as was sent out.

The amount of seed sold by this firm in Denmark in 1914 and 1918 was as follows:

	Sold in Denmark. 1914	1918
Seed.	Kilos.	Kilos.
Grass seed	1,350,000	1,750,000 per cent; to Norway, ten per cent, and to Sweden, ten per cent.

Recent economic changes, difficulties of transportation and governmental restrictious have completely changed this division. For instance, of the large amount of grass seed exported in 1914, fifty per cent went to Germany, thirty per cent to England, ten per cent to Switzerland and ten per cent to Norway and Sweden, while the small amount exported in 1917 and 1918 went all to England.

The future of the seed industry is uncertain, as the possibilities for export depend so much on the new order of things. Interest has recently increased as to the coöperative movement that has resulted in the union of all seed-producing societies over Denmark into one national organization.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Peterson Nursery, Chicago, Ill.—A large folder containing lists of the company's two specialties, peonies and irises. In addition to the regular stock of peonies, the offerings include a "bargain list of extra fancy peonies, varieties carried in limited quantities and some extra heavy sample plants." The company repeats the now famous guarantee, in force for the last ten years, to "replace with three every plant blooming untrue to description."

Saitama Engei & Co., Ltd., Toyono, Nr. Kasukabe, Saitama-ken, Japan.—Illustrated, 33-page catalogue of Lilium giganteum and other lily bulbs; bamboo stakes; plants, shrubs and trees, both fruit-bearing and ornamental; also seeds of trees, shrubs, flowers and vegetables. Many of the varieties of stock are of distinctively Japanese character. "Though Japanese lily bulbs are scarce," says the company, "we have large quantities."

Bolgiano's Seed Store, Baltimore, Md.—Summer and fall wholesale catalogue, "for market growers and truckers"; illustrated, forty-eight pages and cover. Flower seeds are included, but vegetable and farm seeds predominate. Considerable space in the book is also occupied by poultry supplies, fertilizers, garden tools and sundries.

Norwalk, O.—The W. C. Pressing Seed Co., which has large canning as well as seed interests, has planted a considerable acreage of gladioli this season for cut flowers and for bulbs.

Burlington, Ia.—The Burlington Willow Ware Shops reports that it has bought the Madison Basketcraft Co., Madison, O., a concern which manufactured along similar lines, for the purpose of increasing its output. Both factories will be run, the work being so divided as to obtain maximum production.

THESE bulbs can be kept dormant in pots all winter, or set 5 inches deep in a garden where the temperature is not lower than 10 degrees below zero. The flowers are pure white and have the most delicate fragrance. Fine for design work. Bulbs can be brought up and slightly forced in spring and will bloom in June, at a time when white flowers are scarce. They bloom outdoors through July and August. Flowers can be cut when bud breaks sheath and held in refrigerator; when brought out flower will bloom in 48 hours.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming

GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden Yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

Each Color Separate or Mixed

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seeds carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

J. A. Askew, formerly head of the Hyde Park Nursery Co., at Tampa, Fla., has opened a nursery on Broad Creek road, at Norfolk, Va.

M. L. Davey, the "expert" tree man, is a member of Congress. He regards the tree as the symbol of life, as the flag is the symbol of liberty.

Notice of the death of George Anderson, engaged in landscape and nursery work in Philadelphia for many years, appears in this week's obituary column.

The Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association held its annual outing July 31. The members visited the Harvard Botanical Gardens, at Cambridge, in the morning and later went in automobiles to Nantasket Beach and enjoyed a shore dinner.

HEARING ON REFRIGERATION.

The first consideration of the hearings on perishable protective tariff No. 1 was given by nurserymen last week when A. H. Hill, of Dundee, Ill., and Alvin E. Nelson, of Chicago, attended the sessions at the Hotel La Salle, in Chicago. The carriers occupied several days in presenting their side of the case. Opportunity for shippers to appear came later. It was the opinion of the representatives of the A. A. N., after conferring with attorneys at the Chicago hearing, that the proposed changes, so far as they will affect nurserymen, are rather to their advantage than to their disadvantage. If any action is thought to be desirable, it will be taken at the New York hearings, which begin September 2.

No change is to be made in freight rates. The proposed tariff concerns only the service rendered by the carriers in transporting perishable products. Refrigerator or fully insulated cars will be furnished for such products and charged for at the rate of $5 per trip. It is expected by nurserymen that this change will enable them to procure refrigerator cars without the delays hitherto necessary when the shipper had to wait his chance. The change will also substitute a uniform rate for the service in place of the uneven fees charged formerly.

YOUR SHARE OF THE CREAM.

Are You Getting It?

At the convention in June the American Association of Nurserymen voted almost unanimously to take over the organization for market development and the activities of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau. Every member of the association is therefore entitled to all the advantages that there are to be had from the publicity campaigns which the bureau has under way.

But this isn't the kind of a proposition where you just sit still, and have all the dividends handed to you on a golden platter.

What you get out of the work of the bureau will depend largely upon what you do yourself. The first and most result-producing action you can take is to make sure that the best newspapers in the territory in which you can sell are using the syndicated articles which the bureau is supplying free to newspapers.

We plan to supply at least 1,000 newspapers with these articles for this fall and next spring and summer. That is about three papers to every member of the A. A. N.

But to be sure that these articles reach the papers where they will do the most good, we must have the coöperation of you men who are selling nursery stock. Send in today a list of the five newspapers that you would like to have use these articles.

Send more if you want to; but send at least five. Give the names of the editors, if possible. Send the list to F. F. Rockwell, 220 West Forty-second street, New York.

The Other Side of the Coin.

Under the new arrangement, by which the association takes over the market development campaign, every member of the association will be paying his share of the expense of the market development campaign after June 1, 1920. But until then all will be sharing the advantages of the market development work alike.

Therefore the only just plan is for all to help pay for the campaign this year.

A good many new subscriptions to the market development fund have come in since the convention; and several others have been promised. But there are still a good many who have not yet coöperated to the extent of "saying it with a check."

Keep in mind this fact: The bigger

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Heavy rains during the last two weeks have caused floods in several parts of northern New Jersey and injured many plants growing in the open. This has affected growers of flower plants to some extent.

This is the season when the growers are carefully tending the chrysanthemum plants which they have placed in their greenhouses. Indications are that there will be a large yield during the coming fall. Prices will doubtless be as high as during last season, for the cost of all kinds of materials continues to be high.

Various Notes.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, report that business is keeping up well for the summer season.

Henry Hornecker, 77 Central avenue, East Orange, states that business is about normal for the dull summer period. The outlook for business this fall is good. R. B. M.

Growers, Attention!

We invite correspondence from growers of Rooted Cuttings and small Plants of all descriptions whose stock is of uniform high quality. Exclusive season affiliations will be made with specialists in any line in the eastern, central and western states in marketing co-operation.

The Market.

The market has been cleaning up well. Gladioli are arriving in quantity and clear daily, realizing from $4 to $6 per hundred, the quality being good. America, Niagara and Schwaben have the largest sales. Asters are a little more plentiful, some being of good quality, and sell readily. There are still a few carnations in the market. Good roses are short of the demand and the shorter grades have little call. Water lilies and Japanese lilies sell on sight. Outdoor stock is disposed of easily. Sweet peas were rather scarce last week. The market is well supplied with greens, asparagus and adiantum being plentiful.

Various Notes.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

SHALL HOUSES BE ELL-SHAPED?

I intend to build more greenhouses, on lot No. 2, as indicated in the enclosed sketch. In which direction would you advise running the first new house, in order to secure the best light for the growing of a general stock of plants? Would good light be obtained by building so as to form an ell at the back of the present houses, or would you advise running the new house in the same direction as the present houses, in lot No. 1? J. M. G.—Ont.

The sketch shows that the present houses run from northwest to southeast, and the lot upon which the new house is to be built permits running it either in the same direction, as a continuation of the older houses, or at right angles, thus forming an ell.

While it will not make a great deal of difference in actual practice, we would prefer, in case an even-span house is to be erected, to run it from northeast to southwest, or at right angles to the present houses. This would make it possible to equalize the sunlight on both sides of the house. For a three-quarter-span house the other direction would be preferable.

HEATING A VIRGINIA HOUSE.

I am building a greenhouse 18x40 feet with a 36-inch wood wall and a 36-inch glass wall. The roof is ten feet high in the center, with a three-quarter span and a southern exposure. Will you please tell me the best method of piping this house and what size pipe to use? I want to heat this house to 65 or 70 degrees when the weather is zero and would like to know the best make of boiler to use and how far the boiler must be below the greenhouse floor. Which is better, steam or hot water heat?

B. C. F.—Va.

For a house of the size described, to be heated to 70 degrees in zero weather, I should select a boiler rated for 750 square feet of hot water radiation. Hot water will be found to be more satisfactory than steam for heating a small greenhouse. The boilers advertised in The Review will be found satisfactory. I suggest writing for catalogues and prices on boilers of the rating needed.

The boiler should, if possible, be placed so that it will be entirely below the level of the returns, but it will suffice, with overhead flows, if the upper half of the firepot is as low as the returns.

I suggest the use of three 2½-inch flows, placing one on each plate and the other under the ridge. While fourteen 2-inch returns would be required to fully

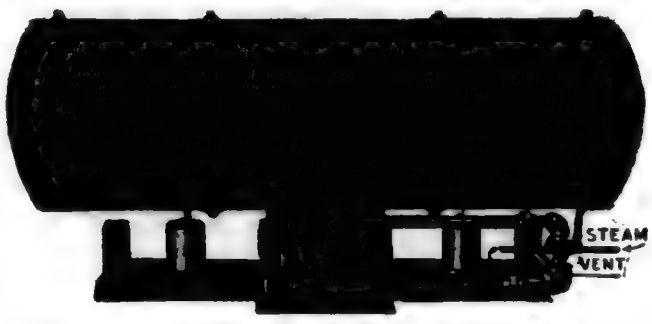
Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder

Saves Coal — Saves Money

Florists have enough troubles without worrying about their Boiler Equipment. Why not buy "The Greatest Coal Saver Ever Offered the Steam Plant?"

Eliminate Your Boiler Feed Pump Troubles by installing this wonder-machine, the Duplex Boiler Feeder, which is the only machine of its kind on the market, the result of years of special study in fuel economy and the problem of returning condensation into the boiler under pressure at a high temperature.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—showing front view of 8-inch machine, with duplex receiving and delivery check valves.



Place the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder above your boilers. Discharge all your high pressure traps directly into it. Any low pressure condensation you have in scattered buildings draw to a Farnsworth Condensation Pump, which will deliver it to the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder. This method forms a closed system that keeps the condensate under pressure and feeds it directly into the boilers at higher temperature, thus conserving heat units and saving coal.

We do not recommend our machines if we cannot make it worth your while to purchase—if you cannot save enough money to warrant the expenditure. We have saved 1 to 10 tons of coal per day in many plants, and the Farnsworth Closed System is rapidly forging to the front as the only up-to-date system for handling condensation under any known condition, in steam plants, in laundries, paper mills, soap factories, etc.

Farnsworth Closed System—The Perfect Boiler Feeder

It is our duty to save coal whether we can afford to waste it or not. A scarcity, together with higher prices, is the gloomy outlook for the florist. The Farnsworth CLOSED SYSTEM for returning condensation into the boilers under pressure at a high temperature will save coal, money and much labor.

Eliminate Your Piston Pumps — Save 90% of Steam Needed to Operate this Type of Pump.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feed Pump—rear view of 8-inch machine showing steam and vent connections, controlling alternate chambers.

One plant in a Pennsylvania manufacturing town installed Farnsworth Coal-saving machines. Engineers soon heard of Farnsworth success and now half a dozen mills are "Farnsworth Equipped."

STOP WORRYING ABOUT THE COST OF COAL!

IF YOU WANT A QUALITY BOILER FEEDER YOU WILL BUY THE FARNSWORTH MACHINE

Buy a machine on the "first-cost" principle and you will have some satisfaction at the time you pay your bill—buy a Farnsworth quality boiler feeder, either Simplex or Duplex type, and you may have to pay more than you would if you bought the average trap, but you will get full value, a useful, coal-saving boiler feeder, the only machine of its kind on the market, which will repay you many times for your wise investment and give you satisfaction all the time. Even with the additional features and improvements of Farnsworth boiler feeders, these machines compare favorably in price with the common traps. If you want a cheap trap, and it is a question solely of price and not quality or results, then you will not buy the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder, "the greatest coal saver ever offered the steam plant."

comply with the conditions, I judge that in southwest Virginia twelve returns would be sufficient. They would make a coil of four returns for each flow pipe.

HEATING A SOUTHERN HOUSE.

Please tell me whether a Sunray round heater, with a grate eighteen inches in diameter, will heat a greenhouse 18x64, five feet high to the eaves and eleven feet high to the ridge, with glass gables and three feet of glass in the side walls. The boiler is further described as follows: Heating capacity in gallons, 500; direct radiation, 400; heats water in tank from 50 to 150 degrees in four hours, or 25 degrees per hour.

T. B. W.—La.

While the boiler described would not heat a greenhouse 18x64 in more northern latitudes, we note that the inquiry is from Louisiana, where we infer that the mercury seldom drops below 20 degrees above zero, and much of the time in winter it is above 32 degrees at night.

The temperature needed in the house is not given, but there should be no difficulty in maintaining 60 degrees under the conditions named. We would use one 2½-inch main flow pipe, connected at the farther end of the house with three coils. Two of the coils would each consist of three 2-inch returns; the other coil would contain two returns.

RELATIVE SIZES OF PIPE.

Please inform us how much 2-inch hot water piping will be needed to heat a greenhouse 18x75, with 6-foot side walls and a height of twelve feet to the ridge. Also give us an estimate of the required amount of piping if the 1¼-inch size is used. The house will be sided with lumber on the north and will adjoin another greenhouse on the south. Both ends will be exposed. The temperature desired is 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero.

T. F. C.—Ind.

For heating the house with 2-inch pipe, we would use four flows and eight returns. In case 1¼-inch pipe is to be placed in the house, we would use it only for returns, running 2-inch or 2½-inch pipes as flows. Three 2½-inch or four 2-inch flows and ten 1¼-inch returns might be used, although we would prefer to use not less than 1½-inch returns.

With either 2-inch or 1½-inch returns, we would recommend three 2½-inch in-

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

The supply of gladioli is plentiful, as the beautiful assortments in the florists' windows prove. This is a good thing, as they make an attractive display. For the last few weeks the florist has had to depend on Boston ferns, zinnias, calendulas, phlox and a few asters to make his window attractive. Asters are also more plentiful now and some gorgeous dahlias are to be had. Carnations are a thing of the past for this season and sweet peas are scarce. Some good hybrid tea roses help out in filling orders for brides' and bridesmaids' bouquets. There is still a good demand for wedding bouquets.

The chrysanthemum plants in most of the greenhouses are in excellent condition. Some of the florists are still emptying the carnation benches, while other firms report that they are planting carnations. Some fine Boston ferns are to be had.

Various Notes.

W. H. Hogan, manager for James Horan & Son, is spending his vacation in New Jersey. This firm recently furnished the decorations for the wedding of a prominent young couple. An immense canopy was constructed on the lawn and was entirely covered with outdoor flowers. The ceremony was performed under this canopy. The aisle was composed of posts covered with gladioli and tied with bunches of chiffon. The bride carried a shower bouquet of orchids and valley and the bridesmaids carried bunches of pink roses.

Robert Hawkins had a window decoration last week which caused much favorable comment. It consisted entirely of vases of pink and white gladioli. Bunches of pink chiffon were fastened to the vases, and loops of the chiffon were draped diagonally from the center vase in the back of the window to those in the foreground.

George Pflomm is again running the greenhouses which he closed last winter on account of war conditions. One of them is entirely filled with Boston ferns and another with chrysanthemums. Mr. Pflomm reports that the plants are in good shape. He has planted 500 album lilies, which will be in bloom in a short time. He is receiving some splendid gladioli, which help out greatly in funeral work, of which there is an abundance.

At the Park Gardens asters are now abundant and of fine quality. Gladioli and the general run of outdoor flowers are plentiful.

James E. Beach reports a scarcity of flowers and an abundance of orders for designs for funerals. The houses are being prepared for carnation plants.

Julius Reck has some exceptionally good chrysanthemum plants, which promise a splendid crop later in the season.

Win $100.00 Three Times

WE want to buy the services and talent of some bright persons to aid us in the selection of phrases, telling of certain merits of Our Boilers. We claim for Our Boilers these qualities:

(1) Long Duration of Fire.—"It lets the Florist sleep."
(2) Saving of Fuel.—"What phrase shall we use for this?"
(3) Saving of Labor.—"What phrase shall we use for this?"
(4) Long Life without Repairs.—"What phrase shall we use for this?"

Long duration of fire, saving of fuel, saving of labor, freedom from repairs—are qualities and merits all founded and grounded on the distinctive construction of our boilers, namely: long draft travel, thorough absorption of heat, large and efficient flue surfaces.

We want to get the good advertising phrases, on the three points described above, and we are willing to pay liberally for them. We will pay $100.00 in cash for each of the phrases selected by us for advertising purposes. We will adopt one phrase (the best) applying to each feature. In the event of more than one person submitting a winning phrase, the full amount of $100 will be awarded to each. It is not necessary to own a Giblin Boiler to enter this contest.

The Market.

The supply of flowers is, in general, adequate for this time of the year. Good roses are scarce and the demand is heavy. Gladioli are approaching their full season and last week saw the first break in prices for this flower. Some sold as low as $2 per hundred, but they were culls, left-overs and common varieties. Mrs. Pendleton, Schwaben, Peace, Niagara and Panama bring good prices and some of the well-grown blooms are worth the prices asked. Asters became plentiful for the first time this season. Their abundance is due to poor quality rather than heavy cuts. Receipts to date are good for little more than design work. Carnations are practically out of the market and shipping orders go out every day incomplete.

Rubrum lilies, long and short, are in supply, and sell at $6 and $8 per hundred for the short and $12 to $15 per hundred for the long. No giganteum lilies are to be had.

All outdoor stock shows the effect of the recent heavy rains, which came just in time to save a quickly waning quality.

Various Notes.

Miss Rose Semler, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., has returned from her vacation, ready for the next season's business. Arthur Leidiger is now enjoying the recuperative elements of Cedar lake.

H. W. Koerner, Eschrich's Nursery, Kamp & Spinti and Alexander Klokner are making heavy daily consignments of gladioli and miscellaneous garden flowers to Gust Rusch & Co.

S. W. Pike, who grows gladioli and dahlias at St. Charles, Ill., was in Milwaukee August 2. As the guest of F. H. Holton, he made an automobile trip to H. W. Koerner's gladiolus fields and to the Brown Deer range of the Holton & Hunkel Co. Adam Zender, of Chicago, also paid a visit to F. H. Holton last week.

The Cudahy Floral Co. is taking the first cuts of Premier. They are sold before reaching the market.

E. J. Hamme, Wauwatosa, says business continues so good that he cannot get his car to the repair shop for its summer overhauling.

A baby daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McDonald July 29.

The Flower Terrace, in the store of Gimbel Bros., will be enlarged this month. This is the fifth time in four years that it has been necessary to provide more equipment and larger space.

The Market.

The summer vacation period is now at its height and, while only a few of the florists have taken their respite from business cares, hundreds of families of the community have left. Business, however, is about normal, notwithstanding the car strike, which has completely stopped all street car service in the northern part of Rhode Island for more than two weeks. The call for funeral work has fallen off to a considerable extent. Asters are only fair in quantity and quality, while gladioli are becoming more prominent every day.

Various Notes.

Jonas Brook, of Centerdale, is erecting a new greenhouse, 24x50 feet.

Miss Annie Peckham left last week for a two weeks' vacation in the Adirondacks.

Joseph Koppelman has taken a seaside cottage for his children at Winthrop Beach, Mass., for the rest of the summer. His sisters, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. N. Max, are with them.

Frederick Deitz was a business visitor in New York and vicinity last week.

Alexander J. Johnson, formerly of George H. Johnson & Son, now city forester of Providence, is chairman of the general committee in charge of the organization of posts of the American Legion, composed of men who have seen service in the war.

Miss Kelley, bookkeeper for J. E. Koppelman, has left for a two weeks' vacation at Hampton Beach, Mass.

Misses Lindgren and Cooper, of Littlefield's Flower Shop, Worcester, Mass., are spending their two weeks' vacation at Block Island.

The administrator of the estate of the late James Hay, of East Greenwich, has filed his inventory, showing a valuation of $1,614.13.

The Market.

There were a few brisk days for the florist last week, occasioned by a large quantity of funeral work and a few weddings. There was a noticeable increase in the supply of good stock, due to the heavy rainfall of last week, which broke a long period of drought. Sweet peas probably suffered the most from the dryness, although gladioli showed the effects considerably. There is a noticeable improvement in these flowers since the rainfall and gladioli are doing more to uphold the summer market than any other flower. A few asters appeared on the market last week. They were the first of the season, but the quality was poor. It is thought that the dry weather of the last few weeks has damaged the aster crop to a considerable extent. Outdoor snapdragons have improved in quality the last few days, showing longer stems.

Lilium auratum, or Golden Band lilies, are appearing in larger numbers and are being utilized almost exclusively for funeral work. The late hydrangeas are coming into bloom and are being used extensively to decorate the flower shops and for funeral work. Among the roses many varieties are not fit for sale. Russell, Ophelia, Columbia, and the new rose, Premier, are about the only marketable varieties. There is a good variety in outdoor stock, with calendulas, Shasta daisies, snapdragons, larkspur and gaillardias leading. Begonias are the principal blooming plants on the market at present, and retail from 75 cents to $1.50 each. Caladiums and other foliage plants are meeting with a good demand at $1 and $2 each. The supply of greens is sufficient for the trade.

Various Notes.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

A big crowd was watching the "human fly" crawl up a tall building in Schenectady, N. Y. "Publicity," observed Henry Eberhardt, of the Rosendale Flower Shop, adding, "and 'hanging on' is what the trade is doing at the present time, anticipating even bigger results in the future. Aerial weddings have not yet affected our business. I question whether the fad will become popular. Funeral work is fully up to the usual volume and, owing to the facilities offered by the F. T. D., we are sending more flowers by wire than ever before."

In the New York Times for July 25 S. S. Skidelsky rose indignantly to defend the reputation of his former home town, Philadelphia, from the attack of, apparently, a New Yorker. Mr. Skidelsky, who is now a resident of Manhattan, took advantage to show up the best side of the Quaker City, but overlooked the opportunity to boost it florally. This reminds me of a quotation from Richard Harding Davis' "Memoirs":

Some folks love the lilies that hide in mossy dells,
Some folks are fond of new-mown hay before the rainy spells,
But give to me the orchids rare that hang in Thorley's store
And in Fleischman's, at the Hoffman, and in half a dozen more,
And when I see them far from home, they make my heart's blood glow—
I long to be on Broadway, where the orchids grow.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

A PERMANENT COMPOUND

For Glazing, Reglazing and Repair Work on Greenhouses and Sash

NEBELASTIC is noted for its wonderful elasticity. It is lasting and durable. There's no need of going back on the same job where NEBELASTIC is once used.

NEBELASTIC will outlast putty from three to four times. It is the only product of this nature that can easily be removed after it has been in service for several years. Do not confuse NEBELASTIC with similar cements that get hard and brittle after a year or two of exposure. NEBELASTIC sets up tough, but never gets brittle.

NEBELASTIC contracts and expands with your greenhouses, thereby eliminating broken glass to a minimum. We and our agents sell NEBELASTIC on a money back guarantee. NEBELASTIC is black. It is put up in the following size packages:

1-gallon cans, 5-gallon cans, 35-gallon and 55-gallon steel drums. Our new patent glazing gun is given gratis with each 35 and 55-gallon container.

FERNS

BOSTON FERNS

Note; small stock is very scarce, and if you are in the market, it would be well to place your order and let delivery be made as soon as possible, for the market will not be much relieved. Here it is August and most growers are booked away ahead, especially on small stock.

It will be wise to place orders for next season's delivery early, as there will be one of the greatest fern shortages we have experienced. I cannot promise delivery on any certain date on ferns, but orders will be booked and filled in rotation. Do not wire order or write to send by return express, as that does not avail anything, for these goods must grow and are very, very scarce, and the only thing you can do is to get in order early and await your turn.

—some cold facts for hot weather

Study this picture closely, then stay with these ten cold facts a while—they're simply some Whys and Wherefores of the AGMCO Sash Bar Clasp.

1. A bar clasp that does not hold the bar securely on three sides and the end is a poor design. We know there is a strain on every house endways, and a bracket that merely acts as a rest for the bar is unsafe. It is not a bar clasp—it's a bracket.
2. It must be bolted on to the gutter or eave or it is not in place to stay. What slips on slips off.
3. The bolts must be galvanized if they are to last because these bolts are in a bad place where the rusting is quickest and where strength is needed most.
4. The bolts must be as durable as the clasp or the eave or the gutter. If the material is ¼ inch thick the bolt must be no less.
5. The bolts must be of sufficient size to carry any load that the bar must carry. A certain area of metal is needed and we know what it is.
6. There must be two bolts. One bolt allows too much play and twist and eventually the bar is loosened, your house leaks and the wooden bar rots.
7. It must be leak-proof on the end without the use of a plug of putty and white lead. Such brackets won't stay tight. How are yours made? Get out and look.
8. Where the bolts go through the gutter there must be no opening for water in or out. We use lead washers in a different way from all others—the only right way. It's a feature of our bar clasp.
9. It must give the end of the bar a solid rest, but so arranged that there will be no moisture collecting at this point. It's taken care of in a novel way in the AGMCO clasp.
10. The drip grooves in the bars must be unobstructed clear down to the end, so that condensation falls directly out of the end of the groove. No dirt or spider webs can clog our drip groove at this important point.

There are sixteen other reasons why you should have AGMCO clasps when you build.

Notice How Time Is Flying

Moninger material and service are in great demand and our factory is busy. It goes without saying that we cannot make deliveries as quickly as we could in the early part of the year. We can still take care of your order, however, if you act promptly.

Write, telegraph or telephone at once about your requirements.

Be sure to see us at the Big Convention in Detroit, August 19th, 20th, 21st.

THE H. C. L. sure is worse than Sherman termed of war. All we got to do, however, is to hustle the harder to meet it. Despite that bulbs will cost more than in the past, you must grow them—what is Easter without the traditional lily? Grow good stock and with systematic marketing your crop returns will surely make up for the increased cost of production. To start right, get Horseshoe Brand—Ward's Bulbs are the World's Best.

You Are Most Cordially Invited

OF course you are coming to the Detroit Convention. Coming, because the up-and-coming ones are coming. If there's no other reason for coming, it's worth coming just to exchange ideas with the other comers.

You never went to a Convention yet, that it didn't do you a lot of good, in a lot of ways you never realized until afterwards.

Take the question of greenhouse building. You are bound to pick up some worth-while ideas from the various exhibits.

And speaking of exhibits brings us to our cordial invitation, inviting you to drop around to ours—Come and make it your home spot during the Convention. Have a notion that besides the welcome that surely awaits you, there will be some things there that you will as surely welcome.

SEE RANDALL'S ROOM

At the S. A. F. CONVENTION

AT DETROIT

It will be worth the trip to see the Randall exhibit at the S. A. F. Convention next week. It will be the largest exhibit we ever have taken to a convention and it will include a complete line of

Supplies for Retailers and Growers

You will find the Randall Room in Arcadia Auditorium—a large separate room where you can inspect the merchandise at your ease, without being hurried or jostled. We have planned the comfort and convenience of the trade—come one, come all! You will not be urged to buy—only to look, to see for yourself the wonderful variety, usefulness and salability of the things Randall can supply when and as you need them.

And still we believe it is to every florists' interest to buy now. Merchandise will be scarce next winter and NOT cheaper in price. All signs point to advances. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

Dreer's Choice Double Herbaceous Peonies

With the present quarantine in force against the importation of nearly all kinds of bulbs, roots and plants, it will only be a short time when there will be a shortage of this class of stock and prices will naturally advance.

We are fortunate in having this season the largest stock of Peonies that we have yet produced, all in the finest commercial varieties, which we offer in strong divisions of three to five eyes each and in stock that is true to name. Ready for delivery after September 25th.

The Novelty Rose, Mme. Butterfly

E. G. Hill's gorgeous sport of Ophelia, which has been tried out for three years, and we are sure that it will supersede the parent; every tint is greatly intensified, gold, rose and cream. 50,000 already booked.

The thousands of growers who know the good points of Ophelia, will be glad to welcome the "Butterfly rose"; its culture is identical; everybody will know how to handle it.

It can be seen growing and will be distributed jointly by

THE HIGH COST OF BUILDING

The phase of the florists' trade that is most subject to the influence of conditions in other industries is that of greenhouse building. How the present industrial situation affects the interests of the grower who wishes to add to his glass is a matter of vital importance.

AFTER a prosperous season that has put money into the pocket of every florist, and in anticipation of a year that promises good returns for all the stock that can be produced, growers have been placing their orders for additions to their present glass area in the praiseworthy desire to increase their capacity in response to the demand. During the war everyone economized, for more reasons than one. Now that restraint is off and prospects seem excellent for the coming year's business, the natural result is that everyone who can, seeks to make up for lost time.

But the difficulty is that the manufacturing industries of the country cannot keep pace with the calls made upon them. Every trade feels the handicap. The greenhouseman who wants to increase his capacity has felt the effects of the industrial situation in two ways, the high cost of building materials and the difficulty of procuring them even at high prices. When he writes to the construction companies for estimates he finds the figures far different from those of two or three years ago, when he did his last building. When he has placed an order for construction or for materials, the delivery is quite a different matter from that of other days.

Back to the Source.

Yet the concerns of which the greenhousemen order are the same as in former years. The men with whom they deal are in general the same. One cannot find the reason for the change in them. The cause lies farther on; it lies in the industries upon which they are dependent for the materials of construction.

If one goes beyond them, to the sources from which their supplies come, one gets nearer to the root of the difficulties. There are in each of the industries which furnish materials for greenhouse building conditions that explain the situation which the grower faces when he adds to his glass area.

Familiar himself with labor difficulties, the greenhouseman realizes to some extent what other industries are up against in the matter of help. And that problem is perhaps the biggest of all in the industrial fields. Raw labor is scarce, and skilled labor is scarcer. The men who left their occupations during the war did not all go back to them; many, many did not. The workmen who have been hired to replace them have not had time in the few months since the armistice and the beginning of demobilization to acquire the skill of the men who left. Moreover, in many cases men cannot be obtained to take the places of those who left. Factories and mills are simply short-handed, and cannot work at their full capacity, even though orders pile up at prices which make it worth while to pay high for labor if it could be obtained. The country lacks nearly 7,000,000 men in the labor market, according to government statistics. If, out of a population of 110,000,000 people, one places the number of workers as high as 40,000,000, the percentage of loss is an exceedingly heavy one. Mills and factories cannot work at full capacity because they are short-handed; and when they can obtain sufficient help the work is much slower because the present workmen are lacking in the skill the old ones possessed.

Especially are these conditions felt in the lumber industry. And that is the one which is the chief source of difficulty for greenhouse builders just now. The mills have more business than they can possibly take care of. Those who have the largest and easiest orders are served first. If there is any difficulty, one's order is not filled at all. Big interests pay cash at the mills for their orders. Special orders for greenhouse material must wait. The construction company which gets a few carloads of random lots is lucky. And the prices; compare them with those of 1916. In bench lumber, pecky cypress is $38 per thousand feet as against $18 three years ago. No. 2 common bench lumber which cost in 1916 $22 is today $50. And 1½-inch tank cypress which was then $49 has gone to $97.50.

A similar set of conditions obtains in the steel industry also. The biggest source of annoyance to the greenhouse trade is not the rise in price from $1.10 to $2.45. The steel mills prefer to turn out the easiest sorts of work, especially in large quantities. In that way can they get the most out of their unskilled or little trained help. Now that general construction work is being resumed, the mills are not particularly anxious to roll the special sizes that greenhouse builders require. In comparison with other kinds of orders, such jobs are too small and too difficult to be attractive when there are plenty of the other kind. Dates of orders sometimes give precedence, but not always.

The Glass Market.

Complications enter into the glass market. The cost, again, is only part of the tale; $6.25 is a stiff advance over $2.50 per box, but one would be glad to get it at that price if it were up to requirements. Lack of skilled labor and rush orders for large output cause difficulties here also. An even grade, without spots that will play havoc with the plants in the benches beneath, is hard to secure, even from the better factories. Carloads must be examined with great care, for sometimes, after an order has been filled, the glass is not suitable for greenhouse use. In addition, a strike of warehousemen, which compelled the glass dealers to refuse carloads from the mills, for fear of damage in attempting to unload it, has held up orders.

THE CONTRAST IN COST

Cement, per barrel	2.00	3.90
Paint, per gallon	1.70	3.50

Pipe is taking a turn for the better. A few months ago it soared to $105 a ton. Now it is approximately $77, about twice the cost, $39, in 1916. The outlook for deliveries is much better, also.

Hinges Not to Be Had.

Hinges are small things, but quite essential in greenhouses. Last year, when it was uncertain what conditions would be in another twelve months, no one cared to invest heavily in them, and hardware concerns did not stock up in greenhouse sizes. Now stocks continue short, because the manufacturers give large orders of common sizes preference, and because labor conditions have caused a decrease in productions. Deliveries are from three to four months behind.

Cement is now $3.90 a barrel, as compared with $2 in 1916. As building activities increase, the demand for it grows and lately has been heavy indeed.

The item of paint is no inconsiderable one, when one compares a present cost of $3.50 a gallon with that of $1.70 in 1916. These prices, like all those in this article, are not exact to the cent, but are approximately correct, precise enough for comparison, which is the purpose of quoting them.

The light that these facts give the grower who has been unsure on the score of erection plans enable him to see what conditions control the present situation. There is no escape from the high cost of living and the high cost of building. The only solution to the latter is forethought—getting plans under way promptly and putting one's order in early. Then there is time to spare for unavoidable delays. From present prospects there is little likelihood of lowered prices, and delay aggravates rather than assists matters. "Watchful waiting" is not so popular or profitable a slogan as some have thought. Prompt action has supplanted it.

THE RETAIL FLORIST

AUTO MEN EAT AT AQUARIUM.

At the annual banquet of the officers of the Dodge Bros. Motor Car Co., Detroit, the table decoration was in the novel form of an aquarium. The center of the table was a tank, sixteen feet in diameter and two feet deep. It held approximately 500 gallons of water and contained nearly 500 fish of various colors and sizes, loaned by the city aquarium. Several ducks maneuvered about the surface of the tank. The guests were able to look into the mirror-like aquarium.

A beautiful effect was created by an electric fountain of various colored lights in the center, embellished with orchids, water lilies, ferns and cyperus. Surrounding the aquarium was a table about three feet wide artistically arranged with red roses, pansies and maidenhair ferns.

Inside the table, surrounding the tank, was a miniature automobile drive of crushed stone, on which were miniature automobiles and dolls representing pedestrians. Inside the drive was a 2-foot slope of green moss, on which were groups of dwarf euonymus representing shrubbery. Illuminating the automobile drive were small Japanese lamp-posts and at 2-foot intervals were candles. In addition to this lighting effect, four large calcium lights, hidden behind screens of latticework covered with wild smilax, cast different colored lights, proving a wonderful adjunct to the success of this unique decoration. The flashing of the lights was carried out by a telephone system under the direction of the chief lighting director of the automobile company. The ceiling was practically invisible, being covered with smilax, lyrata branches and palm leaves. The side walls were screened with latticework covered with the same materials. Statues, loaned by the art museum, and several boxwoods were used to good advantage. Overhead were hung several Japanese lanterns, giving the whole scheme an oriental effect.

To Albert (F. T. D.) Pochelon belongs the credit of the conception of this unique decoration and it was carried out under his direction by the L. Bemb Floral Co.

Showing his response to the front-page article in The Review for July 24, headed "Where Are the Summer Windows?" H. L. Thompson, of New Brighton, Pa., sends in the description of his summer window which appeared in the Beaver Valley News August 8:

"H. L. Thompson, the Third avenue, New Brighton, florist, has one of the most unique, to say nothing of beautiful, displays of the florists' art, in the display window of his store, that has delighted the eye of passers-by for many a day. The display fills the entire window and represents a country estate, with a nice bungalow home, summer houses, pergolas, driveways, lakes, woods and flower gardens, bridges and all that goes into the making of a rural estate. Flowers and plants are used profusely in the construction of the display and it is attracting much favorable comment.

"On the left of the lake is a complete reproduction of a greenhouse with growing flowers and plants inside.

"One of the most interesting features is the Italian garden with its formal hedges and flower beds, its miniature seats and rose-covered trellises. The scene is completed by the rock garden and bridge and the miniature Swiss summer house on top of the hill."

F. T. D. TO MEET AT DETROIT.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will hold a meeting Tuesday, August 19, at 9:30 a. m., at the Arcadia Auditorium, Detroit. The chief topic will be the program for the annual business meeting of the association, to be held in Buffalo, October 14 and 15. Three special prizes for the best F. T. D. window displays at Buffalo are already listed, two $100 cash prizes and a $150 electric fountain as the third.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

THEN AND NOW.

In representing my firm, I travel mostly through the south. I consider that the coming part of the United States. To give an illustration of what the southern florists have had to overcome, I want to repeat what John Scott, of Huntsville, Ala., told me.

When he went to Huntsville, the small-town people only bought flowers for funerals. To buy flowers for table decorations or to wear was considered a sin and an extravagance. Mrs. Scott had been sick and a woman friend had been exceedingly kind to her during her illness. It happened that a member of this woman's household became ill and Mrs. Scott, remembering her kindness, sent a boy to the house with a bouquet of flowers. The colored girl opened the door and when she saw the flowers, cried out:

"Boy, for Gawd's sake, take them flowers back. The man ain't dead yet."

Remember this happened not so many years ago and is a fact. Now the young sports are buying 10-dollar corsages for their best girls. A. F. Eilers.

PEPPER FOR GREEN WORMS.

I use common black pepper, the same as is used at the dinner table, for the green worms that infest mignonette plants through the fall months. I take the 2-ounce can and sprinkle the pepper on the plants when they are small. Usually a 2-ounce can will take care of a bench 4x100 feet. As the green worm is the same as the cabbage worm, the pepper remedy works equally well on both.

I have heard florists say that they would grow mignonette if they did not have to spend so much time picking the green worms. I have mentioned black pepper to them, but they seem to think it a joke and pass it up.

Thos. H. Hall.

TO FURTHER THE CAMPAIGN.

The work of the national publicity campaign of the S. A. F. has no doubt proved a wonderful stimulus to the use of flowers for all purposes.

A campaign of this character naturally invites thought and ideas from those directly interested. Recently while I was touring in the rural districts through some wild and woolly country devoid of bright and showy flowers, the thought occurred to me that here was a splendid opportunity to put before the public our slogan, "Say It with Flowers." This could be done by the planting of brightly colored flowers that are easily grown, such as poppies and marigolds. Along the roadsides and streams are numberless places which could be made little beauty spots by the planting of proper flowers, not forgetting a little sign in the background with our slogan. As to the effect, there is no doubt about it.

A campaign of this character might be taken up by local florists, who could invite the aid of local horticultural and civic societies. A few pounds of seed and a few days' time in the spring will do the trick. Perhaps Secretary John Young could induce the S. A. F. directors to adopt and furnish a standard sign for the purpose.

To me this idea appeals strongly and I respectfully submit it for consideration at the coming convention.

William E. F. Weber.

HOW TO SOW FINE SEED.

Often the complaint is made that fine, minute seed, such as that of primula, cineraria, calceolaria and gloxinia, does not germinate. How to sow these seeds is of such vast importance that a few suggestions, primarily intended for the layman, may be of interest to florists.

The best receptacle in which to sow these seeds is a shallow box, which need not be more than two inches deep, with holes in the bottom through which water will drain quickly. These boxes should be filled with finely sifted sandy soil which has been run through a sieve as fine as mosquito netting. The soil should be mixed with an equal amount of leafmold, also sifted as fine as possible.

The object is lightness of soil, for if such tiny seeds are sown in a stiff soil, the germ, though of strong vitality, is too weak by nature to find its way through.

After filling the boxes with the proper soil to within a half-inch of the top, pat it down with a smooth board until it is as level as it can be. Sow the seed carefully over the surface, distributing it evenly. Sift with a sieve just so much soil over the seed as will barely cover it lightly, and no more, pressing it down again with a smooth board.

Then take a sprinkling-pot with the finest kind of a rose and shower the soil with a spray. Cover the box with glass until the seeds have germinated, keeping it at a temperature as near 60 degrees as possible at night, and spray only when the surface appears dry.

As soon as the seed leaves have developed, the plants must be transplanted carefully in light soil, similar to that used for the seeds, at a distance of from one to two inches apart, also in boxes. Not only will this prevent them from damping-off, but they will become much stronger. In a few weeks, they will be strong enough to plant in 2¼-inch or 2½-inch pots. C. R. Gloeckner.

BEST PEONIES FOR IOWA.

Will you please tell me what are the best and most profitable peonies to grow in central Iowa for cut flowers?

R. W. T.

We would suggest the following peonies as suitable for growing in central Iowa: White, Festiva Maxima, Monsieur Dupont and Couronne d'Or; pale pink, Delicatissima and Venus; deep pink, Monsieur Jules Elie and Docteur Bretonneau; red, Felix Crousse and Delachei. W. A. Peterson.

GROWERS' GLEANINGS

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS.

"The public wants Easter lilies at Easter," observed William Scott, of the Wm. Scott Co., Buffalo, N. Y., "and without them it would be like Christmas without snow. We intend growing our usual number, despite the advanced prices, figuring that many of the retailers will drop out and there will be a proportionate call from those who continue in the game. We handle 9 to 10s, which will cost, allowing for a fifty per cent shrinkage, 40 cents per bulb, adding the cost of growing. Last Easter we sold every bloom we had at $1 per bloom and we figure, at this price, it will be still a profitable item to handle. Our experience is that it does not pay to grow either a smaller or larger size." Several houses of the company's range are devoted to anemone-flowered chrysanthemums, Mrs. E. B. Godfrey and Mary Pope. Both of the last-mentioned blooms are desirable, but the latter is far preferable to the former. It blooms fully three weeks earlier and the color being similar, a lovely pink, anyone with limited space will do well to grow this alone. It grows with three or four bunches to a plant and an average of ten flowers to a spray. The method of culture is similar, in space given, to the carnation. The wires run lengthwise, crossed with twine, the first span one foot and the second and final span about three feet from the soil. From both growers' and retailers' point of view, a plant of four bunches at 35 cents per bunch is much better than a single bloom, such as William Turner, which needs as much, if not more room, and which, even if a perfect bloom, will not bring $1 per head. White Mensa, Golden Mensa, Golden Climax and Wilcox complete this desirable list.

Among other items of interest are poinsettias received from California in June in a dormant state. They were planted in solid beds and kept moist, with the result that two crops of cuttings have been taken off and they are doing well. The only trouble is that cool weather is apt to cause the plants to fall off. This must be avoided by firing up if necessary; the temperature should be 70 degrees.

Begonia Glory of Cincinnati and cyclamens are promising well for Christmas. The latter are in 5-inch pots, but will soon be transferred into 7-inch azalea pots. The plants are well sprayed to keep down mites.

"We learned one thing during the coal stress," observed Mr. Scott; "we produced a fine lot of geraniums in the houses that were closed down, following the crop of chrysanthemums at Thanksgiving, and we may follow that plan this year." M.

GET AFTER THE ANTS

COMBATING THE WHITE ANT.

How Damage Is Done.

The serious damage which white ants, or termites, cause to growing plants, as well as to foundation timbers and the woodwork of buildings, can be prevented. Injury to trees and shrubs, growing crops or other vegetation is only occasional and local and usually occurs because of the presence of decaying wood.

"White ants" are not true ants, although they are superficially antlike and live in colonies made up of different forms or castes, and are social insects. In these nests, or colonies, both wingless and winged mature individuals are produced. The grayish-white, soft-bodied, wingless "workers" are the destructive form. These workers make the excavations and enlarge and extend the colony as this becomes necessary. They live underground, shun the light and are, therefore, rarely seen.

White ants are essentially wood destroyers and live in nests in the wood of dead trees, decaying logs, or stumps in the forest; in the foundation timbers of buildings, fences, or other structures of wood in contact with the ground; or in a labyrinth of underground passages in the earth, usually underneath wood or other vegetation. An average colony contains several thousand individuals.

The ants live in wood which is in contact with, or can be reached from, the ground. The workers are able to travel comparatively long distances through subterranean galleries in search of wood and in extending their colonies, and usually gain entrance to buildings from colonies outdoors. Infestation of the interior woodwork is effected from underground tunnels to and up through moist or decayed foundation timbers. Any wood construction in contact with the ground is especially liable to attack by white ants.

Injury to Nursery Stock.

Termites occasionally injure living trees and shrubs. In Florida they have caused considerable damage to newly planted groves of orange trees, having eaten away the bark about the collar and root and completely girdled the trees. Similar damage by white ants has been done to other fruit trees, such as apple, peach, pear, cherry, plum, apricot and lemon, especially in the southern states and in California; and also to pecan, chestnut and walnut trees. Such damage is more common in the new soil of recently cleared woodland containing old decaying stumps or much humus.

In cities and elsewhere, a great variety of shade trees are injured by white ants, the insects infesting the roots and the heartwood at the base of injured trees. Sometimes the infested trees are plastered with earthlike tubes or galleries.

There are numerous records of termite injury to young fruit and nut tree seedlings in nurseries, to other nursery stock, and to young trees planted in recently cleared ground or soil rich in humus. The injury, however, has been only occasional and not extensive. The stock is usually attacked at a scar, where the roots have been injured or cut off, or at a graft, as cleft-graft apple stock.

How Plants Are Attacked.

White ants injure a variety of shrubs and flowers in gardens and greenhouses. Heavily manured flower beds are a source of infestation to the stems of flowers as well as to the woodwork of houses. In greenhouses old label sticks, the wooden uprights supporting wooden benches set on or in the ground, and the wooden bench bottoms and plant pots are often attacked by white ants, and this leads to subsequent attack of the growing plants.

In the greenhouse insect investigations of the Bureau of Entomology, carried on at Washington, D. C., records have been made of serious injury to many plants grown under glass. Heliotropes, begonias, bedding geraniums, carnations, chrysanthemums and roses have been found to be seriously injured by white ants. One hundred and eighty out of 1,000 heliotrope plants were killed the first week after being potted from the seeding pans. As many as seventy-five white ants have been found in a 4-inch pot of heliotrope. The insects come up through the ground and form dirt galleries over the supports, or burrow up through the wooden bench legs and run galleries the full length of the wooden benches. They enter the soil through the drainage holes of the pots and eat out the main stalk of the root, killing the plant quickly.

Prevention of the Damage.

Since white ants are difficult to eliminate from the woodwork of a building when once they are established, every precaution should be taken to prevent their gaining an entrance.

In order to prevent the insects from reaching the woodwork of buildings from their nests in the ground, the foundations should, where possible, be entirely of stone, brick or concrete. Where stone or concrete foundations are impracticable, timber impregnated with coal-tar creosote should be used. Untreated beams should not be laid on the earth or imbedded in moist concrete, since they will rot, even if they do not become infested. Complete dryness of foundation timbers is an important means of rendering buildings safe from attack by white ants.

In the construction of greenhouses, iron frames and concrete work should be used in place of woodwork wherever possible, as this woodwork is often seriously injured by termites, owing to the warm, moist atmosphere maintained throughout the year. The wooden uprights supporting the wooden plant benches should never be set on or in the ground, but should rest on stone,

CLUB DOINGS

WASHINGTON'S FLOWER WEEK.

At a recent meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington the question of having a public flower show this fall was brought up. Discussion of the subject finally brought us around to the question: Why cannot we, in the florists' trade, do what the automobile dealers did for themselves with the Automotive week last spring? Automotive week was held in Washington and, I understand, in a number of other cities. During the period all one could see in the papers, practically, was automobile matter. The stores were all decorated; some of them gave out souvenirs and they certainly made a big splurge.

The club decided to have a "Say It with Flowers" week in Washington October 5 to 11. Every store is to be dressed up specially for the occasion. Myriads of flowers are to be shown. To set an example of "Say It with Flowers," we propose to give thousands of blooms to hospitals and for similar purposes. In fact, we propose to have every florist in town push, advertise, talk and do everything except eat flowers during all that week.

We believe that we can not only increase the demand for our product, but that we can go into new homes and create a demand where there has been none heretofore. We think that this is a capital idea and a big one. We offer the suggestion that the different cities throughout the country take up this idea and make our "Say It with Flowers" week general among the cities throughout the country.

Accordingly we herewith enter Washington, D. C., as Number 1 in the "Say It with Flowers" week for the autumn of 1919. Z. D. Blackistone, Pres.,
Florists' Club of Washington.

CLEVELANDERS FOR BROWN.

At its meeting August 4, the Cleveland Florists' Club placed on record its unanimous endorsement of F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., for the office of vice-president of the S. A. F. for the year 1920. This action was taken because the annual convention of the national society will be held in the Sixth City next year and it might well be considered as the initial step in the direction of making the Cleveland meeting an epoch-making event in the progress of the organized trade. The local florists appear to appreciate the importance of details and evidently believe in starting at the beginning.

It has long been the custom of the S. A. F. to select a vice-president from among its members in the city of the next convention, the wisdom of which is obvious. The Cleveland club, desirous of having its most influential member and most indefatigable worker selected for this important office, deemed it wise to register its convictions in the matter, feeling that its choice would have a potent influence in the naming of officers at the Detroit meeting next week.

A year ago at St. Louis, two Detroit florists were put in nomination for the vice-presidency, and although both were gentlemen of rare talents and eminently worthy of the honor, this action betrayed a lack of unity among Detroit tradesmen which, we pride ourselves, does not exist in the Sixth City. With the view of avoiding a repetition of that occurrence, the Cleveland Club has spoken firmly and unanimously for one of its members and modestly expects its voice to be heeded. This spirit of harmony is the secret of the success of all trade activities in the Sixth City and is the magic by which the big things are accomplished with ease.

Perhaps the greatest single lesson to be acquired from the Cleveland convention of 1920 will be the splendid results achieved through the perfect functioning of organized effort. While there is at times an honest difference of opinion and there occur occasionally disagreements upon minor matters, upon questions vitally affecting the welfare of the trade a singular unity prevails in the councils of the Sixth City florists. Harmony is indeed the watchword; and we can adduce no better proof thereof than the unanimous endorsement of one of its members for vice-president of the S. A. F. for next year. Mac.

CANADIANS IN CONVENTION

TORONTO CONVENTION OPENED.

First Day's Attendance Large.

The twenty-second annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association opened at Toronto Tuesday morning, August 12, with an attendance which rewarded the enthusiasm and efforts of the local florists in behalf of the meeting. The Toronto florists had been busy for weeks to make this first post-war meeting of the organization stand out in the history of the Dominion conventions.

Both the Retail Florists' Club and the Gardeners' and Florists' Association put their best energies toward bringing a banner attendance of Canadian florists to Toronto this week. Their executive committee in charge of the convention preparations was made up of the officers of the two associations. H. G. Dillemuth, chairman of the committee, is president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and vice-president of the Retail Florists' Club. Alexander Simpson, secretary, acts in that capacity for the former club. J. J. Higgins, superintendent of exhibits, is financial secretary of the Retail Florists' Club. The live wires, it is plain to see, had the work in their hands and they did it well.

Weather favored the convention and the number of visitors grew larger and larger through the opening day.

A flying visit was made by President J. F. Ammann, of the S. A. F., and Secretary John Young, accompanied by Philip Breitmeyer and Albert Pochelon, from Detroit.

T. Dabney Marshall, of Vicksburg, Miss., was a far-traveled visitor at the convention.

Trade Exhibits.

Delay in getting goods through the customs hindered the staging of some of the exhibits in time for the opening of the convention. As fast as this obstacle could be overcome, however, the displays were set up and showed to good advantage. The fact that the meeting place and exhibits were under one roof, at the Prince George hotel, was of great convenience.

The supply houses, two from Chicago, the A. L. Randall Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co., and one from Philadelphia, the M. Rice Co., had their displays set up at the time of opening. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; R. J. Irwin, New York, and George B. Hart, Rochester, were delayed by the customs.

Local exhibitors were J. A. Simmers, Ltd., showing garden and florists' supplies; Carl Grobba, of Grimsby, who had a fine exhibit of ferns, and A. Gilchrist, of North Toronto, who staged a splendid display of gladioli, in which he specializes.

Opening Session.

The first session, Tuesday morning, August 12, was, after the formal opening ceremonies, taken up chiefly with the officers' reports and discussion of them. Reconstruction was the chief topic. In this connection President George Douglas said in his address:

"Now that peace is declared and we have turned our thoughts to reconstruction, I feel that today we, while in session, should consider bringing about a reconstruction that will make for unity of the branches in horticulture, and advance the trade, and go out to this great country with a message of enthusiasm and encouragement for others.

"We have come to the time when we as horticulturists, have to set an ideal for our coming men. I recommend that a committee of outstanding horticulturists be appointed to draw up a standard to be studied, in order that a correspondence course may be started and young men may stand examination and secure a certificate from the Canadian Horticultural Association, with the letters F. C. H. A. I have no hesitation in saying that with this ideal set, our young members will improve in work and knowledge and we will thereby add to our membership men of the highest standard.

"I recommend that this association have a convention of not less than three days, to be divided as follows: One day for the grower, one day for the retailer and one day for the private gardener. The executive committee should be selected from those branches.

Action on Embargo.

"To further horticulture, I recommend that a committee be appointed to interview the general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition to the end that we have a representative on the board to look after horticulture. I am pleased to report that the authorities in Ottawa are interested in the movements taking place in regard to the embargo of the United States on stock from Europe, which went into effect in June. Professor C. G. Hewitt has communicated with me, asking to have a meeting of nurserymen, seedsmen and florists to discuss the effect it will have on Canada and to find ways and means to overcome the difficulty. I have forwarded to Professor Hewitt the names of our committee to meet in the headquarters of the convention while in session here."

The committee which met to confer with the Dominion entomologist, Professor Hewitt, during the convention was composed of: J. H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill; H. Simmers, Toronto; C. Craig, Ottawa; W. E. Groves, Hamilton, and W. C. Hall, Montreal. Since a great proportion of the plant and nursery stock which came to Canada from Europe passed through the hands of New York importers, Quarantine No. 37 necessitates new measures of procuring the stock which it shuts off.

Secretary-Treasurer's Report.

Herbert J. Eddy, in his report as secretary, told of the conferences held with the fuel controller by the committee appointed at last year's meeting, and laid to their efforts the ability of the florists to get as large a supply of coal as they did. In reporting the executive committee's meeting, he laid stress on the efforts of the Toronto florists in so ably preparing for the meeting.

As treasurer Mr. Eddy reported receipts of $170, the dues of eighty-five members, which, with the balance in the bank, made a total of $330.01. Expenses totaled $221.95, leaving a cash balance of $108.06.

Papers and Discussion.

The afternoon and evening were devoted to papers and discussion. George Thompson, of Toronto, and W. C. Hall, of Montreal, led the discussion on private gardening.

W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., made a decided impression by his speech in the talk which followed.

W. R. Cobb, general sales manager of the Lord & Burnham Co., Irvington, N. Y., delivered a talk on "Modern Greenhouse Construction," illustrated by lantern slides.

In the evening W. F. Harris, of Buffalo, was the speaker on "Landscape Gardening and Hardy Shrubs," and W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, on "Coöperation."

Retailers' Session.

The second day, Wednesday, August 13, was taken over entirely by the Retail Florists' Club of Toronto. A questionnaire had been sent out to florists all over Canada asking opinions on the organizing of a proposed Dominion Retail Florists' Association. The questions. which formed the basis of this discussion covered more than merely the proposed organization, some of them indicating matters of policy which would be the field of the organization's work. The queries of the latter sort put in the questionnaire were:

Plase state if you are a retailer, grower, or both.
If you carry on both lines of business, have you a retail store away from your greenhouses?
Do you sell retail at your greenhouses?
If you sell retail at your greenhouses, do you protect the retailer by getting retail prices?
Do you carry on any other line of business in connection with the selling of flowers?
If so, what other lines do you sell?
Have you refused to fill orders for retailers whose credit you know nothing about?
Have you ever lost money on orders filled for other florists in the Dominion of Canada?
Are you willing to allow twenty per cent discount on interchange of orders?
Are you in favor of coöperative advertising and publicity?

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The light demand experienced through the whole of last week was, in the opinion of wholesalers, extraordinary. Of course, business in August is never expected to have much vim, but it did seem as though this year's business was almost dormant. Many reasons are advanced for the condition. Probably never before were so many people making temporary sojourns in the country and at the seashore. One has only to experience the congestion at the railroad stations every evening to realize this. The high cost of living is blamed by some, but this theory is not considered seriously. New York is a city of apartment-dwellers, who form the great body of flower buyers, and who, during the war, have deprived themselves of vacations and therefore are taking advantage of the more prosperous times. A large number evidently have selected August, as may be supposed when it is known that hardly a coast steamship line will make stateroom reservations less than ten days ahead of sailing time.

Asters and gladioli are dominating the market. Arrivals are immense in volume. Much stock goes to waste and prices are almost unquotable. Boys on the street are selling asters of fair quality at 5 cents per bunch and less.

American Beauty roses are abundant and the demand for them is poor. Specials on Saturday sold as low as $6 per hundred and the quality was passable. As high as $40 is asked for the best, but it is doubtful whether any sales are recorded at this figure. Hybrid teas are not in particularly heavy supply, except in varieties such as Ophelia and Columbia. The quality of arrivals is fairly good, although mildew is giving the growers considerable trouble with some varieties. Prices are anywhere and quotations are only possible for really fine stock. The weather is pleasant and cool, favoring rose shipments.

Carnations are practically out of the market and those that do arrive hardly attract attention.

Orchids are scarce and command rather high prices. It is a matter now of hunting for cattleyas when one wants them. Lilies are also scarce, except rubrums and auratums, which fail to find quick movement. A little lily of the valley is coming and brings $12 per hundred when good.

There is a large quantity of herbaceous material available, and there is a fair demand for it for window use. The demand for it otherwise is poor.

Late asters are not yet in evidence, but among the early varieties coming in avalanches are some fine flowers which bring as high as $2 per hundred, but they are few in quantity. Gladioli can be had at 50 cents to $2 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Roman J. Irwin has left the city to attend the convention in Toronto of the Canadian Horticultural Association.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, was in town last week. He is an ardent supporter of the publicity campaign and leaves a line of thought regarding it wherever he goes.

Oscar Boehler, of Hoboken, N. J., will join the New York party to Detroit.

Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, and Henry Weston, of Hempstead, with their wives, are making a motor trip to Bar Harbor, Me.

Wm. F. Ekas, of Leo Niessen Co., Baltimore, was a visitor last week.

The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club had a meeting at the club's offices August 4, when all arrangements for the journey of the club's delegation to the convention were completed. It appears now that the party will travel in a special train instead of special cars and will have a club car attached to the train. Special cars are also to be engaged for a trip from Buffalo to Niagara Falls, Monday, August 18, returning to Buffalo in time for the night boat to Detroit. J. H. P.

S. H. Calamaras, one of the proprietors of the Boston Florist, is touring the White mountains and Canada with his family. He is expected to return about September 15.

The annual exhibition of gladioli, by the Horticultural Society of New York, will occur in the Museum building, Bronx park, August 23 and 24. There are thirteen classes, seven of which are open to the trade. The autumn exhibition of the society is set for the American Museum of Natural History, October 30 to November 2. Schedules are ready and may be had by addressing Geo. V. Nash, secretary, Bronx park.

TO EXTEND QUARANTINE.

The Federal Horticultural Board proposes to restrict or prohibit the shipment in Massachusetts or New Hampshire of entire plants of geraniums, all herbaceous plants and cut flowers of dahlias, gladioli and chrysanthemums as a means of checking the spread of the corn borer.

A hearing has been called for 10:30 a. m., August 15, at the State House, Boston, in order that any person interested may be heard before the present quarantine is extended.

TO KILL WHITE ANTS.

Can you tell us how to get rid of white ants? We have some in a solid bench where chrysanthemums are planted. They burrow into the stems and in a short time the plants are ruined.

G. V. B.—Mich.

The best way to get rid of ants is to drop carbon bisulphide in their nests and then plug up the hole. The gas works through the burrows and smothers them. This is the best way I know of killing white ants. C. H. Totty.

SOIL ANALYSIS.

I am mailing under separate cover samples of my soil from chrysanthemum benches. The flowers have been fine until the last three or four days, but are now dying rapidly. Can you inform me what the trouble is?

C. C. M.—Ky.

In itself the soil appears to be of a good grade for chrysanthemums, but it does not seem to possess any of the elements that would encourage good plant growth. Some lighter soil and well rotted manure would improve the soil greatly. I am of the opinion that the water does not pass freely through it and unless extra care is taken with the watering the lower portion will remain dry and a wet crust will form on the surface. I cannot find anything in its nature that would lead me to believe that the soil is the cause of the chrysanthemum plants' dying. My conclusion is that there is some grub working on the roots of the plants or that the trouble can be traced to careless watering.

M. P.

INFESTED MUM PLANTS.

I am sending you by express a chrysanthemum plant with soil. All my plants seemed diseased, especially the white ones, which are the best. The leaves look healthy and green and then suddenly begin to turn a lighter green. The plants hang their heads, as though the sun was too hot for them, and they look scalded, even after the rain. I have lost nearly all of my stock.

Please let me know what to do for them. I bought several hundred plants this year, but have only a few left.

P. R. I.—La.

All the spraying that you might do would not help these plants. The trouble is due to the condition of the soil. The specimen plant you sent plainly shows that the roots were rotted from the base up. This indicates that when the plant was lifted out of the soil all of its parts underground were on the road to decay.

The fact, as inquirer states, that the plants hang their heads and the leaves turn a lighter green, is a sure sign of sourness and stagnation of the soil at the roots. The best measure that I can advise you to try, is to loosen up the surface soil of the bed and keep it open by the frequent use of the hand cultivator or hand rake. Give the soil a light dressing of air-slaked lime and do not water at the roots until it becomes absolutely necessary. The only way to save the plants is to get them to start new root action. If this cannot be done, it is useless to bother with them. M. P.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Club Meeting.

The Albany Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the establishment of Henkes Bros., at Newtonville, during the evening of August 7. There was a good attendance. Fred W. Gloeckner was elected a member at this meeting. The club's entertainment committee, of which Louis H. Schaefer is the chairman, has made arrangements for a field day and clambake to be held at Henkes' grove, Saturday afternoon, August 23, This promises to be a gala day in the annals of the Florists' Club, as all the members look forward to an enjoyable day. At the conclusion of the meeting, Fred Henkes invited the club to partake of a luncheon he had prepared and which was enjoyed by all.

Various Notes.

Among recent callers were J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; "Billy" Cahill, representing R. J. Irwin, of New York; T. Wedderburn, of the Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, and Mr. Wright, of A. H. Hewes & Co., Cambridge, Mass.

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, is cutting some fine gladioli, which are selling well. Mr. Hannell is rebuilding and replanting several benches in his rose houses and is getting ready to house his carnations. In the field he has some fine heathers and hydrangeas, on which he specializes. The cyclamens at the Hannell range also are in fine condition.

E. P. Tracey and his brother, Thomas, are planning to motor to the convention at Detroit, leaving Albany August 17. F. A. Danker expects to go to the convention with the New York delegation.

The Lenox Horticultural Society, Lenox, Mass., has a field day August 20 and has invited the members of the Albany Florists' Club to attend.

Stock is more plentiful as the season advances. Asters are abundant and there is a good supply of speciosum lilies. Gladioli are in good supply. Carnations are practically off the market. Roses are holding their own, although the outdoor flowers have the preference in most sales.

The races are on at Saratoga this month and many of the craft can be found at the track, trying to double up some of the profits they made in the last year. H. M.

WHEN TO SOW CLOVER.

I desire to sow several lots in clover to plow under for fertilizer. When is the best time to do this and what kind is best to sow? How long must it grow before being plowed under?

M. J. W.—Ind.

The best time to sow clover is when you are most likely to get a good stand. In this vicinity, farmers prefer to sow in early spring, because the abundant rains and the favorable growing weather during the spring months give it a chance to get a good start. It should be allowed to make a vigorous growth before being plowed under. It could be turned under after making a good growth the second spring. Use the large crimson clover and sow ten to fifteen pounds to the acre. The sweet clover, which is regarded as a weed here, has been highly recommended to me as a fertilizer crop. If you wish to sow these lots this fall, I recommend that you sow them with rye. This will make a strong growth by spring and can then be turned under. A. F. J. B.

OLD MAID FOR APRIL.

Please tell me the name of the plant I am sending you. How is it started and when should it be sown in order to be placed in 2½-inch pots during April? The plants are about sixteen inches high and well branched. F. C. F.—Ind.

The name of the plant is vinca, or Madagascar periwinkle, commonly called Old Maid. It is one of the best flowering bedding plants we have and at the present time is full of blooms. The greatest problem in growing these plants is to get them to flower early enough to be in full bloom for spring sales. They are strictly hot weather plants and are at their best in August. The seed should be sown early in January in a section of the bench in the propagating house that has a strong bottom heat. By working them along from the seed bed to 3-inch pots and then plunging outside in the hotbed about April 15, a reasonable number of them can be had in bloom by the end of May. However, it will be a difficult matter to get them to bloom satisfactorily in 2½-inch pots in April, because they are exceedingly slow in growing. The plants you have may be lifted and they will continue to bloom throughout the winter. Not only are they satisfactory bedding plants, but they also make fine cut flowers. M. P.

JAMES EDWARD MOON.

O distinguish him from seven other James Moons of nursery trade fame, two of whom are living, the recently elected president of the American Association of Nurserymen shifts the emphasis on his name to the Edward. The first James Moon started the nurseries at Morrisville, Pa., in 1769. James M. Moon, president of the Wm. H. Moon Co., is an uncle. J. Edward Moon is secretary and sales manager of the company, being the son of the founder, William H. Moon. Mr. Moon adheres to the faith that brought his ancestors from England with William Penn in 1682, and holds the office of clerk in one of the quarterly meetings of the Quakers. He was educated principally at the Friends Boarding School, at Westtown, Pa., graduating as valedictorian of his class in 1902. One of his classmates was Mary Brown, of Llanerch, Pa., who later became Mrs. Moon. The president of the A. A. N. is only 36 years of age.

THE PEONY AND ITS CULTURE.

What the Types Are.

The chinensis peony (albiflora), in its original or wild state, was a single white flower, and the various stages of its transition, from its original single type to the perfect double flower, form the basis of the classification by the American Peony Society of the modern peony in its various forms as follows:

Single—Those with a single row of wide guard petals, and a center of yellow pollen-bearing stamens.

Semi-double—Those with several rows of wide petals, and a center of stamens and partially transformed petaloids.

Japanese—These have wide guards the same as the singles, but with the stamens and anthers greatly enlarged into narrow, thick petaloids of various colors, tipped with vestiges of yellow; the anthers are without pollen.

Anemone—A step farther in the process of doubling, with the stamens all transformed into short, narrow petals, forming a round cushion in the center of the flower.

Bomb—The next step, in which all the center petals are uniformly wide, approaching the guards, but distinctly differentiated from them, forming a globe-shaped center without collar or crown.

Crown—In this type wide petals are developed in the center of the flower, forming a high crown, with the narrow short petals forming a ring or collar around it. Often the crown and guards are of one color, and the collar another, or of a lighter shade.

Semi-Rose—Flowers in which the petals are all uniformly wide, but are loosely built, with a few pollen-bearing stamens visible, or nearly concealed.

Rose—The process of doubling is completed, all stamens fully transformed into evenly arranged wide petaloids, similar to the guards, forming a perfect rose-shaped bloom.

Famous Varieties.

Twelve years ago, when I attended my first peony show here, Baroness Schroeder was the acknowledged queen. She was beautiful, and among the most costly, being among the few for which as much as $5 was asked, and it was common talk then that the "peony boom" had probably reached its height and would doubtless soon decline. Baroness Schroeder is as beautiful today, but no longer queen, for many kinds now bring from $10 to $15, and $25 to $30 is not at all an uncommon value for a number of varieties, and never were these rare varieties more sought after than today.

Among the most talked of peonies today are first of all Lemoine's Le Cygne, winner of the first prize for the finest single specimen bloom, followed closely by Kelway's Glorious. Along with these should be mentioned Lemoine's Alsace Lorraine, Evangeline, Enchantress, La Fee, La France, Mirabeau, Mignon, Mont Blanc, Sarah Bernhardt, Solange and Primevere, the nearest approach to yellow; Dessert's Thérese, Francois Rousseau, Mme. de Treyeran, Rose Bonheur, Tourangelle and M. Martin Cahuzac, the darkest of all peonies. Kelway's James Kelway, Kelway's Queen, Marchioness of Lansdowne, Miss Salway, Phyllis Kelway and Venus are all varieties of rare beauty.

Novelties Little Seen.

Many of the new introductions are only known by reputation, for the expensive kinds are often not allowed to come to perfection, being too frequently divided for the purpose of increasing the stock; it is only when they are grown in private gardens, or in specimen collections, where they may remain for at least four years, that real merits are revealed. Consequently, everywhere, as they develop, we discover new treasures, and alas, too, some few disappointments. Among the pleasant surprises in my collections that I had an opportunity to see in perfection for the first time last year was Galathee, a wonderfully full, strong growing, beautifully formed, flesh white, of great size; Philippe Rivoire, dark garnet, of unusual form, and long keeping qualities; Mme. Gaudichau, nearly as dark, and rivaling M. Martin Cahuzac in brilliancy, form and habit; Mme. Savreau, with its delicate combination of lilac-white and amber yellow; Jeanne Gaudichau, wonderfully fine in form and color, and finally Pomponette, with its great, wide-petaled, incurved globes of clear rose. For the first time last year, I saw La France and Le Cygne in all their glory, and many others, because now I have a specimen garden established, where they have been allowed to grow to maturity.

Passing from novelties and scarce kinds to varieties more plentiful which may be had at a cost within the reach of all, and which are obtainable in quantities for mass planting, I would recommend the following list, which comprises varieties that may with certainty be relied upon to flower freely each year under all conditions, all having blooms of the highest quality. The list here given in the various shades covers a period of bloom from earliest to latest in the order named, and covers a period of from three to four weeks.

A List of Reliables.

White—Boule de Neige, Festiva Maxima, Mme. Calot, Duchesse de Nemours, Couronne d'Or, Albatre, Marie Lemoine.

White, shaded cream and yellow—Lutea Plenissima, Alba Sulphurea, Duke of Wellington, Candidissima, Solfatare, Lutea Variegata, Primevere, Princess Maude.

Flesh and light pink—Umbellata Rosea (the earliest of all), Mme. Coste, Mlle. Rousseau, Marguerite Gerard, Albert Crousse, Eugene Verdier, Venus, Grandiflora, Modele de Perfection.

Deep pink and rose—Edulis Superba, M. Jules Elie, General Bertrand, Mme. Forel, Mme. Muyssart, Henry Murger, Milton Hill.

Crimson—Adolphe Rousseau, Pierre Dessert, Mme. Mechin, Bertha, George Washington, Masterpiece, Felix Crousse, Armandine Mechin, Marechal Vaillant, Rubra Superba (the latest blooming peony of all).

Tricolor—Princess Beatrice, Mme. de Vatry, Alice de Julvecourt, Gloire de Charles Gombault, Philomene, Prolifera Tricolor.

The following is a list of peonies especially noted for their unusually pleasant fragrance: Edulis Superba, Comte de Nanteuil, Carnea Elegans (Gr.), Lamartine (Cal.), Mme. Auguste Peltereau, Mme. Geissler, Mme. Thouvenin, Monsieur Barral, Vicomte de Forceville, Zoe Calot, Dorothy Kelway, Kelway's Glorious, Splendida, Venus, Bertha, Enfante de Nancy, Galathee, Le Fee, Mme. de Treyeran, Marcelle Dessert, Mont Blanc (Lemoine), Mireille, Mignon, Primevere.

A short list of the best singles includes Albiflora, The Bride, Pride of Langport, Madeleine Gauthier, Stanley L'Etincelante, Austin Chamberlain, The Moor.

Specially fine ones in the Japanese section are Attraction, Flamboyant, Fuyajo, Ama-no-sode, Margaret Atwood, King of England, Tora-no-Maki, Lemon Queen, Cathedral, Apple Blossom.

Succession of Bloom.

By including the various early-flowering species, hybrids and tree peonies in one's collection, the blooming season may be extended over a period of fully two months. The tree peonies bloom quite a month ahead of the Chinensis, beginning early in May. As they do not die to the ground each year, they form in time woody shrubs four to five feet in height, their immense, strikingly beautiful blooms sometimes a foot in diameter; they are a wonderful sight. There are color schemes among them never found in the nerbaceous section, brilliant scarlets, dark maroons and rich wine colors, delicate blush, pure pink and art shades of mauve and violet. Most of the varieties introduced by the European growers are full-double, while a large number of the Japanese sorts are semi-double and single, with a large cushion of thick golden stamens in the center, which produces a beautiful effect. Seeds should be sown immediately after they ripen, either in the open ground protected by a slight covering, or in boxes placed in a coldframe. The young plants will appear the following spring, and will produce varieties equal in every way to the named kinds.

An extract from an address by Bertrand H. Farr, of Wyomissing, Pa., ex-president of the American Peony Society, delivered before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Lutea, a deep golden yellow single tree peony, was discovered a few years ago in the mountains of Yunnan by the Abbe Delavay. Crosses from this were made by Lemoine with other tree peonies. One of them, La Lorraine, was exhibited by me at the American Peony Society's show in Philadelphia and was given a special award of merit. Its blooms, six inches in diameter, are fully double and are a deep yellow. A new Lutea hybrid is Souvenir du Maxime Cornu, a deeper color with a shading similar to that in the Mme. Edward Herriot rose. Lutea and its hybrids bloom later than the other tree peonies.

Later Varieties.

The dainty fennel-leaved peony, P. Tenuifolia, follows the tree peonies, and its dazzlingly brilliant scarlet flowers always attract attention. It requires careful cultivation and only grows about a foot high. Next in point of interest and season of bloom are Lemoine's Wittmanniana hybrids, produced by crossing the pale yellow Wittmanniana, itself a rather difficult species to grow, with Chinensis, resulting in types of strong, vigorous growths, with handsome decorative foliage and large single flowers. There are four of them: Avante Garde, pale rose; Le Printemps, creamy yellow; Mai Fleuri, white shaded salmon; and Messagere, sulphur white.

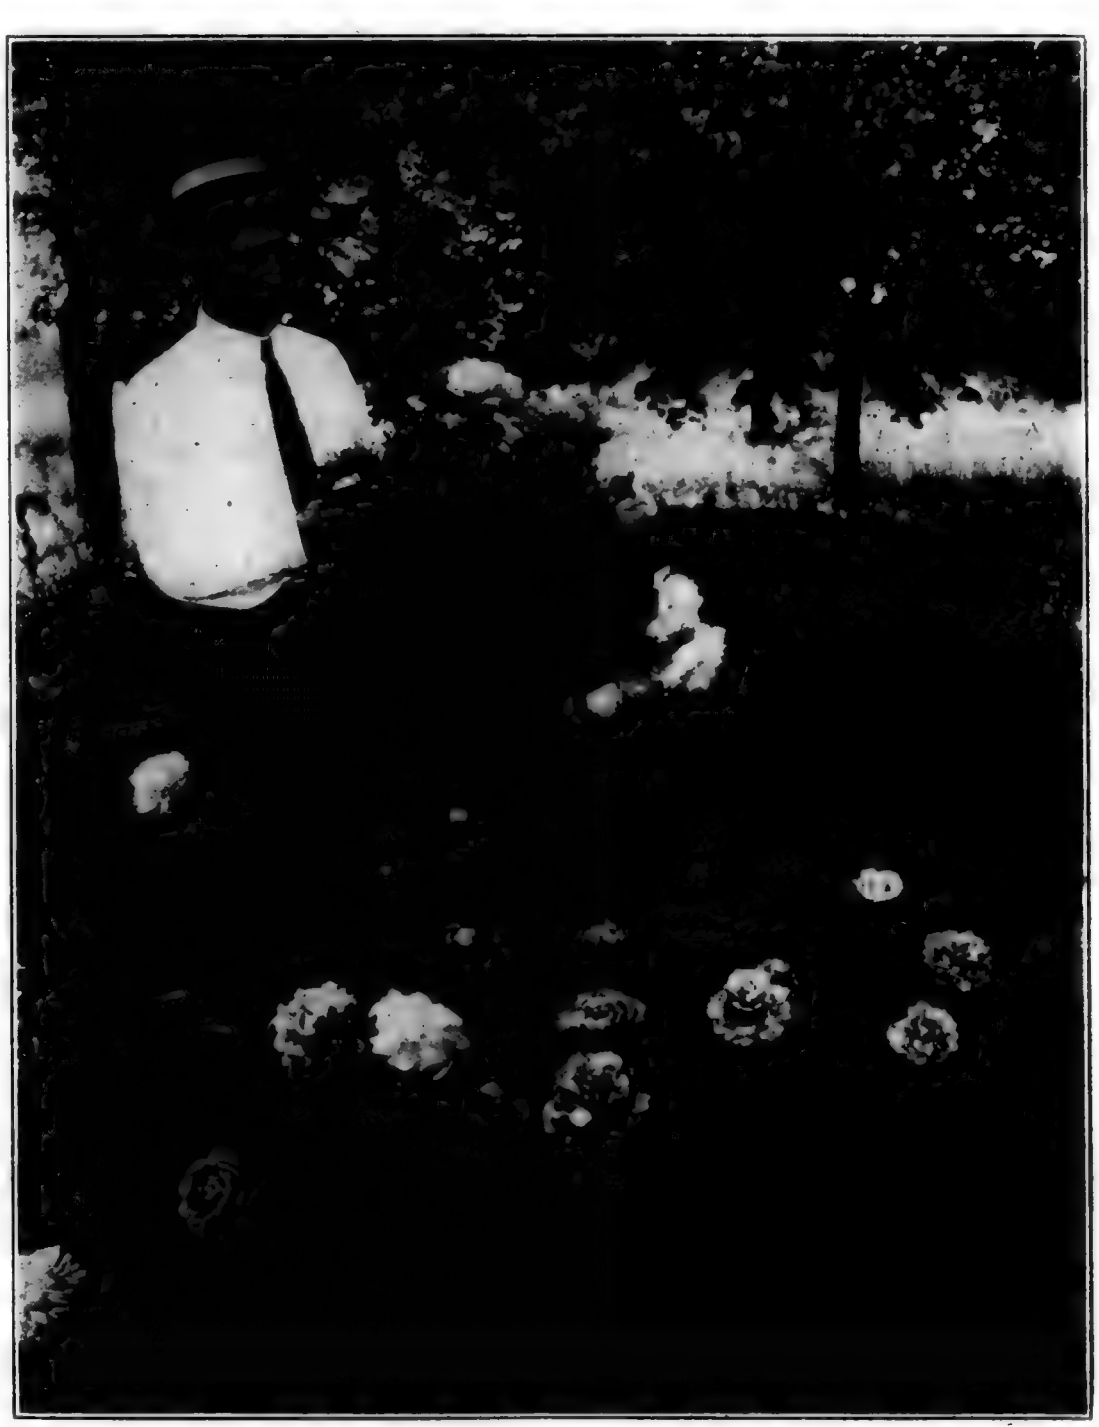
The officinalis types begin to bloom almost invariably ten days before the Chinensis varieties. Officinalis Rubra, the brilliant early red of our grandmothers' gardens, belongs to this species, which is a native of Europe. There is a white one, Officinalis Alba Plena, and a beautiful large-flowered pink one, Rosea Superba, besides a number of named single and double ones not commonly seen. Sabina, L'Oriflamme, Ourika and La Brilliant are most attractive. Most of the other species are of little interest to the average grower, but I have cut blooms of Triternata and Arietina in April, and of Rubra Superba June 27, a season of quite two months.

Cultivation Is Simple.

The cultivation of peonies is so simple that lengthy instructions seem unnecessary and confusing. They will grow in any situation and in any soil where one would attempt to raise corn or potatoes. In a light sandy soil they bloom earlier, mature more quickly, the colors are lighter and the season of bloom shorter than when they are planted in a heavy clay loam, where it takes the young plants a year or more longer to reach perfection, but here the growth is stronger, the colors more brilliant, and the flowers are larger and of longer duration. Exactly the same difference is observed between plants grown in the south and middle states, and those grown far north. The peony is the flower for extremely cold climates, but may be grown in California and in the south if given congenial loamy soil and abundance of water during the growing season and a situation shaded from the sun during the heat of the day.

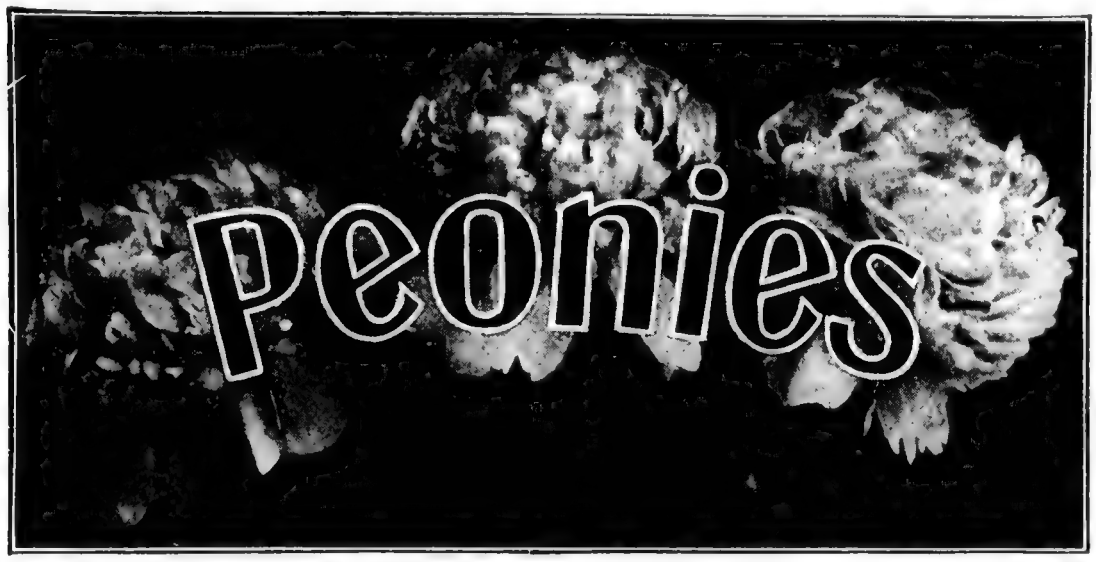
Peonies are gross feeders, reaching their greatest perfection when well fed and the ground frequently cultivated, until the buds begin to show color. If a drought occurs at that stage they should be well watered. Two things they promptly resent—sour, acid soil and fresh manure in direct contact with the roots when first planted. While they absorb an abundance of food when well established and during their active growing period, to plant the young roots in soil overloaded with fresh manure, especially if it is sour, is sometimes fatal and invariably causes them to become sick. This is undoubtedly the cause of most of the so-called club-root.

Plant in Fresh Soil.



The effect is a production of many weak stems, which fail to mature to buds. Peonies should be planted in fresh soil, and any manure used should be thoroughly rotted, carefully worked in, and not allowed to come in direct contact with the roots. Plant so that the eyes are two to three inches below the surface of the ground (too deep planting is injurious). Feeding should be in the form of a good coat of manure over the surface after the ground freezes. This prevents the roots from being thrown out from the heaving caused by alternate freezing and thawing. This covering can be worked into the ground a little distance away from the crowns in early spring, and will furnish the food they need and can then assimilate as active growth begins.

When once planted, let them alone for as many years as they seem to thrive, only dividing and replanting when the plants show indications of deterioration, unless for the purpose of increasing the stock, which is another matter. For the purpose of propagating, they should be divided every second or third year, but for garden effect peonies usually reach perfection the fourth year, continuing in good condition several years longer, and in many instances old clumps 15 to 20 years of age continue to thrive. As a general rule, however, eight years is about the limit.



Time to Plant.

When the clumps begin to show the necessity for replanting, it is best to start again at the beginning with small divisions of clean, smooth roots with three or four eyes, forcing the plant to begin again and form an entirely new root system. Divisions consisting of large chunks of old crowns simply lie inactive in the ground and sometimes decay entirely. It is a common mistake to purchase old, heavy clumps, with the expectation of getting immediate effect and better results. For the first year probably one may, but never thereafter.

Any time in the year when the ground is not frozen, peonies may be moved successfully, except from the time the buds begin to form until the foliage is matured and the new roots complete their growth, about the middle of August. The best time is in September and early October. The growth then is fully com-

THE PEONY AND ITS CULTURE.

What the Types Are.

The chinensis peony (albiflora), in its original or wild state, was a single white flower, and the various stages of its transition, from its original single type to the perfect double flower, form the basis of the classification by the American Peony Society of the modern peony in its various forms as follows:

Single—Those with a single row of wide guard petals, and a center of yellow pollen-bearing stamens.

Semi-double—Those with several rows of wide petals, and a center of stamens and partially transformed petaloids.

Japanese—These have wide guards the same as the singles, but with the stamens and anthers greatly enlarged into narrow, thick petaloids of various colors, tipped with vestiges of yellow; the anthers are without pollen.

Anemone—A step farther in the process of doubling, with the stamens all transformed into short, narrow petals, forming a round cushion in the center of the flower.

Bomb—The next step, in which all the center petals are uniformly wide, approaching the guards, but distinctly differentiated from them, forming a globe-shaped center without collar or crown.

Crown—In this type wide petals are developed in the center of the flower, forming a high crown, with the narrow short petals forming a ring or collar around it. Often the crown and guards are of one color, and the collar another, or of a lighter shade.

Semi-Rose—Flowers in which the petals are all uniformly wide, but are loosely built, with a few pollen-bearing stamens visible, or nearly concealed.

Rose—The process of doubling is completed, all stamens fully transformed into evenly arranged wide petaloids, similar to the guards, forming a perfect rose-shaped bloom.

Famous Varieties.

Twelve years ago, when I attended my first peony show here, Baroness Schroeder was the acknowledged queen. She was beautiful, and among the most costly, being among the few for which as much as $5 was asked, and it was common talk then that the "peony boom" had probably reached its height and would doubtless soon decline. Baroness Schroeder is as beautiful today, but no longer queen, for many kinds now bring from $10 to $15, and $25 to $30 is not at all an uncommon value for a number of varieties, and never were these rare varieties more sought after than today.

Among the most talked of peonies today are first of all Lemoine's Le Cygne, winner of the first prize for the finest single specimen bloom, followed closely by Kelway's Glorious. Along with these should be mentioned Lemoine's Alsace Lorraine, Evangeline, Enchantress, La Fee, La France, Mirabeau, Mignon, Mont Blanc, Sarah Bernhardt, Solange and Primevere, the nearest approach to yellow; Dessert's Thérese, Francois Rousseau, Mme. de Treveran, Rose Bonheur, Tourangelle and M. Martin Cahuzac, the darkest of all peonies. Kelway's James Kelway, Kelway's Queen, Marchioness of Lansdowne, Miss Salway, Phyllis Kelway and Venus are all varieties of rare beauty.

Novelties Little Seen.

Many of the new introductions are only known by reputation, for the expensive kinds are often not allowed to come to perfection, being too frequently divided for the purpose of increasing the stock; it is only when they are grown in private gardens, or in specimen collections, where they may remain for at least four years, that real merits are revealed. Consequently, everywhere, as they develop, we discover new treasures, and alas, too, some few disappointments. Among the pleasant surprises in my collections that I had an opportunity to see in perfection for the first time last year was Galathee, a wonderfully full, strong growing, beautifully formed, flesh white, of great size; Philippe Rivoire, dark garnet, of unusual form, and long keeping qualities; Mme. Gaudichau, nearly as dark, and rivaling M. Martin Cahuzac in brilliancy, form and habit; Mme. Savreau, with its delicate combination of lilac-white and amber yellow; Jeanne Gaudichau, wonderfully fine in form and color, and finally Pomponette, with its great, wide-petaled, incurved globes of clear rose. For the first time last year, I saw La France and Le Cygne in all their glory, and many others, because now I have a specimen garden established, where they have been allowed to grow to maturity.

Passing from novelties and scarce kinds to varieties more plentiful which may be had at a cost within the reach of all, and which are obtainable in quantities for mass planting, I would recommend the following list, which comprises varieties that may with certainty be relied upon to flower freely each year under all conditions, all having blooms of the highest quality. The list here given in the various shades covers a period of bloom from earliest to latest in the order named, and covers a period of from three to four weeks.

A List of Reliables.

White—Boule de Neige, Festiva Maxima, Mme. Calot, Duchesse de Nemours, Couronne d'Or, Albatre, Marie Lemoine.

White, shaded cream and yellow—Lutea Plenissima, Alba Sulphurea, Duke of Wellington, Candidissima, Solfatare, Lutea Variegata, Primevere, Princess Maude.

Flesh and light pink—Umbellata Rosea (the earliest of all), Mme. Coste, Mlle. Rousseau, Marguerite Gerard, Albert Crousse, Eugene Verdier, Venus, Grandiflora, Modele de Perfection.

Deep pink and rose—Edulis Superba, M. Jules Elie, General Bertrand, Mme. Forel, Mme. Muyssart, Henry Murger, Milton Hill.

Tricolor—Princess Beatrice, Mme. de Vatry, Alice de Julvecourt, Gloire de Charles Gombault, Philomene, Prolifera Tricolor.

The following is a list of peonies especially noted for their unusually pleasant fragrance: Edulis Superba, Comte de Nanteuil, Carnea Elegans (Gr.), Lamartine (Cal.), Mme. Auguste Peltereau, Mme. Geissler, Mme. Thouvenin, Monsieur Barral, Vicomte de Forceville, Zoe Calot, Dorothy Kelway, Kelway's Glorious, Splendida, Venus, Bertha, Enfante de Nancy, Galathee, Le Fee, Mme. de Treyeran, Marcelle Dessert, Mont Blanc (Lemoine), Mireille, Mignon, Primevere.

A short list of the best singles includes Albiflora, The Bride, Pride of Langport, Madeleine Gauthier, Stanley L'Etincelante, Austin Chamberlain, The Moor.

Specially fine ones in the Japanese section are Attraction, Flamboyant, Fuyajo, Ama-no-sode, Margaret Atwood, King of England, Tora-no-Maki, Lemon Queen, Cathedral, Apple Blossom.

Succession of Bloom.

By including the various early-flowering species, hybrids and tree peonies in one's collection, the blooming season may be extended over a period of fully two months. The tree peonies bloom quite a month ahead of the Chinensis, beginning early in May. As they do not die to the ground each year, they form in time woody shrubs four to five feet in height, their immense, strikingly beautiful blooms sometimes a foot in diameter; they are a wonderful sight. There are color schemes among them never found in the herbaceous section, brilliant scarlets, dark maroons and rich wine colors, delicate blush, pure pink and art shades of mauve and violet. Most of the varieties introduced by the European growers are full-double, while a large number of the Japanese sorts are semi-double and single, with a large cushion of thick golden stamens in the center, which produces a beautiful effect. Seeds should be sown immediately after they ripen, either in the open ground protected by a slight covering, or in boxes placed in a coldframe. The young plants will appear the following spring, and will produce varieties equal in every way to the named kinds.

Lutea, a deep golden yellow single tree peony, was discovered a few years ago in the mountains of Yunnan by the Abbe Delavay. Crosses from this were made by Lemoine with other tree peonies. One of them, La Lorraine, was exhibited by me at the American Peony Society's show in Philadelphia and was given a special award of merit. Its blooms, six inches in diameter, are fully double and are a deep yellow. A new Lutea hybrid is Souvenir du Maxime Cornu, a deeper color with a shading similar to that in the Mme. Edward Herriot rose. Lutea and its hybrids bloom later than the other tree peonies.

Later Varieties.

The dainty fennel-leaved peony, P. Tenuifolia, follows the tree peonies, and its dazzlingly brilliant scarlet flowers always attract attention. It requires careful cultivation and only grows about a foot high. Next in point of interest and season of bloom are Lemoine's Wittmanniana hybrids, produced by crossing the pale yellow Wittmanniana, itself a rather difficult species to grow, with Chinensis, resulting in types of strong, vigorous growths, with handsome decorative foliage and large single flowers. There are four of them: Avante Garde, pale rose; Le Printemps, creamy yellow; Mai Fleuri, white shaded salmon; and Messagere, sulphur white.

The officinalis types begin to bloom almost invariably ten days before the Chinensis varieties. Officinalis Rubra, the brilliant early red of our grandmothers' gardens, belongs to this species, which is a native of Europe. There is a white one, Officinalis Alba Plena, and a beautiful large-flowered pink one, Rosea Superba, besides a number of named single and double ones not commonly seen. Sabina, L'Oriflamme, Ourika and La Brilliant are most attractive. Most of the other species are of little interest to the average grower, but I have cut blooms of Triternata and Arietina in April, and of Rubra Superba June 27, a season of quite two months.

Cultivation Is Simple.

The cultivation of peonies is so simple that lengthy instructions seem unnecessary and confusing. They will grow in any situation and in any soil where one would attempt to raise corn or potatoes. In a light sandy soil they bloom earlier, mature more quickly, the colors are lighter and the season of bloom shorter than when they are planted in a heavy clay loam, where it takes the young plants a year or more longer to reach perfection, but here the growth is stronger, the colors more brilliant, and the flowers are larger and of longer duration. Exactly the same difference is observed between plants grown in the south and middle states, and those grown far north. The peony is the flower for extremely cold climates, but may be grown in California and in the south if given congenial loamy soil and abundance of water during the growing season and a situation shaded from the sun during the heat of the day.

Peonies are gross feeders, reaching their greatest perfection when well fed and the ground frequently cultivated, until the buds begin to show color. If a drought occurs at that stage they should be well watered. Two things they promptly resent—sour, acid soil and fresh manure in direct contact with the roots when first planted. While they absorb an abundance of food when well established and during their active growing period, to plant the young roots in soil overloaded with fresh manure, especially if it is sour, is sometimes fatal and invariably causes them to become sick. This is undoubtedly the cause of most of the so-called club-root.

Plant in Fresh Soil.

The effect is a production of many weak stems, which fail to mature to buds. Peonies should be planted in fresh soil, and any manure used should be thoroughly rotted, carefully worked in, and not allowed to come in direct contact with the roots. Plant so that the eyes are two to three inches below the surface of the ground (too deep planting is injurious). Feeding should be in the form of a good coat of manure over the surface after the ground freezes. This prevents the roots from being thrown out from the heaving caused by alternate freezing and thawing. This covering can be worked into the ground a little distance away from the crowns in early spring, and will furnish the food they need and can then assimilate as active growth begins.

When once planted, let them alone for as many years as they seem to thrive, only dividing and replanting when the plants show indications of deterioration, unless for the purpose of increasing the stock, which is another matter. For the purpose of propagating, they should be divided every second or third year, but for garden effect peonies usually reach perfection the fourth year, continuing in good condition several years longer, and in many instances old clumps 15 to 20 years of age continue to thrive. As a general rule, however, eight years is about the limit.

Time to Plant.

When the clumps begin to show the necessity for replanting, it is best to start again at the beginning with small divisions of clean, smooth roots with three or four eyes, forcing the plant to begin again and form an entirely new root system. Divisions consisting of large chunks of old crowns simply lie inactive in the ground and sometimes decay entirely. It is a common mistake to purchase old, heavy clumps, with the expectation of getting immediate effect and better results. For the first year probably one may, but never thereafter.

Any time in the year when the ground is not frozen, peonies may be moved successfully, except from the time the buds begin to form until the foliage is matured and the new roots complete their growth, about the middle of August. pleted, and the roots in a dormant state. Planted then, the new feeding roots soon begin to form, and strong roots almost invariably bloom the following June. November and December planting is perfectly safe, but bloom must not be expected the first year, and early spring is as good a time to plant as late fall. If one cannot plant in September or October, it becomes merely a matter of convenience whether to plant in fall or spring.

Peony Free from Disease.

The peony has always been considered singularly free from diseases or insect pests. There are two troubles, however, which within the last few years have given rise to a great deal of discussion, most of which I believe has been misleading, and since scientists at a number of experiment stations where investigations have been undertaken do not fully agree upon the nature or the cause of the trouble, and do not suggest a remedy, I will simply state my own experiences and conclusions, which I feel sure will tend to allay any needless apprehension.

In certain seasons under favorable conditions peonies are subject to fungous attacks manifested, first, by black spots on the leaves; second, by a blighting of the buds when half opened, or the decaying of the half-opened buds at the base of the petals, deforming the flower; third, the extension of the fungous growth down the stem, sometimes its entire length, causing what is commonly called stem-rot, which in severe cases extends down into the roots. Sometimes the stem is first affected, causing it to damp off and wilt.

The conditions favorable to the spread of fungus seem to be moist, humid weather, with frequent showers, followed by hot sunshine. It may be quite severe one season and disappear entirely the following season, and unless the roots themselves are affected, there seems to be no permanent injury, and it is only in a few sections where serious harm has been done, and where I believe the same soil condition and overfeeding, which I have previously explained, have something to do with it. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture as a preventive has been recommended. Where roots are badly affected it is best to replant them in perfectly fresh, sweet soil, free from manure, cutting away all affected parts.

Cause of Club Root.

The other trouble is variously known as "nematodes, or eelworms," "club roots," "Lemoine disease," etc. There has been much discussion and difference of opinion regarding these so-called diseased roots. I believe it to be more a condition than a disease; a condition brought on usually, as previously stated, by the excessive use of manure when the roots are newly planted and before they can properly assimilate the overdose. It is manifested by distorted, undeveloped roots, covered with lumpy knots and nodules. An unusual number of eyes are formed, sending up many stems of weak growth, which do not mature flower buds. This condition can also be produced by too deep planting, by the use of large divisions of old worn-out roots, by planting in a sour, pasty soil, or by anything which seems to check a healthy action of the roots.

My remedy is to cut the infected roots into small divisions of one or two eyes, shorten the roots to two or three inches, and replant in perfectly fresh soil without any manure. This forces an entirely new system of root growth, and, so treated, the trouble usually disappears in a year or two. Some varieties appear to be more susceptible than others, and occasionally the trouble persists for a number of years. If these happen to be cheap kinds, it is usually better to discard them and start new with clean roots; with expensive varieties, however, it pays to have a little patience with them.

European Novelties Affected.

Practically all the novelties from Europe that have come to us from old gardens are affected when we first get them, and if we were to reject them on this account, we would have to forego such wonderful varieties as Le Cygne, La France, Mont Blanc, etc.—in fact, nearly all the fine new French varieties, all more or less affected when first received, but soon outgrowing this trouble when planted in new ground here.

Remember, you can take the smoothest, healthiest roots from one place, plant them in a sour soil oversaturated with fresh manure, and get the most beautiful specimen of club root the following year. Fortunately, it is not contagious, as many have claimed, for you can plant affected roots in good soil side by side with healthy ones, and I have never known a single case where the healthy roots were affected by them, which convinces me that the sick plants are simply suffering from a cause similar to what we would describe as an inactive liver or a bad case of biliousness in our own systems.

To sum up, fungous attacks are local, due to weather conditions, and only occasionally seriously destructive. Club roots are due to overfeeding, improper soil or planting, and are not contagious. Cut off and burn dead foliage in the fall and use hardwood ashes or lime as a fertilizer for acid soil, applying manure as a top-dressing only until plants are in active growth.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

F. A. M., Sask.—There are courses in flower arrangement at the University of Illinois, Champaign; Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

A. W. Johnston, of Syracuse, N. Y., is making a fine showing of gladioli in the windows of the old Quinlan Flower Shop and maintains the fine reputation already established. Funeral work has been good of late.

W. E. Day Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., reports the usual summer dullness broken now and then by a good-sized wedding or funeral order. They look for an even better business when the entertaining season opens, judging from their experience in the past.

W. A. Rowlands, of Utica, N. Y., is enjoying a short vacation at Long lake. He hopes to attend the S. A. F. convention, realizing the importance of keeping in touch with the craft. Carnations are his long suit, but the plants are short just now, both in numbers and growth.

David J. Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., observed that he can understand why the patriarch of old times complained as he sat under the juniper tree, for he has been similarly afflicted. However, he is now able to be around as usual to give his attention to chrysanthemums and sweet peas.

Frank J. Baker and son, of Utica, N. Y., were last heard from at Boston, whither they had gone in search of plant stock. "We never had a harder time," observed Mrs. Baker, who is in charge of the store, "to obtain the necessary supply for our present needs. But, as to the future, who can foretell? It is certain that there will be a scarcity of lilies, yet we hardly felt the shortage last Easter, when we had exceedingly few. We are educating our trade to do without them. What seems to be needed now are plant specialties to meet the increasing demand for blooming plants and fill the void made by the quarantine act." The Baker place looks spick-and-span in its new coat of paint and business is reported as good.

William P. Pfeifer, of Utica, N. Y., observed that "owing to a pleasant family event" he will be unable to attend the convention at Detroit.

R. H. Bard Floral Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., has had an exceptionally good season. Robert Bard is rusticating at Grass lake amid his fine assortment of perennials.

George B. Hart, of Rochester, N. Y., as chairman of a committee appointed to investigate the rise in the price of milk, observed, "There has been a big stirring up—a real milk shake."

As evidence of the scarcity of good stock, Colin Ogston, of the Kimball Conservatories, Rochester, N. Y., asserts that when it was decided to operate the whole range next winter, he scoured the country for plants to fill the houses, prices no object. As he failed to secure a supply, most of the houses will be sown with sweet peas and the like. Among the valuable collection of orchids is a lone cattleya in bloom. It is C. Edwardii and a gem. The bloom is of a lavender tint, with throat and lip a splashed scarlet.

Walter Stroh, of L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., while working on funeral designs observed, "Quality, not quantity, is now the desideratum. Practically every flower that forms a part of the whole should be made to show to advantage." Variety was also demonstrated. Even though the assortment of flowers is limited, the various pieces were arranged so that no two were alike. A handsome wreath composed of magnolia leaves, Gladiolus Halley and Adiantum Croweanum showed up as distinctively as the choicest cattleyas. "It's all in the making," continued Mr. Stroh. "We wire the roses, carnations and the like for the reason that every bloom can be shown to advantage."

BEETLES ON ROSE BUDS.

In a small receptacle I am sending specimens of a beetle or bug infesting our roses, and doing much damage to buds and tender foliage. Can you inform us what it is, and what is the best method of combating it?

G. A. K.—Mo.

The best means of fighting the beetles is spraying with arsenate of lead solution. This insecticide may be obtained as a paste, which is the most convenient form of using it. Dissolve the paste according to directions, stir well, then add enough granulated sugar or syrup to make it sweet to the beetles' taste and cause the solution to stick to the stem and foliage of the plants. The best time to spray the plants is in the cool of the evening. Repeat every day or two until the beetles disappear.

The beetle sent is identically the same as one received from a grower in an eastern state who is having trouble with it on his pansy plants. It is evident that this is another addition to the pests with which growers have to contend, and it would be a good plan for you to send a few specimens to the S. A. F. entomologist, Prof. H. C. Irish, St. Louis, Mo., and get his opinion regarding it.

As a further means of getting rid of the beetles, I would advise that you go over the surface of your rose beds, and if there are any rough or uneven places in the soil, level them off, being particular to remove any loose material from around the stem of each plant. Then take a brick or pounder of some kind, and pound down the soil, taking care to see that it is thoroughly done at the edge of the bed, where the soil is liable to crack away from the side bench boards. Then take some bait made of ground oats, granulated sugar and Paris green, and lay a small portion on cabbage leaves, and place one about every six feet about the bed. M. P.

ROSE PLANTS DYING.

We are sending you by parcel post several of our rose plants. These are from a section from which we took out only part of the soil, leaving in the rose plants, and refilled with new soil and a coat of well rotted sheep manure. This was done about two weeks ago and at the present time a number of our rose plants are dying. They seem to decay right at the surface. The roots are apparently in good condition. We shall appreciate any information you can give us to help us get rid of this trouble.

W. H. H.—Minn.

From the appearance of the rose plants it seems that these plants were rested too long, causing the stems to become hard and dry, or the water was held off too suddenly. In either case, if watering is not watched closely, the plants, after starting again, are apt to turn black at the bottom and the sap will stop flowing, causing the plants to die. Using sheep manure at the time of starting the dormant plants may have made matters worse, as the manure contains much ammonia and releases it faster than the plants can absorb it. This will also cause the stems to turn black. Last summer, when florists were restricted to a fifty per cent coal supply, we had several houses that were dry and intended to let them stand idle. After the fuel restriction was rescinded, we started up these houses as fast as possible, but in one house of Wards, where the plants had become exceedingly dry, we found the same conditions as those shown on your plants. We kept our plants thoroughly wet and saved most of them, aside from one row under the ventilators. The plants in that row received the dry wind directly and so hard that we lost nearly all of them.

I suggest that these plants be given extra watering to keep the sap flowing and to prevent them from absorbing too much of the ammonia contained in the sheep manure. As the roots seem in good condition, the plants should pull through all right. W. J. K.

STORING BULBS AND ROOTS.

What is the proper winter treatment for gladioli, dahlias, cannas,, etc.?

F. J. H.—Utah.

As I understand the question, it is an inquiry as to the best means of keeping gladiolus bulbs and canna and dahlia roots during the winter months. The gladiolus bulbs should be lifted in the early part of October, after the growth has become well ripened. Do not remove any of the growth, but lift the bulbs and place them in racks or flats and store away in a place that is dry and moderately cool. After a while the growths will dry off and the bulbs can be overhauled, sorted and returned to the racks until time for spring planting.

Not every greenhouse establishment has a properly equipped cellar for storing the roots of cannas and dahlias; so use is made of one of the greenhouse benches. Select a bench in a carnation house where the steam does not have to be turned on except in severe weather; lay some boards on the ground, upon which to place the roots. After the first showing of frost, late in September or early in October, cut down the plants to within four inches of the ground. Then dig them up, leaving some soil on the clumps to keep the roots from drying out too much while dormant. Set them close together on the boards beneath the bench. Scatter dry soil or sand over them. Lift the roots before the ground outside becomes wet.

The principal thing to watch out for during the winter is to see that the roots do not become too dry and shrivel up, or get too wet from dripping when the bench above is watered. About February 15 will be time enough to overhaul the cannas, divide them up and plant for another season. M. P.

OBITUARY

Mons Olsen.

Mons Olsen, one of the oldest florists of the city, died at his home, 5908 South Green street, Chicago, Ill., Monday, August 11. Mr. Olsen was well known throughout the city and came to this country from Sweden about fifty years ago. He was interested in flowers when a child and it was only natural that he should enter the business.

The first Chicago firm that he worked for was Reinberg Bros. He was there for several years and then went with E. H. Hunt. After many years' service with that house he transferred to Poehlmann Bros. Co., remaining there for seven years. He also was in the employ of J. A. Budlong for a short time. Prior to his death he was not actively in the business.

Mr. Olsen was born April 9, 1859, and so was 60 years old at the time of his death. The funeral will be held at the residence, at 2 p. m., August 15.

John C. Thies.

John C. Thies, who for many years did a large market gardening business at Fredonia, N. Y., died July 31 at his home on Terrace street. He had been failing in health for several months. He was 67 years old. He had been a director of the South Shore Growers' and Shippers' Association and also served for several terms as a village trustee.

He is survived by his wife, one son, two daughters, a sister and four brothers.

Michael Eischen.

Michael Eischen, formerly in business at Duluth, Minn., died at the California hospital, Los Angeles, July 31, at 2 a. m., following an operation. One operation had been performed and it was thought that Mr. Eischen would recover, but complications set in which necessitated another operation, which resulted in his death. Mr. Eischen had been living in Montebello for a number of years, where he conducted a grocery store and a citrus ranch.

George Eischen, his son, who has a store at Ocean Park, Cal., has been taking care of his father's business since he became ill several months ago. Another son, Oliver, is still in business at Duluth, Minn.

Michael Eischen was 70 years old. He was buried Saturday, August 2.

ATTENDANCE prospects for the Detroit convention grow every day.

GETTING stock is likely to be more difficult than getting orders next season.

DOES your coal supply insure you a good season? Don't put off filling the bins.

IT is hard work to break in an apprentice, but not so hard as to get along without good help.

LATE COMERS are likely to lose out on supplies or else receive deliveries too late to be of benefit.

COURTESY is the oil that makes the machinery of business run easily. And oil is just as necessary for an engine as gasoline.

RAILROAD conditions are worse on the Atlantic seaboard than farther west. The trade is fortunate that the difficulties come at this season.

IT is worth while to keep an eye on the Want and For Sale section of The Review. There's nothing like it elsewhere in this trade and it's full of opportunities.

PLANT exports from Holland to the United States, by way of Amsterdam, rose from $90,343 in 1915 to $122,989 in 1916, and then dropped to $42,140 in 1917 and $42,713 in 1918.

FLOWER week is the latest publicity idea. It comes from Washington, where the florists propose to beat the automobile industry at its own game October 5 to 11. They will call it "Say It With Flowers" week.

How extensive are the preparations for greater business is indicated by the fact that the unprecedented number of 1,000 firms filed incorporation papers during July. The capitalization totaled $1,419,539,700.

SOME opinion is that present high prices are the result of slackened production, caused by buyers' postponing purchases last winter in the hope of lower post-war prices. If that argument is logical, it does not augur well for those who are putting off buying next season's supplies now.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS FORMS.

Firms which ship plants to Canada should be informed that the form issued by the United States Treasury Department for customs service, headed "Shipper's Export Declaration," is useless to Canadian consignees as an invoice with which to pass the entries through the Canadian customs house. The form required is a blank approved by the Canadian Department of Customs and sold by customs house brokers. Two of the requisite invoices are required by the Canadian customs.

We might add that a number of United States concerns enclose United States stamps when they ask for replies to letters. Of course, such stamps are useless in Canada.

FAILURES SHOW PROSPERITY.

Remarkably favorable as the small number of failures per month has appeared for a long period, reflecting the prosperous state of the country's business, the July returns make a showing that is wholly without parallel. From an economic standpoint, the developments of 1919 have upset many calculations, and though it was some time ago said in certain quarters that insolvencies had then probably reached the absolute minimum, there has been an almost unbroken decline this year in the commercial mortality.

With only 452 commercial failures in the United States, July set a mark that is unmatched by the record of any former month whatever for more than a quarter of a century, or since monthly statistics were first compiled, and the $5,507,010 of liabilities reported to R. G. Dun & Co. for July are below those of any preceding month in two decades.

EXPORT DEMAND ADDS DANGER.

What is happening in the leather industry now may be repeated in regard to coal ere long. The shoe manufacturer who turned down an offer of leather on account of the price one day, but changed his mind shortly after, found that he could not buy the hides at any price. "If you do not wish to take them at this figure, we shall sell them for export," had written the leather merchant, and he had kept his word. Now that Italy cannot get its full supply of coal from England, the manufacturers of the country appeal to the United States for fuel. A fleet of 100 vessels just purchased from the government by a private concern are, it is reported, to be laden with coal for Italy at once. The coal producers, who have been unable to get rid of their stocks of coal because consumers would not listen to the warnings to buy beforehand, will in all probability take this means of moving their accumulation to make room for more from the mines. Though such action adds danger to the already ominous prospect of famine next winter, they are scarcely to be blamed if they take it, for the only way to keep the mines working at capacity is to move the supplies on hand to make room for more. The storage yards and distributing points cannot hold enough to insure a season's supply without the consumers' laying away a fair stock in advance in their bins. With this in mind, one sees justice in the coal men's statement that the responsibility for a fuel famine next winter lies upon the consumers.

WHO KNOWS THIS?

I am writing to you in the hope that you may be able to help me locate a plant similar to one I had several years ago. I lost the stock and have not been able to replace it.

The plant I have in mind was a beautiful pink verbena, considerably larger than any seedling verbena. It bloomed profusely, but never seeded. It propagated by runners. I would like to have a stock of this plant again, as it always was a good seller. G. H.—Ia.

RESULTS LAST ALL SUMMER.

In the Memorial Day Number, last spring, an advertiser offered poinsettias for delivery in late summer—it was a full-page ad and it looked good. Why not repeat it in the Convention Number, August 21, as this is planting time? Here is the answer:

The only trouble is that the page ad in May brought more orders than I have been able to fill all summer. It paid big money.—F. E. Cremer, Hanover, Pa., August 9, 1919.

When you hear a florist complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

These are the days when the market has chills and fever. The demand at this time of the year is more erratic than at any other season. There will be an extremely good day, with those just before and after decidedly quiet. The reason apparently is that a large part of the business in the good old summer time still is funeral work. One of the local wholesalers, anxious to increase his knowledge of the situation and to move as much stock as possible, spent a handful of dollars August 11 in long distance telephone calls to his customers in the principal cities for 500 miles around. He says that in each case he was told that there is not much doing except funeral work, which comes spasmodically. His telephone calls did not produce enough orders to aggregate as much as the tolls, but later in the day he heard by wire from several of the customers who needed nothing in the morning. Considering the week ending August 11, it was not nearly so good as the week ending August 4.

Having time on his hands last week another wholesaler employed it in figuring the average price of roses for the preceding week and for the corresponding week a year ago. He found that the prices obtained for roses in the first week of August this year were sixteen per cent higher than the prices obtained a year ago. The method of figuring was to ascertain the average price of all the roses received in the house in each of the weeks under consideration. The conditions under which the comparison was made seemed to be in every way equal, uninfluenced by factors which applied one year and not the other. It was considered a fair estimate of the effect on the flower business of changed general business conditions. As a matter of fact, more roses were handled this year at the higher price than last year at the lower price, though there was no urgent demand affecting the market either time.

There are only three items of stock offered in sufficient quantity to be worthy of special mention. These are roses, gladioli and asters. The miscellaneous items are less numerous than for a long time and the quantity of each available is so small that an occasional combination of two or three orders serves to make the flowers hard to find.

There is a considerable increase in the supply of roses, numerous growers making the first cut from young stock. Beauties are again more plentiful and are selling well, especially those cut from young plants. The demand for long Beauties is limited at this time of the year, but they are still bringing much better prices than last summer. The three principal roses are Columbia, Russell and Premier, the quantity available being in the order stated, in most houses. Other varieties also are in large supply and any rose needs can be met, especially if short stems will do.

Gladioli have accumulated for the first time in several weeks. The better grades of stock still are selling well, but inferior stock is sold with considerable difficulty. There are large supplies of asters, but most of them are rather poor, the flowers being small and the stems short. They are only useful for work.

Greens of all kinds are in good supply.

sion house law, have been told that forms are not yet ready, but that applicants will be communicated with in due time. In the meanwhile, no action is being taken.

It is reported some of the commission houses have been sounding their growers on the desire for daily reports, with the result that some difference of opinion has developed. Part of the growers think it would be fine to have a daily report and check, but others feel that such a system would lead to selling stock on the day of receipt, for what it would bring. This of course would have little consequence on a short market, but it would unquestionably lower values on an easy market, for wholesalers now hold consignments instead of selling at once when they feel that weather or other conditions make

Various Notes.

Walter and Herbert Amling have contracted, with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., for the erection of three steel frame greenhouses each 36x300 at Pana, Ill., in consummation of the deal described in The Review last week.

Arthur M. Anderson, of the A. L. Randall Co., who recently made a three months' trip to Europe in quest of merchandise, says he has been greatly impressed with the difference in the point of view of retail florists and other merchants. He says it is the characteristic attitude of florists to want to buy as little as possible, just enough to get along. On the other hand, wherever he goes to buy goods for Randall, there he finds representatives of department stores and other large establishments, hunting things they can buy and sell. These men are eager to buy: nothing pleases them so much as to find goods they can stock up on and push. Mr. Anderson thinks the same policy, pursued with discretion, would profit all retail florists.

Philip M. Broadbeck, one of the oldest of the rose growers for the Chicago market, has decided to put his place at Evanston on the market with a view to retiring. There are 40,000 feet of glass in Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney. Located on the boundary line between Chicago and Evanston, the property is becoming more valuable every year, but Mr. Broadbeck says he will be satisfied to clean up and quit now, even with another big season in sight.

Paul Klingsporn reports the following new life members of the S. A. F.: Joseph Foerster, Philip C. Schupp, H. B. Kennicott, Albert Koehler, Edwin Clody and Samuel Seligman. New annual members are A. S. Brunton and John M. Elzinqua.

One of those interested in the subject has compiled a list of seventy-seven Chicagoans who will be at Detroit next week, a large number of them armed with order books.

The A. L. Randall Co. reports that on the payroll of its factories, sales staff and office force there was a total of 377 names last week.

The American Bulb Co. expects to receive a car of Formosa lily bulbs by the time this issue of The Review is out. A car of Paper Whites left New York August 6.

Edward Galavan and his co-workers at Randall's who are members of the Illinois Reserve Militia, returned to business August 11, after spending two weeks on guard duty in the stock yards race riot district.

C. S. Claussen has returned from a fortnight's trip east, to Washington, New York and out on Long Island, the Oldsmobile covering a little over 2,000 miles. Of course he had to stop at Visitors.

Hans Tobler came down from Traverse City, Mich., for the week end, expecting to meet here his brother, Jacob Tobler, the Kansas City florist. Hans, who has spent many years as a private gardener, is looking for a place he can buy to start in business, growing and retailing. Readers of The Review will recall that the Traverse City florist and undertaker, Ralph Anderson, disappeared from a lake steamer last June while returning home from a visit to the Chicago market, where he was a large buyer. Mr. Tobler says no word of the missing man has been heard at Traverse City, any more than here, and that he has been given up for dead. Mr. Tobler says the establishment of the Traverse City Refrigerator Co. is showing increased activity in the hands of the Randall-Johnson interests.

The Market.

The two principal flowers on the market continue to be the aster and gladiolus. Each is of fine quality, thanks in great measure to the copious rain we have had of late. Asters are of excellent size and quality, but are much more abundant and are lower in price. Strictly fancy flowers, however, continue to sell at double the prices of former years. Gladioli are nearing their flood tide and move more sluggishly. Varieties like Schwaben, Europa, Myrtle, Pink Perfection, Panama, Pendleton and good forms of primulinus sell well. While salesmen and retailers continue to buy heavily of the large-flowered gandavensis varieties, customers are demanding more and more the graceful and beautiful forms of primulinus. There are few sweet peas coming in and these are not of good quality. Dahlias, salpiglossis, gaillardias and a variety of outdoor flowers are arriving.

Carnations are practically out of the market. Roses are coming in a little more freely than a week ago and the absence of intense heat has improved their quality. The best American Beauties sell at $4 per dozen and hybrid teas at from $1 to $12 per hundred, according to quality. There are some Lilium auratum and L. speciosum, in addition to a few longiflorums. Of cattleyas some gigas are coming in and sell at $12 to $15 per dozen, with smaller varieties at lower prices. There is only a light demand for asparagus. Flowering plants, with the exception of a few tubs of hydrangeas, are out of the market and retail stores are dependent on foliage plants, ferns, water lilies and gladioli for decorative purposes.

For six varieties of gladioli, white, A. L. Stephen was first; also for six varieties of pink, six varieties of lavender and six varieties of yellow. W. N. Craig was first and second for six primulinus and second for six yellow varieties. E. M. Brewer had the best new seedling. George N. Smith was first for twelve varieties of herbaceous phlox and for six gladiolus spikes of one variety. A feature of the show was the increasing preponderance of primulinus forms of gladioli. These appeared to attract visitors far more than the larger and stiffer-flowered gandavensis and other types. There were excellent displays of fruits and vegetables.

Various Notes.

Robert Cameron, who has served as superintendent at the Harvard Botanical Gardens for exactly thirty-one years this week, leaves August 15 to accept a position as superintendent of the estate of Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, located in Topsfield, Mass. The estate covers 2,500 acres and has extensive gardens, farms and woodlands, which it is planned to still further improve, although there has already been an outlay of $2,000,000 on the estate.

There was a large attendance, including many of his old friends in the trade, at the funeral of Robert Montgomery August 7. There were numerous beautiful floral tokens, among them remembrances from the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and other organizations of which the deceased was a member. The business in Natick, established thirty years ago, will be continued by his son, Alexander Montgomery.

There has been, during the last few days, a decided increase in interest in the S. A. F. Detroit convention and it looks as if a party of fifteen or twenty would go from Boston and vicinity. The majority will stop over a day in Buffalo, taking the night boat for Detroit.

Railroad strikes and greatly reduced train service have been Boston's lot the last few days. This has particularly inconvenienced the florists in towns nearby, to which steam railroad service has been all but eliminated. Coming at the dull season, the loss to florists is small and, as public feeling is decidedly hostile to the men, it is not believed that the strike will be of long duration. Those planning to go to Detroit are a little worried at the present outlook.

Visitors last week included A. H. Diprose, Rochester, N. Y., and A. E. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J.

annual exhibition of fruits, flowers and vegetables scheduled for September 11 to 14 to September 25 to 28, at Horticultural hall. About $2,500 is offered in premiums at this show. The annual show of children's garden produce comes August 30 and 31 and promises to be a good one.

The meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be resumed September 16. The lecturer of the evening will be Prof. J. G. Jack, of the Arnold Arboretum, on "Berried Trees and Shrubs."

Welch Bros. Co. is having excellent summer business. Patrick Welch will leave the ocean breezes of Old Orchard, Me., to take in the Detroit convention.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bartsch are planning to attend the Detroit convention. Others from Waverley who are going are L. J. Reuter, E. A. Peirce and son, and Frank Edgar.

Joseph Reardon, a Kew graduate and for two years assistant at Harvard Botanical Gardens, succeeds Robert Cameron there as superintendent.

John T. Slayter has left the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., and, after a vacation, plans to start in business on his own account.

Among the gladiolus specialists who are going to Detroit are H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., who will take Lilywhite, his new Lilac Royal and other good varieties, and B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, with a lot of the Cedar Acres specialties. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will invite the American Gladiolus Society to meet in Boston in 1920. W. N. C.

The Market.

At the wholesale markets last week things were exceedingly dull, especially after the early morning sales were over. There is a great scarcity of good flowers. The dry weather has greatly cut down the outdoor flowers and it is just as well, as the demand during the last week was slow.

There was really no active demand for any one kind of flowers, except gladioli, and these are not overplentiful, as is customary at this time of the year. The fancy varieties in these clean up almost daily at stiff prices.

Carnations seem almost out of the market, as all of our local florists are planting young stock. However, there are large quantities of asters coming in from out of town. Those of the best grades sell well. Few roses of fancy grade are coming in. There is plenty of short-stemmed stock in Russell and Ophelia, which would be classed as job lots during the fall and winter seasons. Other stock coming in is made up of plenty of single tuberose stalks, hardy hydrangeas, phlox and Golden Glow.

The green goods market shows an ample supply in asparagus, galax and flat ferns, but good smilax is scarce.

County Growers' Meeting.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its regular monthly meeting at the Eleven Mile House, August 6, at 8 p. m. There was a large attendance when President Chas. Meier called the meeting to order. During the evening several discussions took place on building new greenhouses, hail insurance and matters pertaining to the coming S. A. F. convention at Detroit.

State Vice-president W. J. Pilcher, of the S. A. F., was present and spoke on the advantages of life membership in the society and his time was not wasted, as he took several life memberships away with him.

As there is considerable building going on in the county, the price of building material and glass was fully discussed. This subject was one of great interest.

It was decided to hold the annual picnic early in September and all arrangements were left in the hands of the trustees.

The rest of the evening was taken up with talks on preparations for the coming season to supply cut stock for the local market. The next meeting will take place September 3, at 8 p. m.

Various Notes.

President J. F. Ammann, of the S. A. F., paid a visit to the wholesale district Thursday, August 7, and reported that he would leave a week in advance of the St. Louis party for Detroit, as he, with Secretary John Young and several Detroit florists, would attend the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, which meets August 12 to 14 at Toronto.

A. G. Greiner, the cactus specialist on the Natural Bridge road, had many visitors last week to view a century plant in full bloom. Mr. Greiner says he has had this plant in his possession for the last twenty-six years. At the time of the World's Fair he was offered $100 for a pair of the plants, but was unable to find another like it.

W. A. Rowe, head of the Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood, reports that his new range of glass, erected by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., is now complete and the force is busy planting several houses of fine chrysanthemum plants in continue to make up the bulk of the flowers coming into the market.

There is no shortage of good Asters with us. This week we will have a good supply of indoor grown Asters, and of the Semple Asters. The Best will cost you $4.00 and $5.00 per 100—Good Asters $2.00 and $3.00—Shorts $1.50 per 100. The late Asters generally are the Best of the season.

Gladioli, good varieties, $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00 per 100. We never had better Gladioli, both as to quality and varieties. For $10.00 we will send you 300 good Gladioli.

In Roses, Russell, Maryland, Ophelia and Sunburst are the best. We have a good supply of them every day, considered good stock for this time of year.

dence of Mr. Kuehn in his younger days, he says he will feel quite at home when he gets there.

The Florists' Club transportation committee has everything in readiness for the S. A. F. convention trip. They have arranged for a special parlor car to leave here August 18, at 8:15 a. m., via the Wabash railroad, arriving at Detroit 10:10 p. m, the same day. The party from here promises to be the largest ever attending an S. A. F. convention. J. J. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

August 9 closed the dullest week of the summer. There was a light supply of flowers and a lighter demand for them. The buyers naturally wanted the best for their orders, but even the best were not all sold and much more of the ordinary grades of flowers were left over.

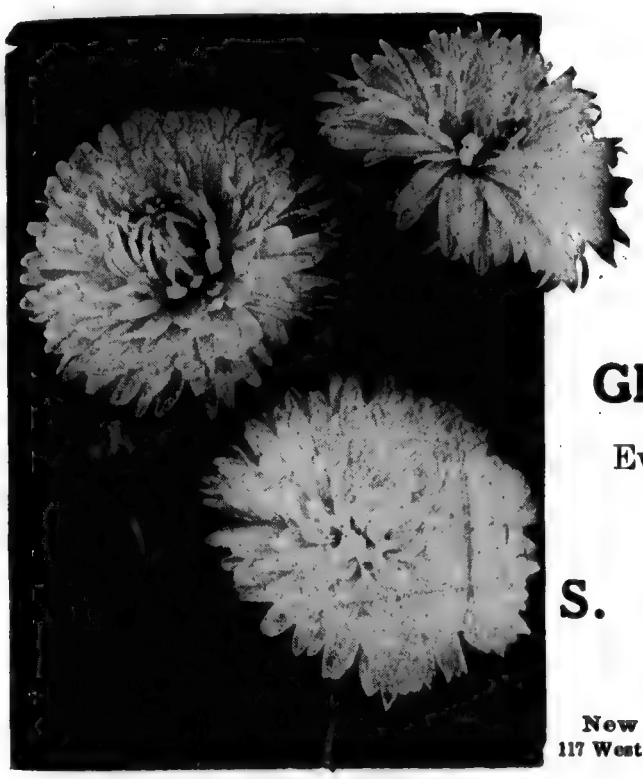
There are signs that the gladiolus, so far the leading outdoor flower of the season, will be replaced by the aster. Herada and Pendleton are being replaced by Augusta and Niagara and the finest spikes appear to be passing the height of their season.

Astermums, the name given the mum-like asters, are a little more plentiful and the early varieties of asters are being replaced by the later and finer sorts. Astermums are preferred at the higher price, by buyers who want good stock, to the ordinary asters.

Roses are a little more plentiful. The early flowers from the new crop are replacing the late flowers from the old crop. This means better flowers, but poorer stems.

Supplementary.

It often happens that the growers cannot go to town to look over the market when they would like to do so. One of the aims of this column is to serve such growers. It is becoming daily clearer that the increased cost of growing can be readily met by growing fine flowers. It cannot be met with poor ones. Deep colors, fancy colors and mixed colors can be sold to advantage at times only. Clear, light colors can be sold to advantage nearly all the time. There are one or two exceptions to this rule. Getting the flowers to market in perfect condition is absolutely necessary.



To the Slope.

J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and Mrs. Eisele left their home in Riverton, N. J., for a trip to the Pacific slope Thursday, August 7. They spent part of August 8 and 9 in Chicago and then left for St. Paul. Monday, August 11, was spent looking over the gardens so carefully laid out by Theodore Wirth, in Minneapolis. They then left for Yellowstone park, where it was planned to spend five days seeing the natural wonders. The trip, which was carefully arranged by George D. Clark, includes stops at Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, returning by way of St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Eisele has crossed the Atlantic many times, but he has never seen the shores of the Pacific. It is thought that the plant embargo that went into effect June 1 may have caused him to look into the possibilities of our own country or it may be that the real magnet lies in the rose garden of Howard & Smith, at Los Angeles, Cal. Be that as it may, Mr. Eisele is certain of a hearty welcome from all who know his sterling worth all over this broad land.

crossed immediately to France, where he has been actively engaged since in endeavoring to rejuvenate the supply industry, so badly crippled by the war.

Harry Bayersdorfer, who has represented his house in Europe for thirty-five years, planned going himself. Mr. Bayersdorfer gave this up because the government would not issue a passport to Mrs. Bayersdorfer, who has always accompanied him. Owing to the moving of troops, passports are only issued to those who are going abroad on business and not to tourists who wish to return. This rule excluded Mrs. Bayersdorfer. As her husband did not wish to go without her, their son went in his father's place. He eagerly accepted the responsibility and is now on his first trip across seas.

On to Detroit.

All the leading houses of Philadelphia that deal in florists' supplies and plants will make handsome exhibits at the Detroit convention of the S. A. F. August 19, 20 and 21. They feel that there is going to be a great revival of interest in floriculture and they mean to do their utmost to make the convention exhibition thoroughly representative of the latest ideas in supplies and the highest degree of culture in plants. The cheering news that the western railroads are open is most welcome.

Easter Lilies.

The latest advices from Japan are that about one quarter of the 1917 crop of Lilium giganteum will come to this country this fall. The prices on these bulbs are likely to be about four times those of two years ago. What effect such high prices will have on the demand remains to be seen. It is probable that the bulbs will be of fair quality. It is improbable that there will be cheap lilies next Easter, April 4, 1920.

Various Notes.

Henry Bauer is away on his vacation.

There have been a number of horticultural celebrities in town this week. Among them were Louis Wittbold, of Chicago; F. C. Holp, Louisville, Ky.; Thomas W. Pennock, of Cruce & Pennock Co., Atlanta, Ga.; George L. Sutton, Portsmouth, Va.; A. D. Evans, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the senior member of the Jones-Russell Co., of Cleveland, O.

J. Otto Thilow returned from a week at Lake Placid, N. Y., August 12.

Harry Bayersdorfer has been finding accommodations for out-of-town florists who will attend the Masons' convention in our City of Brotherly Love September 8.

Robert Craig, Henry I. Faust and Miss Marion Faust returned from a delightful motor trip through New England.

George D. Clark will make a flying trip to California about August 23.

Arthur Zirkman, Jr., who was over there, expects to return to the University of Pennsylvania this fall.

The cannas at Riverview are wonderfully fine owing to the heavy rains.

I wish you would publish in your paper that Charles H. Beam, sometimes representing himself to be my son, is no longer in my employ, and has not been since June 1, 1918. He has been going among the retail florists of Philadelphia borrowing small sums of money on the plea of automobile trouble. He has also obtained money on his personal check, but had no funds in bank.

The Market.

The market last week took quite a jump. The demand for funeral work was good and the supply was somewhat limited. The rains of a few weeks ago ruined everything outdoors and it has taken several weeks for stock to recover. This enabled the commission houses to keep pretty well cleaned up, with no gluts to contend with except in Hydrangea paniculata, of which there is entirely too much to handle.

for what is now coming to the market is short-stemmed, small and off color. Gladioli are coming in fair supply and of good quality. The glut seems to be over, and while there is some of poor quality still to be seen, most of them are of the better grade. Asters are becoming better each day and, like gladioli, are improving in quality each year. Some of them are almost equal to chrysanthemums, but, as with gladioli, the majority of the growers seem slow to take up the improved varieties. When they are taken up they will have become plentiful and the growers will have missed their opportunities to share in the high prices they might have had if they had acted sooner.

Various Notes.

Fred Bauer has been pushing his work and has his carnations all housed, also his rose houses replanted with young stock, and is now ready, with Mrs. Bauer, to go to Detroit. In fact, Fred, who always takes time by the forelock, told me that he was sorry the convention was not this week, as he was all in shape to take a week off. Another who, with his wife, will journey to Detroit, is Isaac H. Moss. He, too, has been arranging his work with the convention in view and is now ready for a week's holiday. Robert L. Graham and wife, in spite of the accident told of in last week's issue of The Review, will be at the convention, stopping at Atlantic City on their way home. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will be gone three weeks. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Johnston, who are spending the summer in New York, will go from there and return to New York. They will be back in Baltimore the first week in September.

Richard Vincent, Jr., who never misses a convention, will also be in the Baltimore party, accompanied by his wife. This old warrior, who did so much to make the Baltimore convention a few years ago such a success when he was elected president of the S. A. F., is more than enthusiastic over the convention coming to Baltimore in 1921. Uncle Richard is just as young as ever he was and says that the members all over the country are still talking of the way the Baltimore boys put the convention over at that time. When we take into consideration the strides that Baltimore has taken since that time, that convention will not be in it with the one we intend to hold in 1921. The S. A. F. convention each year seems to keep Mr. Vincent young.

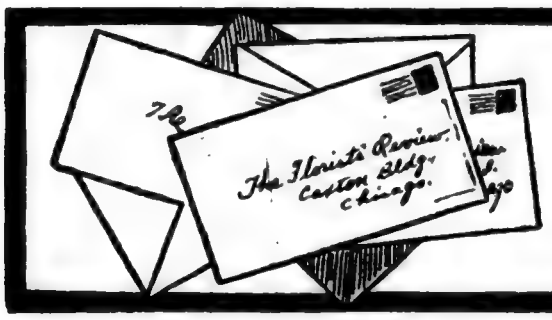
Thomas Stevenson, of Stevenson Bros., his sister and nephew, will also be members of the Baltimore party at the convention. Stevenson Bros. are all ready for the coming season, as their roses are in great shape and Tom has well earned the vacation that the trip to Detroit will give him. While his nephew is still but a boy of about 15, yet he has something on many who are much older as a rose grower. He spends most of his time out of school in the houses with his uncle and there is not a trick of the trade that he is not familiar with. He loves the work and it will only take a few years of experience to make him one of the best rose growers in the east.

Andrew Anderson, who goes along saying nothing but always listening and growing fine roses, will also make the trip with his daughter.



John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., with his family and that "tin lizzie" which stops when it meets a florist on the road, has just returned after a week's tour of the eastern shore. Mr. Perry went as far south as Ocean City and reports one of the finest trips he ever had.

Akehurst & Sons are busy housing their carnations. We can all remember how this firm was handicapped for labor last summer, yet they cut more fine carnations last winter than ever before. From the appearance of the stock that is going on the benches this year, they will surpass last winter's cut. Tate.

SURELY

You cannot afford to overlook the New York Market if you are a shipper of flowers.

New York prices are always the best prices and the demand is always good.

You do not need to take our word for it, either—just investigate.

Special opportunity for a couple of good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is greater than our supply.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Here's the Evidence.

Letters such as the following are worth publishing, for they furnish evidence, if such were needed, that our publicity campaign is effective: "Our experience has been so thoroughly satisfactory that we feel inclined to help as much as we are able. As you no doubt know, we subscribed $50 when this movement was started and we will authorize you to increase our subscription to $100 a year. We feel we have been benefited and wish to show our appreciation. Drumm Seed & Floral Co., Fort Worth, Tex."

Here is a shaft for the many skeptics whose consciences have not yet prompted them to contribute to the campaign fund and who console themselves with the idea that because people do not come into their stores and anounce that they do so owing to the impression made upon them by our national advertising, the campaign must be fruitless.

If flower buyers were to do anything like this, subscriptions would come in avalanches. And yet our publicity is accomplishing its purpose. Flower buying is certainly stimulated and the stimulation is noticed by many of our craft, just as it is by the Drumm Seed & Floral Co.

Whenever you see the word "additional" in connection with the announcement of a subscription, you may be sure that the person or concern making the contribution is in earnest, and realizes full well the great value of the campaign.

The R. & S. Flower Store, Missoula, Mont., writes: "In this small town of 20,000 we have noticed the effect of the national advertising, especially on Mothers' day and Christmas. We know it has made flower buyers out of several here who never would have thought of buying flowers if it had not been for reading the advertisements."

The good results now enjoyed by the whole trade are due to faith in the work evinced by a few far-seeing and generous men, whose horizon of view is a little beyond that of nearly ninety per cent of our craft, who have so far failed to help in the movement. Personal contact with the latter is impossible, but we have found that where individuals can be interviewed, they "come across" without much hesitation. If anyone who has not subscribed feels that he would like further information in regard to the campaign, the same will be forthcoming upon application to the secretary.

The committees are calling for quick action, as the extent of arrangements

Horticultural Society's Exhibition.

The exhibition of the North Shore Horticultural Society, held in Horticultural hall, August 6 and 7, was the largest in years. The entire upper and lower halls were filled with flowers, as there was not enough room in the upper hall to accommodate the number of exhibitors.

The largest exhibit in the hall was that of J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass., who received silver medals for his displays of dahlias, gladioli and phlox. He had two large tables decorated with dahlias. Among them was a large basket of Mr. Alexander's new seedling decorative dahlia, Frank A. Walker, which received the award of merit. It is lavender pink and has a long, stiff stem. Other new dahlias were Bianca, lavender and white blending, of the hybrid cactus type; King of the Autumn, a clear orange decorative, and Mrs. Warnaar, white with pink suffusion, of the hybrid cactus type. All three were late importations from Holland. Mr. Alexander's new show dahlia, Maude Adams, was shown; it is a blending of pink and white. Kalif, a crimson-scarlet hybrid cactus, was one of the finest red dahlias in the show.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., had an artistic display of primulinus gladioli. Mr. Tracy's exhibit covered the stage of the hall and was set off by a screen of spruce trees, with spruce boughs effectively laid among the baskets.

A silver medal was awarded the display of gladioli grown by W. N. Craig and exhibited for the originator, A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind. Marie Kunderd, a pure white ruffled seedling, was awarded a certificate of merit, as were

The Market.

Business continues to be good throughout this locality. Notwithstanding the fact that it is summertime and flowers are fairly plentiful in the yards, the demand continues to be good. Funeral work continues to be quite heavy and weddings have been more numerous during the last week. We are now beginning to see large quantities of gladioli on the market and, so far, much cannot be said of their quality. Exceptionally good Schwaben are seen, their stems being well filled with perfect blooms. Americas are also holding their own in good shape. Prices are low on these, however, owing to the large number arriving each day. Gypsophila is also plentiful, but sells easily. The supply of sweet peas is small and the quality is quite poor. The excessively hot weather of the last few weeks, with little rain, has in many cases ruined the crop of sweet peas. Consequently their stems are short and blooms in many cases are burned. The supply of roses is quite large and takes care of all orders. The quality continues to be quite good, and fine stock is seen in Sunburst, Maryland, Russell, Ophelia, September Morn, Ward and Killarney. Zinnias are plentiful and sell at low figures. Carnations are small and are picked from outdoor plants. A fair number of asters arrive daily and sell well, being of good size. The demand for orchids is not large. A few good yellow chrysanthemums are seen, but the supply is quite limited. Bachelor's buttons, hardy phlox, calendulas, buddleias, gaillardias, hardy summer chrysanthemums, mignonette and candytuft are all in good supply and clear at summer prices. The supply of green goods meets all requirements.

tion last week featuring several varieties of gladioli. Several large plants of auratum lilies were arranged in the display.

Cecil Lester, of Hart & Vick, Inc., has returned from a two weeks' vacation, the greater part of which was spent at the lake, fishing and canoeing.

The trade was fairly besieged with traveling men during the last week. The majority of them were on their way to the Canadian convention, at Toronto, August 12 to 15, and to the S. A. F., at Detroit. Among the many who called were J. J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York; Stephen D. Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; R. E. Blackshaw, of Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Morris Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York, and J. H. Moore, of the Sefton Mfg. Co., Joliet, Ill.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

Post-War Meeting at Cleveland.

The annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at Cleveland, August 26 to 28. This is the first convention in two years, as the one which was to have taken place last year was postponed on account of war conditions then existing. The Hotel Hollenden will be the scene of the meetings, which are expected to draw a large gathering of gardeners.

The Market.

"Just fair," describes local business for the week. Until last Friday there were few shipping orders, but that day brought a heavy call for anything that could be obtained and the week closed with stocks completely cleaned up. Stock is better. Roses are plentiful and good, selling at $6 to $12 per hundred. Home-grown gladioli are good in quality, but there are few of them, owing to the dry weather. Good ones are coming from Colorado and sell at $8 and $10 per hundred. Asters, shipped in, are $3, $4 and $5 per hundred. The home-grown ones are still small and it will be several weeks before they will be at their best.

Various Notes.

A. Newell is settled in his new location, 1122 Grand avenue, and business is going on as smoothly as ever. Mr. Newell plans to have an opening sometime in the fall, when the weather is more favorable. Mr. Newell's shop is decidedly artistic and attractive. The woodwork is white enamel and mahogany. All of the counters are marble and mirrors cover a great part of the walls, which are done in a soft shade of tan. A large display window has a floor of green tile and is filled with growing ferns. Mr. Newell says he is prepared to do double the business of the old place.

M. E. Carter, manager of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has returned from a week's vacation in the Ozarks. Mr. Carter also attended the two weeks' encampment of the 7th Regiment, National Guard, at Nevada, Mo., the early part of July.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rock and son, Lawrence, and Mrs. Margaret Simpson and Miss Elizabeth Simpson will leave August 12 for a motor trip to the pine woods of Minnesota. They will be gone a month.

Mrs. Edith Roberts, who recently returned from a five months' stay in California, was suddenly taken ill August 6 and was rushed to the Research hospital, where she underwent an operation the next day. Her condition is not considered dangerous.

Charles E. Leite, vice-president of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., is in Glenwood, Colo., for several weeks.

Tucker Smith, president of the Pinehurst Floral Co., and P. A. Manson, manager of the greenhouses, were in Kansas City, August 7.

Miss Helen Kirby, private secretary to W. L. Rock, and John F. Murray, of Philadelphia, were married August 14 in Holy Name church, Twenty-third street and Benton boulevard. They will go to California and Honolulu on a wedding trip. J. F. K.

South Bend, Ind.—R. Williams, of Williams & Co., and A. J. Meyer, of Bay City, have purchased the greenhouses of the South Bend Floral Co. The greenhouses have 35,000 square feet of glass. Mr. Meyer, who is an experienced grower, will have charge of the greenhouses. They will be run separately from the store, which Mr. Williams continues to manage.

Newport, R. I.—Wadley & Smythe had the decorations for the coming out party for Miss Florence Loew. At the dinner, Miss Loew's table had a pink rose-tree in full bloom, with sprays of evergreen. The smaller tables had decorations of flowers with basket centerpieces. The dancing pavilion was decorated with hollyhocks and gladioli. A canopy led from the house to a large marquee on the lawn. The ceilings and sides of the canopy were concealed by smilax, and orange and bay trees.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Retailers report a dull week. Funeral work has fallen off and nothing is taking its place. Fortunately, there has been no great amount of stock in the market to be thrown away. Good quality gladioli have been scarce. Asters have been plentiful and of fine quality and the out-of-town demand has kept up well. Roses from inside are of fair quality only, but there has been a good supply of outdoor flowers that are much better than usual at this season. Orchids are practically out of the market, only a few being seen. The northern growers are not shipping any to Los Angeles, while the local supply has never been equal to the demand. In addition, a great portion of one of the largest collections has been sold and sent north.

Zinnias are arriving in a little better shape, but so far the quality has not been up to the standard. The demand for small flowers continues fairly good. Amaryllis Belladonna is in, but is not in much demand. Greens are about equal to the call. Good huckleberry is the scarcest item. There are no flowering plants and little variety in foliage plants.

There is a feeling in the air that the coming season is going to be bigger and better than any heretofore. Large business firms are picking Los Angeles as a base for future operations, and the last two dry seasons have shown the inestimable value of such an abundant water supply as the city possesses. Real estate dealers and other operators report favorably and the general trend of affairs is bound to react upon the florists' trade. Hence the optimistic feeling.

Various Notes.

W. Armacost & Co. have secured a new location at 321 East Fourth street, and will move into it about October 1. The store will be 50x112 feet and specially equipped for the business. The icebox will be 8x40 feet and in three sections.

J. Dieterich is making excellent progress in his new location at Wintersburg, the new lath house being about half planted. He is making a specialty of aspidistras. They are largely grown in this vicinity. Many thousands have already been planted and a great many more are on the way, large importations coming from Japan.

Otto Lang, of the Lang Floral Co., Dallas, Tex., was in town last week, and A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., showed him around the city.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, Santa Barbara, has been suffering from deafness and was in the city last week to consult an ear specialist.

Otto Saake visited San Francisco last week.

One of the first local cases regarding the late delivery of Dutch bulbs in 1917 was decided recently. The defendant was Polder Bros., of Montebello, who were sued by a Dutch firm. Polder Bros. won the case.

Notice appears in the obituary column this week of the death of Michael Eischen, father of George Eischen, of Ocean Park.

Alfred Forder, of Cincinnati, was a visitor last week, having arrived by way of San Francisco. Mrs. Forder accompanied him.

F. C. McNabb, president and manager of the Arizona Seed Co., Phoenix, Ariz., was in the city last week. Mr. McNabb is taking an automobile tour and intends to go north as far as San Francisco, taking in all points of interest en route. He reports a fine season's business.

The lease of the property having run out, E. H. Rust has had to discontinue his nursery yard at Eleventh and Flower streets and, for the present at least, all business will be transacted from the South Pasadena place on Bank street.

WHERE SHALL I TRADE NEXT YEAR?

With ARMACOST & CO., of course!

Easy to answer that if you have visited our plant and have become acquainted with us. If you haven't we will try to tell you in this space some of the reasons that have caused Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, to come to be recognized as the best and most dependable wholesale house on the Pacific Coast.

Reason No. 5

We intended to tell you something more about our nursery this week, but a full carload of Baskets came in and we have been so busy unpacking, marking, admiring and answering questions about them that we just couldn't think of anything but Baskets for a week.

We ate Baskets, drank Baskets and dreamt Baskets. And listen! As soon as the store men saw the line and got the prices we have been busy selling and delivering Baskets.

This car was personally selected by Mr. Royston, of the firm, who scoured the East for the best. They are a dandy lot. Better hurry up and get yours. Don't forget that we have the Flowers and everything else that goes with them. You will want to trade with us because we have the biggest and best line to select from.

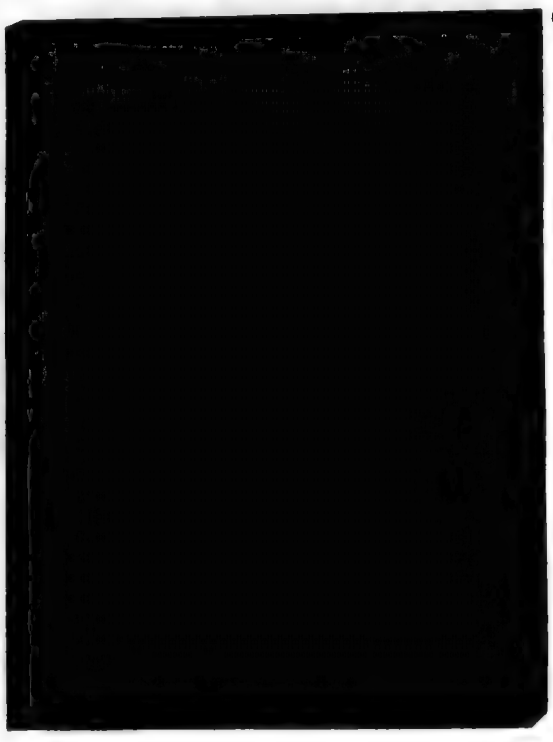
Some of the neatest and prettiest foliage plants seen for a long time are being shown by the Broadway Florist, pans of Rex begonia and coleus being especially good.



Andrew Bruce has returned from overseas and looks remarkably well. He has been making the rounds and renewing old friendships and will probably reënter the flower business after a while.

Miss Eleanor Stilson, of Chico, is paying a visit to Los Angeles, where she lived for several years before starting in the flower business in her home town.

Although many of the roses at the Wright's Flower Shop greenhouses have been thrown out for replanting, there is a fine show in the icebox every day of better quality than is usually seen at this time of year. Mr. Wright has become a convert to humus, having recently purchased a carload from the L. A. Floral Co.

Mrs. C. Gutting and daughter, Eunice, have returned from their trip to Bear valley and both report an enjoyable trip. Mr. Gutting holds the florists' record for quick trips to the valley, as he frequently makes the round trip in a day.

The Market.

All cut flowers, with the exception of asters and gladioli, continue to be scarce and high in price. There has been considerable improvement in quality. Last week the market was flooded with exceptionally fine gladioli, the paler shades predominating. Good specimens of Mrs. Francis King, Schwaben and Niagara were seen, all three displaying large blooms on long stems. Asters are now plentiful, but the present cutting tends toward small blooms. The keeping qualities are good, however, due to the cool weather, and shipping is being carried on in considerable volume.

Roses have been scarcer than ever, but the stock improved in quality last week. Ophelias, particularly, were in good shape, bringing $1 per dozen wholesale. The best quality of red roses sold for $1.25 per dozen and Columbias brought from $1.50 to $2 per dozen.

The continued spell of cold, cloudy weather is holding back the dahlia crop in the vicinity of San Francisco. The stock in local depots is rather low for the time of year, although a number of the choicer varieties are now in bloom and bring good prices.

Orchids are practically off crop, and only a few blooms are available. The retail shops are selling single orchids for $1.50; the customers are glad to get them at any price. Gardenias, too, are hard to obtain, but both orchids and gardenias will begin to be more plentiful after September 1.

Various Notes.

Louis Picetti, manager of the Market street store of the Chas. Navlet Co., reports a fine beginning on domestic bulb sales. This firm had on display last week a large stock of freesia, tulip, daffodil and narcissus bulbs. Mr. Picetti says that the buying is brisk by out-of-town growers who anticipate a scarcity of bulbs later in the season.

H. E. Hallawell has not returned from his vacation trip. He expects to be back soon, however, and Mrs. Hallawell, who takes charge of affairs in her husband's absence, states that they are preparing for an unusually large bulb season and are getting the domestic stock in readiness. She expects the first shipment of Holland bulbs soon after October 1. Quantities of perennial seeds are being sold now, as the season is well started.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., states that the firm is shipping quantities of asters and some chrysanthemums, although the last mentioned are not in good crop yet. This company is getting $3 per bunch for good asters, each bunch containing ten dozen. Mr. Avansino says that there are about 25,000 freesia bulbs left and he expects to clean up on these in a short time.

White, pink and yellow chrysanthemums are received daily by the United Flower & Supply Co. and are sold at $1.50 per dozen. The growers are sending in plenty of asters now, which sell at from 25 to 35 cents per dozen. Shipping business, the management states, is improving steadily.

A large stock of aspidistra plants was seen at the store of Domoto Bros. the early part of the week. This firm has also started aster shipments.

Enomoto & Co. are shipping fine asters. Mr. Enomoto is well pleased with the crop this year.

C. Kooyman is rushed these days attending to his large bulb stock. The domestic stock is in splendid condition, Mr. Kooyman says. A fine stock of early cyclamen plants, white and deep red, was displayed in Mr. Kooyman's windows last week, some of the first of the fall season.

coast headquarters, which, according to the present plan, are to be maintained in this city.

J. A. Axell is once more in the vicinity of San Francisco. He is taking a short rest at Pacific Grove, Cal., and is planning to open the new shipping depot upon his return.

H. A. Hyde, Watsonville, was in San Francisco last week.

Of considerable interest to the trade is the recent alliance of the Matraia brothers, who are now associated in the ownership of the Art Floral Co. Carl Matraia, who was formerly connected with Podesta & Baldocchi, has taken an interest in the business belonging to Vincent Matraia and is actively engaged at the store on Powell street. He returned from a vacation trip a short time ago, spent at Lake Tahoe.

Victor Podesta is back from a most enjoyable tour of the southern part of the state, during which he visited many points of interest. He was particularly pleased with San Diego and spoke of the wonderful lotus which blooms so profusely in the fair grounds.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is making preparations for the big dahlia exhibition which is scheduled for September 4, 5 and 6, at the Palace hotel.

Geo. Duffy was recently transferred from the Palace hotel stand of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. to the store on Powell street. Guy Taylor, another member of the staff, met with an automobile accident last week. His back was badly wrenched. He expects to be able to resume work by next week.

F. C. Jaeger, Sr., writes that he is vastly enjoying his hunting trip at Laytonville, Cal., where he will remain until the middle of August.

A. O. Stein reported a considerable amount of funeral work last week. With this exception, business continues as usual. M. M. bricks or concrete above the surface of the ground. Where woodwork is necessary, wood impregnated with a one per cent solution of bichloride of mercury should be employed. All decaying wood in the vicinity of buildings should be removed and the breeding places of the insects destroyed. Buildings on recently cleared woodland, unless the foregoing precautions are heeded, are especially liable to attack by white ants because of the presence of decaying wood and humus in the soil.

to eliminate and stop further damage by white ants when once these insects have become established in the woodwork of a building. The approximate point of entrance should be sought at once by careful examination of all woodwork in contact with the ground. It may be necessary to tear up the flooring and other woodwork to do this. The foundation timbers and interior woodwork found damaged should be removed, and the ground where they were set drenched with kerosene oil.

The main purpose must be to prevent the insects from gaining further access to the woodwork from colonies in the ground. This may be accomplished by replacing untreated foundation timbers with stone or concrete. If it is not practicable to substitute stone foundations, foundation timbers in contact with the ground should be replaced with timbers impregnated with coal-tar creosote.

In greenhouses iron frames and concrete work should, wherever possible, replace woodwork. The wooden uprights supporting the wooden plant benches should be sawed off, if set on or in the ground, and rested on stone, bricks or concrete above the surface of the ground. Where woodwork is necessary, wood that is impregnated with a one per cent solution of bichloride of mercury should be substituted. Wood thus impregnated can be painted after treatment.

Poles, posts, construction timbers, and other wood in contact with the ground should be treated with chemical preservatives to render the wood more resistant to attack by termites. Of the more superficial methods of preserving timber, brush or dipping treatments with coal-tar creosotes and carbolineums have proved most effective. The most permanent known practical method is to impregnate the wood under pressure with coal-tar creosotes. Where it is impracticable to treat such timbers as poles, posts, etc., to be set in contact with the ground, they should be selected from woods noted for durability and resistance to attack by white ants.

Protection of Nursery Stock.

Owing to the subterranean habits of white ants, it is extremely difficult to prevent or remedy injury to living fruit or shade trees. Care should be taken that the trees do not become scarred near the base, in order to prevent heart-rot and subsequent infestation. Properly executed tree surgery sometimes may be effective in repairing damage to valuable old trees. Remove and burn dead and dying infested trees. Burn prunings promptly.

Injury to nursery stock will be most serious on recently cleared land where there is abundant decaying wood. Such debris, in which the insects breed, should be removed. In general, the use of recently cleared land should be avoided in planting nursery stock. Care should be taken not to allow the roots to dry out before planting; such weakened stock is liable to attack. In the case of the pecan, it is recommended that two or three cereal crops be grown on newly cleared land before the young trees are set out. The use of commercial fertilizers instead of stable manure is suggested.

those located near the woodwork of buildings, less stable manure should be used, in order to protect not only the buildings but also the growing plants.

The volatile liquid carbon disulphide can be used to kill white ants in the soil if moist and not compact, if small holes be made near the infested plants and a small quantity of carbon disulphide poured in and the holes immediately closed tightly with earth. Care should be taken in handling this inflammable and explosive fluid, and the fumes should not be inhaled.

In the experiments conducted by Borden, in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, an effective control was found in the use of a five per cent kerosene-emulsion solution. In case the benches can not be replaced immediately on account of a certain crop, it has been found practical to soak the ashes or sand under the pots and the infested benches thoroughly with this solution. This may be done by removing the potted plants from a section of the bench, spraying that section, and moving the pots on the bench up to cover the treated area, thus exposing another section to be treated. Potted heliotropes and geraniums have been treated directly with the five per cent kerosene-emulsion solution without injury to the plants, and the white ants in the soil of the pots were all killed. This treatment should be given late in the afternoon and be followed early next morning with a thorough syringing with water to wash the surplus oil out of the soil. It is important also to remove all infested pots promptly from the bench as soon as they are noticed and to destroy the white ants with kerosene emulsion.

The removal of decayed infested woodwork in greenhouses will prevent the plants from becoming infested in turn.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

RAIN did not come in time to save all the Illinois sweet corn.

GRADES are not so important this year; what is wanted is "just peas."

HEAT and drought have reduced the yields of English seed farms considerably.

THE bulb merchants believe they see a profit in handling this year's short crops. Frequently the profit is lost in cleaning up the surplus.

GEORGE TEGELAAR, of Drevon-Tegelaar & Co., returned from Ollioules, France, on the Canada, which docked at Hoboken at the end of July.

THE onion set harvest at Chicago is progressing slowly. Labor of the kind relied on by the large growers in other years is difficult to obtain.

EVEN if the high prices check bulb buying to some extent, there is more likelihood of difficulty in filling orders than in disposing of a surplus.

THE heat and drought of July proved generally detrimental, and in some cases seriously damaging to seed crops in the central part of the country.

SEEDS exported by Holland, through the port of Amsterdam to the United States, declined from $652,255 in 1915 to $319,816 in 1916 and to $93,336 in 1917, but rose again in 1918 to $288,891.

IN a lawsuit arising from the late delivery of Holland bulbs in 1917, Polder Bros., of Montebello, Cal., received a verdict in their favor, successfully defending their case against the Dutch firm which brought suit.

AFTER rising from $97,125 in 1915 to $134,995 in 1916, bulb exports from Holland to the United States, through the port of Amsterdam, dropped to $74,607 in 1917 and $66,444 in 1918. Most of the bulbs, it should be remembered, come by way of Rotterdam.

THE Federal Horticultural Board recently ordered that all Japanese lily bulb imports must come through the port of Seattle, there not being inspection facilities at every port of entry. Before word could be sent to Japan, shipments of Formosa bulbs were on the way to American houses via Vancouver, and it is understood some Chinese lilies also had been shipped that way. The board has made arrangements to have these shipments inspected on arrival at Chicago, instead of requiring the importers to send them to Seattle from Vancouver. It is only an emergency arrangement.

PAPER WHITES ON THE PATRIA.

When the manifest of the Patria, from Marseilles, became available it was found that the steamer had brought 6,358 cases of bulbs, principally Paper Whites. This was considerably less than had been expected. The consignees were:

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming

GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden Yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

Each Color Separate or Mixed

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seeds carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

lently. Early tulips in general give a fine crop, far superior to last year, when crop of same, as well as of late and Darwin tulips, was a failure. Whether or not all orders, given for early tulips, will be filled in full remains an open question. The splendid May weather had an excellent effect upon hyacinths and all growers are more than satisfied with the results. In several cases a lot of extra fine bulbs are brought into the warehouses. Now after four years our English, Irish and Scotch friends are allowed to import Dutch bulbs, we thought they should be anxious to know what they may expect. Putting everything together, the results of this season are gratifying and we are much pleased to be able to put such a favorable report before them.''

Gentlemen:--

Either your classified ads have too much "pull" or our stock is in great demand. I have just finished a painful task--writing letters and returning checks for four times the amount of Godfrey Calla tubers we advertised. Presume there will be more orders yet, from the back counties.

You had better discontinue classified of Colored Freesias, as stock is about gone. Will start selling ferns again as soon as weather is cool enough to ship.

THE annual convention of the Southern Nurserymen's Association will be held at Atlanta, Ga., August 20 and 21. Headquarters will be at the Piedmont hotel. President H. C. Caldwell, of Atlanta, has the program in charge.

THE Ruehl-Wheeler Nurseries, at San Jose, Cal., have been incorporated as the Ruehl-Wheeler Nursery Co., with a capitalization of $50,000. Henry Ruehl, Almon Wheeler, F. S. Correa, J. J. McClue and L. F. Simonsen are the incorporators.

S. R. DEBOER, for nearly ten years landscape architect of the city of Denver, has resigned to enter private business, forming the firm of DeBoer & Pesman, with M. Walter Pesman. Mr. DeBoer will be retained by the city of Denver in a consulting capacity.

A TEST OF ENDURANCE.

At the convention of the Association of American Nurserymen at Chicago recently, a plant of the new hardy hybrid privet, Ibolium, was shown for the first time to the public. The plant exhibited, a 2-year-old plant, was dug from the nursery row when in a state of vigorous growth, dropped with its ball of earth into a box, crated up, and expressed to Chicago during that hot week. This was an experiment, as Ibolium had never before been subjected to such a severe test. With much anxiety the exhibitors awaited its arrival in Chicago, after several days in transit by express. The plant had apparently suffered no injury, as the leaves remained fresh and green. It was on exhibition during the several days of the convention under the trying conditions of the convention hall and was later recrated and expressed back to its exhibitor, the Elm City Nursery Co., at New Haven, Conn.

The plant was knocking about for two weeks before it reached the nursery again, a rather severe test of endurance, all will agree. The accompanying illustration shows this plant of Ibolium as it was being uncrated at the nursery, still retaining practically the same appearance it had when packed up some two weeks before.

The privet was given a certificate of merit at the nurserymen's convention. It is described as resembling California privet to a marked degree in foliage and growth and to be as hardy as Ibota.

INSECT VERSUS INSECT.

A European parasitic fly that may become of far-reaching importance in the control of the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth and certain other serious pests of similar character is being multiplied from importations of this new insect enemy. A report of the work with the parasite—known as Compsilura concinnata—has just been made by entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

This report shown that this parasite has reduced the damage done by the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth in the New England states, where they were so abundant and destructive that they ate the leaves off enormous areas of forest and shade trees every year. It has been found that Compsilura also aids in the control of other insect pests.

The white-marked tussock moth, a serious pest in the New England states a few years ago, has practically disappeared since Compsilura has become established. The cabbage worm, still a serious pest, has been lessened in some sections. Celery worms are not so common as formerly and the fall webworm is scarcely noticed in the northeastern states now.

The entomologists do not claim that this parasite is the sole cause of this reduction, but it has proved an impor-

The Market.

The market conditions have been serious and, instead of getting better, grow worse. For twenty-four days in July there was only one little shower. Everything is dried up. A visit to the shops one Saturday afternoon showed depleted storerooms. In one shop, goldenrod was the only flower displayed in the whole place. In others, a few gladioli and asters were to be seen, but these were inferior. In one store, and only one, were rubrum lilies, and but one vase of them at that.

Business has been fair. Had it been better the florists could not have taken care of it. Good stock is exceedingly hard to procure and one has to be contented with medium and poor grades. Gladioli are making $6 to $8 per hundred and asters $2 to $4 per hundred. A few carnations are appearing. Roses are short. Snapdragons in small quantities are to be had. The usual summer miscellaneous stock is not in evidence. A few delphiniums, cornflowers and statice complete the market.

Club Meeting.

The August meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at the Smith & Young Co., Tuesday evening, August 5. Two new members were admitted: E. Vieweigh and R. Kiefer. The fall flower show to be given by the association was the important topic of the evening. All the committees are diligently working to make this a big success. The Kentucky association has been invited to be guests of the Indiana association at this time. A letter from J. W. Walker, of Kentucky, was read, in which he stated that a large number were planning to attend the exhibition.

A report from the committee that was named to investigate the Muncie wind storm insurance company was heard. A general discussion followed.

Otto Nehrling briefly outlined the work of the S. A. F., telling of its great accomplishments and the benefits derived by its members. He urged all present to join.

A. F. J. Baur, assistant director of the floriculture department of the Indiana state fair, encouraged new exhibitors for this year's display. He explained how the larger the show and the more interest taken by the tradesmen, the more advertisement it would be to the trade. This benefit would be derived by all.

The meeting was well attended. The next meeting, upon the invitation of the Crawfordsville florists, will be held at Crawfordsville. At that time the florists will visit the Shades of Death and Turkey Run. A trip to Frank Hasselman's place, Devil's Elbow, at Waveland, Ind., will be made and dinner will be served there.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business last week was unusually quiet. Gladioli are plentiful. Many new varieties are in the market. One particularly handsome variety is of an American Beauty shade. The rain which we have needed so badly arrived at last and the results will, no doubt, be noticeable in outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

Mrs. J. McGannon, of the staff of James McKellar, Columbus, O., was visiting in Detroit recently en route for Mackinac.

Harry Breitmeyer returned from Chicago last week. He motored both ways. Fred Breitmeyer has also returned from Chicago.

Miss Fitzgerald, of the Michigan Cut Fower Exchange, is on a trip up the St. Lawrence river and through the Thousand islands. John Berlin, of the same firm, is spending his time at the summer resorts near Detroit.

George Demling is at Grand lake, Mich. E. C. G.

Permanite

SOLD UNDER THE GOLDEN RULE OF A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

When you buy PERMANITE—you know you cannot go wrong because the results are guaranteed; but if for one reason or another you are not quite satisfied, you won't be out a single penny because the Garland Guarantee protects you coming and going.

It's either satisfaction—100% service and satisfaction—or your money back if otherwise.

That's why the experienced Greenhouse owner prefers to use PERMANITE, because he knows PERMANITE is not alone the original, but after all the most dependable and most economical Glazing Cement on the market—and he knows from past that it will do all—and more—than what we say it will.

A trial is all we ask—and just one trial will be sufficient to prove our claim to your utmost and everlasting satisfaction.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

FUEL SHORTAGE FELT NOW.

Shortage of coal is already making itself felt and by the time cold weather sets in there will be a lack of fuel which will create a serious situation in this country, according to representatives of the coal industry.

Officials of coal companies say that the outlook is distinctly unfavorable; the demand already exceeds the supply and will increase rapidly in the next three months. Householders and factory owners who have not obtained their supply for the winter are likely to face difficulties in getting enough for their needs.

The output of bituminous coal can be maintained at the proper level, it is said, but not enough cars are available to move the coal from the mines. As there are no facilities for storing the surplus, the mines are compelled to cut down production until they are furnished with rolling stock.

Among coal men it is asserted that a large part of the shortage this winter will be the result of failure of the public to lay in supplies during the spring and summer, when the mining companies were begging for orders and were selling even below the cost of production in order to keep their mines going. Now the mines are unable to supply the demands, is the claim.

The managing director of the American Wholesale Coal Association states that the total possible production of coal in the United States is about 675,000,000 tons bituminous, but that the actual figures a year now reach about 585,000,000. He says that the maximum indicated demand is about 137,000,000 in excess of the production. The chief reason for this he gives as the enforced idleness of the mines from lack of orders from the time of the armistice until May and June of this year. There is a crying need of coal for export to Europe which cannot be filled, and the shortage at home is likely to prove serious.

SIZE OF PIPE FOR HOUSES.

I am building five greenhouses, three of them 30x60 and two 12x60, with a height of six feet to the gutters. Both gable ends are exposed. The boiler and sheds are on the north side. Would one 2-inch flow and two 1-inch returns under each bench keep the temperature at 55 degrees during the night? The boiler pit is four feet deep. I expect to use steam and will install a trap. There is no windbreak on either side.

J. T. T.—Ind.

If You want a Cheap Machine You won't buy a Farnsworth

Eliminate Your Boiler Feed Pump Troubles by installing this wonder-machine, the Duplex Boiler Feeder, which is the only machine of its kind on the market, the result of years of special study in fuel economy and the problem of returning condensation into the boiler under pressure at a high temperature.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—showing front view of 8-inch machine, with duplex receiving and delivery check valves.

Place the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder above your boilers. Discharge all your high pressure traps directly into it. Any low pressure condensation you have in scattered buildings draw to a Farnsworth Condensation Pump, which will deliver it to the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder. This method forms a closed system that keeps the condensate under pressure and feeds it directly into the boilers at higher temperature, thus conserving heat units and saving coal.

We do not recommend our machines if we cannot make it worth your while to purchase—if you cannot save enough money to warrant the expenditure. We have saved 1 to 10 tons of coal per day in many plants, and the Farnsworth Closed System is rapidly forging to the front as the only up-to-date system for handling condensation under any known condition, in steam plants, in laundries, paper mills, soap factories, etc.

Farnsworth Closed System—The Perfect Boiler Feeder

Experience has taught the florists that cheap machinery never pays. Articles purchasable for a low price are seldom satisfactory. They are not built for service. Webster refers to cheap as "common; of small value." For that reason the FARNSWORTH DUPLEX BOILER FEEDER and the various types of Farnsworth machines for handling condensation under any known condition are not CHEAP. Farnsworth machines are built on high standards of quality, for low maintenance cost and many years of service. They are built for endurance, strong and rugged and will last. Every pump sold leaves our factory with the gilt-edge guarantee—money back if not satisfactory after a lengthy test at your plant.

IF YOU WANT A QUALITY BOILER FEEDER YOU WILL BUY THE FARNSWORTH MACHINE

Here's what one of the florists thinks of the Farnsworth Closed System—a testimonial which speaks for itself—one of a great number.

This letter is from F. E. Cremer, Hanover, Pa., who became a "Farnsworth Booster" soon after he became "Farnsworth Equipped." He wrote: —

> "In reply to yours regarding the Farnsworth machines I have in use, I beg to state that the winter of 1917-18 gave them a thorough test and they worked to perfection.
> "These machines did all that was claimed for them. The Duplex feeder and the vacuum condenser return pump handled all the condensation from 28,000 feet of glass. As I have two plants, the one a gravity system with smaller boiler that I use for mild weather, because of the milder weather this winter I did not run the larger system except six days, and when the pumps were put in use they went right to work without a hitch. You can use my name or you may send any prospective buyers to my plant.
> "Respectfully,
> [Signed] F. E. CREMER."

Remember, Farnsworth Service never stops when the bill is paid. We ask you to keep in touch with us—we write to keep in touch with you to know that you are getting the service and satisfaction we have claimed for our machines. This is one of the reasons why you will be pleased with the Farnsworth Closed System. Our service department is for your benefit.

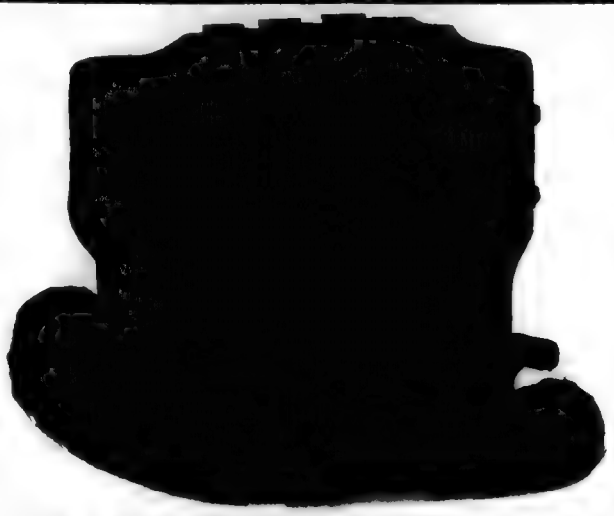
feet and two 12x60 feet, the sketch shows cross sections of five houses, three of which are marked as having respectively three, four and five 5-foot benches. From this we would infer that these houses must be of varying widths. The other houses are marked "propagating houses" and "two 5-foot benches." These houses appear to have a width of twelve feet. The letter does not state the temperature to be maintained, but as 60 degrees is the usual amount of heat required, we estimate that in the house 30x60 feet, one 2-inch overhead flow pipe and sixteen 1-inch returns are required. If there are four benches in each house, it will necessitate four return pipes under each bench. For the 12-foot houses we would use a 1½-inch flow pipe and six 1-inch returns.



SIZE OF BOILER TO USE.

Please let me know what size of hot water boiler I shall require to heat four houses, one 40x150 feet, one 30x120 feet and two 12x100 feet. They are all separate. Must it be low in the pit? What make do you recommend? H. C.—Pa.

The letter does not state what temperatures are to be maintained in the different houses or the average minimum winter temperatures. For most purposes, a temperature of either 50 to 55 degrees or of 55 to 60 degrees is used. We would suggest for the house 40x150 feet about 2,400 square feet of radiation, for the house 30x120 feet 1,450 square feet of radiation and in each of the smaller houses 475 square feet for a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. If 50 to 55 degrees will suffice, the radiation can be cut to twenty-five per cent less than that stated above.

For heating the four houses to 60 degrees, using bituminous coal, we would use two boilers, each rated at about 3,200 square feet of radiation. One boiler will answer in mild weather and in zero weather both boilers will heat the houses easily. For a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees we would use two boilers, each rated at 2,400 square feet of radiation.

As radiation for these houses for 60 degrees, we would use five 3-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2½-inch returns in the house 40x150 feet. For the house 30x120 feet, five 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 2-inch returns will be required. In each of the 12x100-foot houses, three 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns will suffice.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The market has improved substantially during last week, due to the cool weather we have been enjoying, coupled with several drenching rains, which have done much for the outdoor stock. Gladioli are far more plentiful than they have been at any time this season, but there is no glut on the market, because the demand keeps pace with the supply. Gladioli are of much better quality since the rains. Asters are also much improved by the rains and cooler temperatures, and the prices obtained for them are higher. In regard to roses, Columbia is holding a prominent place on this market. The flowers from the young stock are of excellent quality and Premier is making such rapid strides that it bids fair to outrival Russell in popularity. Ophelia and other varieties are becoming more plentiful and there is a noticeable improvement in all the varieties. Carnations from the old stock have disappeared and it will probably be a week or two before the flowers from the young stock come into the market. Lilium auratum, hydrangeas and Japanese lilies help out considerably in the line of summer flowers. Shasta daisies are in good supply. Cattleyas are scarce and sell for $1.25 and $1.50. Auratum lilies are bringing from $10 to $15 per hundred.

The demand last week was about normal for this season. Funeral work increased the latter part of the week and several moderate weddings and the cool weather stimulated counter trade to a noticeable extent. Except for funeral work, the demand for greens is light.

Various Notes.

A local event which stimulated the sale of flowers was the opening of the new Irene Byron tuberculosis hospital, Sunday, August 10. A large number of flowers were sent to the hospital for its opening by friends. Besides these, hundreds of gladioli, roses and Japanese lilies were donated for decorating the rooms of the hospital for the occasion by the Flick Floral Co.

A store will be opened about September 15, to be known as the Blossom Floral Co. Richard I. Blossom and Ruth Flick Blossom are members of the new firm. The shop will be located at 110 West Wayne street. Both members of the firm will attend the S. A. F. convention at Detroit.

Herman Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., has returned from a motor trip to Richmond, Ind., accompanied by the head grower of his range. Mr. Leitz visited the different ranges in Richmond and vicinity and says the growers are making great preparations for a record fall and winter business. The greenhouses of the New Haven Floral Co. are in readiness for the season's work. The carnation plants are all housed and in splendid shape.

The Market.

The market is well supplied with stock, but the larger part of it is small and meets with a poor demand. All fancy stock cleans up readily at good prices, while the remainder of the offerings sell at prices that are weak, if it moves at all. Shipping business is fair.

Offerings in fancy roses are rather limited in quantity. Many short ones of good quality may be had. There are no Easter lilies in the market at this time, while rubrum offerings are somewhat limited. The rubrums are selling readily. Asters are plentiful, but the majority of them are small and meet with a poor demand. The good ones and the fancy ones are snapped up at sight. Gladioli are plentiful. Only the best are selling at all well. Other offerings are snapdragon and water lilies. Greens are finding a market that is fairly good.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Last week found the market flooded with gladioli and asters. Other stock is fairly plentiful but still there is not such an overabundance as there is of the two flowers named. The gladioli are not nearly so good in quality as they were earlier in the season. Asters are coming in mostly in the darker colors. The dark pink and purple are much more in prominence than the other colors. Gaillardias are still arriving of good quality and calendulas are coming in regularly and bringing $2 and $3 per hundred. Roses are arriving in better quantity and quality and are cleaning up nicely. Maidenhair fern is arriving in large quantity. At present the supply is much greater than the demand. A few dahlias have put in an appearance, but they are mostly short-stemmed. The nights during the last week have been cold, though the days were fairly warm. If the weather had been reasonably warm, the market probably would be still more flooded than it is at present.

Various Notes.

A. J. Saywell and family have been spending a few weeks' vacation at Linwood park, Vermillion, O., on Lake Erie.

The Smith & Fetters Co. has removed to the new store, at 930 Prospect avenue.

The trade will regret to learn of the death of Miss Esther Bastian, daughter of Chas. Bastian, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co.

Morris Cohen, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, was a visitor last week.

Stephen Bergholz, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., is enjoying a two weeks' vacation. W. F. B.

Beatrice, Neb.—Victor Ryhd, who has been connected with the Dole Floral Co. during the last eight years, has returned from Superior, where he and Bernard Hetland are to engage in the florists' business. A 5-acre tract has been purchased and the work of erecting the greenhouses will begin as soon as possible. Mr. Ryhd will be succeeded by Edward W. Dole as superintendent of the local greenhouses. He has disposed of his stock to George M. Johnston, manager of the company.

The Market.

The continued cool weather has helped counter sales somewhat, but in general the market is slow. The opinion of some florists is that the cost of living has risen out of proportion to wages, reducing the demand for flowers from the working class to almost nothing, except for special occasions, when, it is agreed, the buyer is prepared to make an expenditure in proportion to other things.

The supply of roses is of good quality for this time of the year. Sunburst and Russell are leading the list. American Beauties have improved in supply and their quality is much better. The aster supply is now limited to those cut outdoors. These are exceedingly short-stemmed. Most of them are only serviceable for funeral designs. For vase flowers gladioli lead everything. The advantage of the large-flowered varieties has impressed the growers during the last two years so that now few mixed, small-flowered varieties are marketed.

Various Notes.

Charles Sandiford will figure in the market with a large supply of chrysanthemums, which are coming along in fine shape.

Karl Butz, of the firm of Thos. Mansfield, Lockport, was in town last week, hunting up a supply of ferns and other stock.

The S. A. Anderson store, on Elmwood avenue, is showing a landscape scene in its window. This is the work of John Fiebelkorn. F. P. A.

San Antonio, Tex.—Edward Green is preparing for a great deal better season than any that have passed, refitting his store and increasing his facilities. He is having a display refrigerator built to order by Buchbinder Bros., Chicago.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business is about normal for this season of the year, with a sufficient supply to meet all demands. Asters are better in quality and quantity and gladioli are also improving. Carnations continue on the decline and roses are shortening in supply.

Various Notes.

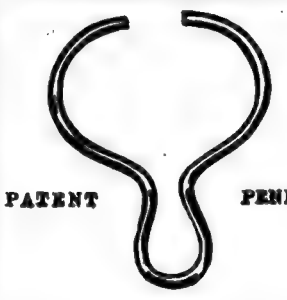
The handicap of the street-car strike was greatly felt by the retailers in obtaining their supplies from the growers. The latter have been using the trolleys during the curtailed cuts while their motor cars were being overhauled. But Friday, August 8, an even worse condition presented itself because of the railroad strike. The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, had to ship all its roses for New York and Philadelphia from this city by New York boat and sent all its supply for the Boston market in automobile trucks. J. E. Koppelman shipped all his cut for the Boston market by trucks.

Fred S. Davis has been elected a member of the Providence Chamber of Commerce.

Mendell Koppelman, who has been associated with his brother, Joseph E. Koppelman, at his greenhouses in East Providence, left Saturday, August 9, for New York en route to Palestine. He is accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Nathan Max.

John Lindblum, for several years with the Hope Greenhouses, and Alfred Frey, for several years with the late William Butcher, have purchased a farm near Tarkiln, in Smithfield, where they are going to grow plants and early vegetables for the market.

Max Viller, who was a sergeant in the Quartermaster Department, has returned from twenty-one months' service in France. Before going overseas, he was with Smith the Florist.



S. S. Skidelsky, of New York, was a business visitor in this city last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Willett P. Carpenter, who conduct the stand at the Union station, left last week for Chicago en route to Alberta and Winnipeg, on their annual visit.

Mark Cassidy, who conducted a retail store on Dorrance street at the time of his enlistment, has arrived home. He was with a forestry unit in France.

Peter Byrnes, of Wickford, had the decorations for the "Snow ball" at the Casino at Narragansett Pier. He also had a number of the special table decorations for private parties. One that attracted considerable attention was a snow man made of hydrangeas and greens.

W. H. M.

Mr. Grower:

In introducing my new plant and bloom support, "WIRE TIE," I am placing before the trade a long felt want and much needed by the grower.

"WIRE TIE" is a labor-saving device.

The cut shows the "TIE" open and ready to be placed in position on any plant or bloom needing support.

They can be successfully used on any plants needing support and are practically a necessity for Chrysanthemums; absolutely no danger of breaking stem.

They make a neat appearance and you can tie up five times as many Mums with "WIRE TIE" as you can by tying up plant with cord.

Send stamp for enough samples to give them a good try-out.

The Market.

An extreme scarcity of flowers was noted in the market last week. No one can complain that there is not enough business. The fact is, there are not enough flowers to meet the demand. Gladioli are more plentiful and roses are better in quantity and quality. Since carnations were withdrawn as unfit, asters have taken their place. They are still short-stemmed.

Various Notes.

Chas. Frueh, of Chas. Frueh & Sons, is traveling in the east. He expects to stop at Detroit for the convention on his return.

Grohman the Florist is sorry that he did not have more cyclamens and poinsettias this year, as he has had to turn down nearly as many orders as he has filled.

Wm. Roethke Floral Co. has all the roses benched and is all set for winter, as Carl L. Roethke put it.

J. B. Goetz Sons are benching carnations for early blooms. The main crop will be housed a little later.

Henry Goetz was honored by the Detroit Florists' Club in being named chairman of the organization committee of the proposed Michigan State Florists' Association, which he hopes will have its birth at the S. A. F. convention. Since Michigan is honored with the convention at Detroit, it was proposed that Detroit take the initial steps toward state organization at this most opportune time, when all the Michigan florists are together. MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

General opinion in Milwaukee is that flowers are of better quality, more in demand and in greater supply than they have been during any August for many years. The new roses coming in are exceptionally good throughout, from Killarney to Premier. Some fine Russells are coming in and look better, in color and substance, than any cut in months. Ophelia is in heavy crop and has good color and size. Columbia is better than it was last year. Wards are fine and in abundance. In reds, Hoosier Beauty and Milady are sharing honors. All varieties are selling well at fair prices.

Asparagus has been quite scarce here lately, owing to the disruption of shipping in the south, and the local supply nowhere near meets the demand. As with everything else the florist uses, when it goes out of the market he finds something else which answers the purpose well.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hunkel, and their sons, Victor and Edward, have returned from a most enjoyable trip through the east. Albert Hare, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., spent a few days in Chicago last week.

C. C. Pollworth has made large shipments of 3-inch and 4-inch cyclamens recently. Mr. Pollworth said he had to refund about $500 to florists who had ordered cyclamen plants after they were sold out.

Bryan Seeley is back on the job with Gust. Rusch & Co. after a week's vacation.

PATENTED GREENHOUSE

1299-1323 Flushing Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PRACTICAL Greenhouse Work

calls for the best equipment obtainable to gain the most profitable results. Ordinary makeshift greenhouses may answer the purpose, but harder work is required of the owner and smaller returns for his labor and investment.

Every piece of material that enters into the construction of Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses is the result of much experience on the part of our detail men. The members are cut to exact measure and shipped to you with the plans: all so simple that any man with an ordinary knowledge of greenhouse construction can set them up perfectly.

Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses are made of selected Louisiana Red Gulf Cypress, to best withstand the heat and moisture required in greenhouse work.

The Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouse is a practical answer to the market grower's needs, and will give you a lifetime of service at a small expenditure.

No frills, no fancy work; just solid, useful, up-to-date construction at low prices.

PERMANITE in stock for immediate shipment

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

FOLEY IRON FRAME HOUSE

AND WHAT HE THINKS ABOUT IT

Redford, Mich., Aug. 11th, 1917.

Gentlemen—

Of all the houses on my place, the 72 x 400 ft. house which you built for me last year has given me the greatest satisfaction. It is as well designed as any house I have ever seen, and was erected with the greatest care. I am especially pleased with the painting and glazing.

(Signed) A. J. STAHELIN.

Foley Greenhouses are properly designed, durable and a source of great satisfaction and profit to their owners.

To the one who thinks of building, our estimates and advice will be worth while

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

—here are the SIXTEEN other reasons why you should have AGMCO bar clasps.

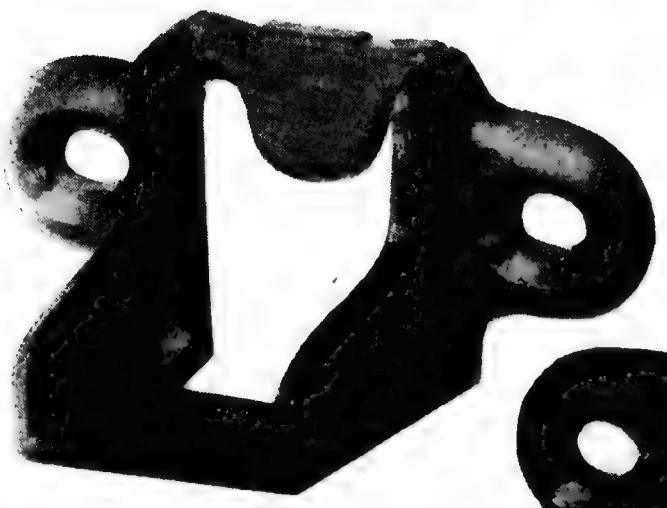

Fig. 335.
Eave Bar Clasp, 1⅜" Bar.

Fig. 336.
Eave Bar Clasp, 1⅜" Bar.

Fig. 337.
Eave Bar Clasp, ¾" Bar.

11. The putty under the glass must form a continuous strip from the edge of the gutter or eave up the bar. There must be no little gap between the end of the sash bar and the eave, or you'll have a leak that will in time destroy your house.
12. The clasp itself must be strong. Brackets bent out of steel are very often defective. If you ever looked at a bunch of these you probably noticed this. If your house has this kind you can probably find a few broken ones lying about that were left by the builders.
13. The metal in the clasp at the point where the bolt goes through must be as thick as the rest of the clasp. If the hole is counter sunk your bracket is no more durable than the thin metal that's left. Here's where the size and number of the bolts and method of bolting comes in.
14. The clasp must be put on so it can be readily removed. Otherwise what will you do in case a clasp is broken or rusts out? Will it be necessary for you to take the glass off the roof and take the sash bar out first? That's a common method of making them. Can you remove yours?
15. The putty on the lower edge of the glass must be cut off clean clear up in the corners next to the end of the bar or this important place can't be painted right and it causes water to make dirty streaks. Some brackets are designed so this is impossible.
16. The screw that goes into the bar must be far enough from the end of the bar so that it will not split the wood, even if it's cross grained. If the end of the bar is split the bar is not securely in place and it will soon rot. Two screws in a bracket, both within 1½ inches of the end of the bar, almost always cause this trouble.
17. The clasp must cover enough of the length of the bar to get a real grip. This little leverage does the business. It makes a solid job and sets your screw far enough back so that it is in solid wood.
18. The clasp must make a nice appearance. In addition to all its useful features it must add to the appearance of the building. The design must be neat. Such a clasp is silently saying, "Keep things clean and neat," and it's doing its part.
19. The clasp must be the same pitch as the sash bar so that the bottom of the bar rests solidly all over the bottom of the clasp and so that your glass always hits the eave line. If some bars are higher, then others are lower, and the glass does not rest perfectly on the zinc strip at the eave or gutter, the ice will break it.
20. The condensation from the drip groove must not touch the bar clasp. In an original way it's prevented from touching ours.
21. Every clasp on the job must be exactly the same size. If they are not your house will leak at the eave line. Unless they are cast from a pattern the size is sure to vary.
22. There's a difference between a "bar clasp" and a "bar bracket." A bracket is like a little shelf on which the bar rests. A clasp holds the bar on three sides—it clasps. Ours is a bar "clasp."
23. If the edges of the clasp are not designed right, water will lie along them and keep everlastingly at it to destroy the vital connection. It can't do this on ours.
24. The holes in the clasps for the bolts must be a certain distance apart to get strength. There must be no chance for the wind to twist the clasp. Just a little twist that you probably don't notice, and the water starts to leak in at the eave line.
25. The holes for the bolts must not be too low or too high, for otherwise the bar would have a leverage and be liable to twist.
26. The holes for bolts must have room for play sideways only. Unless this is arranged for there will be tight rows and loose rows of glass. Each row of glass must have its proper spacing if it's going to be a good job. If there is play up and down your glass will not fit perfectly where it rests on the gutter and eave. The side play is needed to take care of variation in width of glass.

How Flue Brush Forgetfulness Costs Money

If boilers with dirty flues would miss fire and refuse to hill-climb, the way an auto does with sooted spark plugs; have a notion a lot of florists' coal bills would be a lot less.

Only the other day I was down in a boiler cellar looking things over with a grower, who was grumbling about the coal he had burned. Opened a couple of the flue doors and they were not only dirty, but what you would call clogged. He admitted his flue brush was worn out, and he kept forgetting to get a new one. Think of forgetting to order a flue brush and yet all the while remembering the coal he was burning.

How do you suppose he separated the two?

A new Burnham flue brush costs 61 cents (without handle).

It's one of the finest little coal saving devices money can buy.

Look through the Handy Hand Book and make up an order for your heating fittings and other things you need, and send it along.

Buy Your Fall Requirements Early

Do not get the false impression that prices will be lower two or three months hence. The intensive labor situation, the scarcity of raw materials and the continuous strong demand for prepared goods and Florists' Supplies all forecast even higher prices later in the season.

The Largest Growers of Flowers in the World

You Can't Sell Unless You Buy

Too many Florists buy as little as they possibly can. The result is, they have little to sell—and the business which would be theirs for the taking is lost by them.

To do a big business the Florist must be prepared for big business—only small business can be done without carrying much merchandise.

And to be ready with merchandise means to have variety as well as quantity.

Come to Market—Spend a Day At Randall's—You'll Be Inspired

Randall's has built up America's largest business in Florists' Supplies by the simple process of having something to sell—something the trade could use, something the people like, something that would sell itself on sight; and not one something, but very many somethings—a big variety and a large supply.

Randall's urges the same policy for the Florist—come to market, get the benefit of seeing how Chicago does its millions of dollars of annual business in cut flowers, see the big growing establishments, the wholesale stores, the up-to-date retail places—talk to the men who are doing things—and spend a day at Randall's, going over the world's largest stock of Florists' Supplies.

Don't be afraid of buying—no Florist can sell unless he buys, and the more he buys the more he will sell.

Remember, also, that for the Florists who get their goods in time, the Trade's biggest season is close at hand.

It is high time orders were being placed for Fall. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

FOX'S Stands for Distinction

In the Floral Trade of Milwaukee, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan

At home and throughout this large section, it is known as an institution which caters to strictly high-class trade.

THE business of J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., began in a small way, in 1898, and has rapidly grown to its present large proportions, which fact has recently forced a considerable reorganization and enlargement.

Since 1900 James F. Fox, who is an artist in his line, has been in personal charge of the business, which, in 1916, was incorporated as J. M. Fox & Son, Inc. The corporation is a life member of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists and of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

FOX'S not only arranges decorations for private entertainments at home, but has a very considerable business of this sort in the principal cities along the Upper Lake Shore and, generally, throughout Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. Understanding and taste, as well as a full equipment of the necessary accessories for the business, have given FOX'S a leading acquaintance and reputation among those who wish to have the decorative arrangement of any sort of social function, private or public, correctly and artistically handled.

The rearrangement of the store has been so managed that display space has been largely increased, the aggregate now being 60x50 feet, across a well-lighted room, which also has a fine side light. Working space at the rear is nearly as large, being 30x60 feet.

In furnishing the interior, mirror-lined walls and side spaces at the windows, and handsome white display tables with mirror tops, make a floral show of exceptional beauty and brilliancy.

In addition to the line of flowers and plants, which is not to be excelled in the middle West, FOX'S includes, for the purpose of their special and exclusive trade, a line of decorative accessories to which they have recently made considerable and exclusive additions. This line of accessories includes large stocks of Italian and American pottery, Venetian, English, Swedish and American glass, and Spode China, all in a great variety of shapes and suitable for decorative use with flowers and fruits.

FOX'S has, too, a very choice and chaste line of alabaster bowls and candlesticks.

FOX'S is also completely equipped for the decoration of dinner and other household and public banquet tables. For this purpose there is an exceptional variety of decorative tableware in colored glass, rock crystal, silver (Sheffield and Sterling) and marble. Sets vary from center bowl, vase or basket, with four candlesticks, for use on small tables, to those of many pieces, including complete equipment for the largest banquets. These table decorations are so large in number and variety and FOX'S decorative work is so well known throughout this field, that they are called upon for a great many of the chief occasions abroad, as well as at home, and their centerpieces are shipped successfully throughout this whole region.

One individually unique and attractive feature of the FOX line of specialties is the collection of candles, which are dyed exclusively for this house, to match the flowers of a table decoration.

In addition to the floral department, FOX'S specializes in choice fruits, fresh and in glass. Also a large assortment of choice chocolates, caramels and other candies; fancy cakes, and many unusual dainties in the way of confections and condiments, which go along to tickle the palate, as well as to give clever gastronomic touch to a beautiful, sumptuous and harmonious table.

FOX'S is among the Leaders of the Middle West in its Class

Some Pertinent Facts Regarding Lily Bulbs

A Field of A. B. C. Giganteum Lilies

Our Lilies this season have been carefully selected by our Mr. Miller, who is now in Japan, and will return with our shipment of Giganteum Lilies.

This season the American Bulb Company can supply the Florist with selected Black Stem Formosum Lilies. In order to obtain these, it was necessary to buy our bulbs by the field, and have them dug by our own men, first digging the Black stem, then the balance. Buying the Lilies in this manner, also gives us the Seed Bulbs, so we will be able to offer every season Black Stem and the best type of Green stem, as well as the regular grade.

Our first shipment of Early-flowering Formosum Lilies has already arrived in this country and is now

A New Florists' Supply Catalogue of Merit

To be Issued Soon

Every mailing list has more or less dead wood. Firms dissolve partnership, executives die or move away to another city and the list which was correct and up to date a year ago gets rusty. We want every florist, who is at all interested in Florists' supplies, or who for any reason whatever would like to receive a copy of our next illustrated Catalogue to be on the list. This catalogue is now being compiled. It will be full of new good things you will need for your Fall and Holiday business, and we want you to have a copy of it. So, therefore, dear friend, please send your name and address or business card. This will permit us checking up our mailing list and allow us to continue keeping in touch with you. Let us serve you.

Sincerely,

TERMS.

Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business during the Fall rush we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. PLANS ITS PEACE PROGRAM

Since the cessation of war restrictions and regulations, the trade has made such rapid strides ahead that the convention in Detroit this week is considering the enlargement of its activity, through wider affiliation and greater publicity plans. Large attendance indicates prosperity peace brought.

WHETHER you call it the Peace convention, or the Victory convention, or just the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, the gathering at Detroit this week has a spirit that is unlike that of any previous meetings. Relaxation after the busiest, most prosperous year the trade has ever had, and anticipation of a season which will equal, if not surpass, the last, has created an enthusiasm that is part holiday good feeling and part zest for the business success just ahead.

Whether in size the exhibition and attendance actually rival the record-breaking Chicago convention in 1912, the statisticians will tell when all the records are complete. Certainly the convention, particularly in attendance, is far ahead of all meetings since that date. In enthusiasm, in determination for achievement, this convention is ahead of all others. The restrictions, the uneasiness which hampered florists a year ago is gone. The uncertainty as to the effects of peace which impeded business action in the spring is likewise gone. The problem now before the trade is not whether prices will hold as high as last season's, but whether stock and supplies can be obtained to meet the heavy demand that everyone foresees. The trade is on a stronger basis now than ever before, and realizes its ability to make rapid and effective progress.

Publicity.

How much of this strength is due to the publicity campaign and the wonderful success of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," cannot be determined. That it has been an important factor, everybody realizes. And everybody realizes, too, that it will be a still more important one during the coming season. The entire afternoon of August 20 was given over to the subject of publicity and the two advertising men best acquainted with florists' publicity addressed the convention. If anything was required to spur on the trade's publicity campaign, this session filled the bill. The leaders in this field of the society's work are more optimistic about the prospects for fall than they have been before.

No better place of meeting could have been selected for the purpose of furthering the publicity campaign. Detroit has some of the hardest working advertisers among florists that any city can boast of. And Cleveland, not far away and strongly represented in anticipation of next year's meeting there, is a center from which has radiated much of the enthusiasm which has given the publicity movement its present momentum.

In hospitality the Detroit florists showed that all their energy was not confined to publicity work. They had prepared with a lavish hand for the visitors' entertainment, so lavishly, in fact, that some of the last day's program had to be curtailed. Their preparations had been made with thoroughness and care, under the skillful direction of E. A. Fetters. Since they could not intrude on the sessions of the society during the day, they planned to fill every night. Of course, Tuesday night was devoted to the traditional president's reception. Wednesday night, however, the visitors were treated to a boat ride on the Detroit river and Lake St. Clair. For Thursday night had been revived the bowling tournament, once so popular at S. A. F. gatherings. And Friday, it was planned, should be a whole day during which the visitors would be in the hands of the Detroit florists.

Attendance.

That the trade recognized what was prepared for them at Detroit was High Lights of the Convention.

Largest attendance since 1912.

More trade exhibits than could be accommodated; space allotments cut down to give everybody a chance.

Affiliation plan enlarged to provide a possible representation on the board of directors for every state in the Union.

Great enthusiasm for national publicity. Two committees merged. Appropriation of $5,000 from society's treasury toward the campaign.

Annual dues raised to $5; life membership to $50.

Convention garden abandoned and with it the plan of selecting convention city two years in advance.

Next National Flower Show set for spring of 1921.

Convention recommended all florists close their places of business on the Sabbath.

indicated by the fact that all the hotels had every room reserved days, even weeks, beforehand. A month before the convention opened the Hotel Statler, where headquarters were, planned putting beds in the large sample rooms in order to care for as many as possible of those who desired location at the base of activities. If the trade continues to grow as it has of late years, and attendance at the S. A. F. meetings is in proportion, the number of cities with accommodations ample enough to provide lodgings for the visitors will be extremely limited in number.

Reflected Prosperity.

How well the florists' trade has fared in the last year and is faring now is reflected in the convention this week. The attendance is large and enthusiastic, and, one might add, ready with its hand on its pocketbook to purchase supplies for next season's business, which is expected to surpass last year's record. There is a whole trainload from St. Louis and another one from New York. From the surrounding states florists are coming by droves in automobiles. The fact that so large a percentage uses this means of traveling, one member remarked, was a good indication of the present status of the trade. Those from farther away came in smaller numbers by train. Though the far west has sent few, the far south is pretty well represented.

The exhibition floor is covered as completely as it could be. Reductions in space were made to accommodate more exhibitors. If a larger hall had been secured, probably the space sold would have been larger. As it is, the trade's display outdoes all since that at Chicago, and that in the face of the fact that business is too good to demand much effort in advertising.

At Arcadia Auditorium

The convention hall, Arcadia auditorium, is about a mile up Woodward avenue from the Hotel Statler. It is a low building, containing one floor, on which the trade's display is set up, and a balcony around three sides of the hall. The open space of the main hall renders the place particularly suitable for the exhibition. The only possible drawback was that it was not large enough.

Upstairs the balcony affords ample space for the display of the American Gladiolus Society along the sides, and at the end are seats, where the business sessions were held. The only feature of the convention hall that was criticised was the place of meeting. The balcony at one end of the auditorium was partly screened from the exhibition hall for the society's sessions. Though ample enough to seat the members present, it was not shut off from the noises of the exhibition space to the extent that would have been desirable. This defect, however, did not inconvenience the members present at the sessions or interfere at all with the procedure.

Opening Session.

At 2 p. m. August 19. after an invocation by the Rev. J. M. Barkley, J. F. Sullivan, president of the Detroit Florists' Club, called the convention to order and welcomed the society to Detroit. For the previous meeting of the S. A F. in Detroit, twenty years ago, the Detroit Florists' Club had been formed to provide arrangements, he said, and now comprised ninety-nine per cent of the local florists. In the absence of Mayor Couzens, his secretary delivered the civic welcome to the society. In his reply E. Gurney Hill divided those present into gardeners and orators, and President Ammann, when he rose to give his address, asked to be classed with the former.

Mr. Ammann got much applause—it was of the kind political reports describe as prolonged—when he stated emphatically that retail florists' stores could be closed Sundays without loss of business, and told of Canadian florists closing Saturday afternoon as well. His address was turned over for consideration to a committee composed of Fred Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; Paul Klingsporn, of Chicago, and S. S. Skidelsky, of New York.

Secretary's Salary Raised.

The convention voted to approve the minutes of the March meeting of the executive board without reading, including in the same vote approval of the board's recommendation, in a meeting held in the morning before the convention opened, that the salary of secretary be increased to $5,000. It was thought that the national publicity campaign, the publication of the journal and other activities of the society warranted such increase.

In his report Secretary Young reported a remarkable growth in membership during the last year, as the result of efforts made through his office and through other representatives of the society. Up to August 10, 659 annual members had been gained and 209 life members. The total membership August 10 was 3,025, including 710 life members and twenty-four pioneer members.

Cross Presented to Gude.

Following the reading of the treasurer's report by J. J. Hess, William F. Gude gave an account of his activities as Washington representative of the S. A. F., which have been exceedingly heavy during the last two years.

Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, was thereupon introduced by President Ammann to furnish a digression, which he did by proving that if gardeners and orators are two distinct species, he is no gardener. He presented Mr. Gude, as a token of the society's appreciation of his services, a gold cross fashioned in the style of a war cross, but bearing on its face a rose set with a diamond. The presentation was accompanied by cheers from the audience.

Embargo Subject Opened.

In his report as chairman of the committee on the development of American products, F. R. Pierson remarked on the hindrances of wartime restrictions to such development and the impetus given it by the embargo placed by Quarantine No. 37. The trade would feel the obstacle the latter presented chiefly in the supply of orchids, although the years required to grow bay trees and boxwoods to the larger sizes would cause difficulty for a few years. Resourcefulness on the part of American growers would be required to overcome the limitations which the embargo places on the supply of stock.

E G. Hill questioned the evil effect of the embargo in the end, laying stress on the boxwoods grown in Tennessee and Virginia and the palms grown in California. He defended the Department of Agriculture from criticisms frequently made of it, stating more use should be made by the trade of the scientific aid the government experts could give.

A letter from J. Horace McFarland, asking the continuation of the old committee on American horticultural nomenclature to meet with other societies' committees, which involves an appropriation of $300, was referred to the executive committee for action.

President's Reception

At 8:30 p. m. Tuesday evening the president's reception was held in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler. Elaborate decorations of gladioli covered the walls and the letters S. A. F. O. H. and the phrase "Say It with Flowers" appeared large on one side of the room. The attendance was a large one, as the evening was comparatively cool and President Ammann had decreed the most comfortable and least formal dress for the occasion. Besides the president and officers in the receiving line were Wm. F. Gude, Richard Vincent, J. C. Vaughan, Benjamin Hammond, John G. Esler, Chas. H. Totty, P. J. O'Keefe and several others of the old well-known figures of the trade.

Nomination of Officers.

At the session Wednesday morning W. F. Gude nominated A. L. Miller for the presidency, seconded by Charles H. Totty, R. Vincent, Jr., and Charles H. Grakelow. Phil Breitmeyer nominated J. F. Sullivan, seconded by Mr. Brown, and an interesting contest developed, to be decided at the close of the convention.

Secretary Young and Treasurer Hess were unanimously reëlected, their work meriting this vote of confidence.

For directors Paul R. Klingsporn, Irwin Bertermann and H. P. Knoble were nominated.

Recommendations Approved.

The committee to which the president's address had been referred reported commending it in glowing terms. They approved the recommendation that wholesalers and growers form organizations national in the same way that the retailers' organization is; it was advised that a committee of three be appointed to urge early action. The committee also approved the recommendations regarding Sunday closing for florists, the ones regarding the flower show and the publicity campaign. All these are given in full in the president's address in this issue.

Credit and Collections Bureau.

R. C. Kerr, for the committee on credit and collections bureau, advised more educational work on credit lines and asked that the committee be discharged, believing that the proposed wholesalers' organization can handle the credit work most effectively.

Affiliation Enlarged.

Joseph H. Hill, for the special committee on widening the scope of the affiliation plan, presented the amendment to the constitution classifying the states and providing a means by which even the smallest states can obtain representation on the board of directors of the S. A. F. Many speakers approved the plan and it was adopted.

Amendment to By-Laws.

All the proposed amendments to the by-laws were adopted. The most important of these in the eyes of the average member raises the annual dues to $5 and the life membership to $50.

Another puts into effect the decision previously arrived at to discontinue the attempt at a convention garden. Hereafter the place of meeting will be selected only one year in advance, instead of two years as when attempts were made to have outdoor exhibits.

Publicity.

Publicity was the theme of the entire session of the afternoon of July 20. There were reports by Henry Penn and George Asmus and highly interesting addresses by Major O'Keefe and Payne Jennings. The society voted to appropriate $5,000, if necessary, to carry on the publicity work.

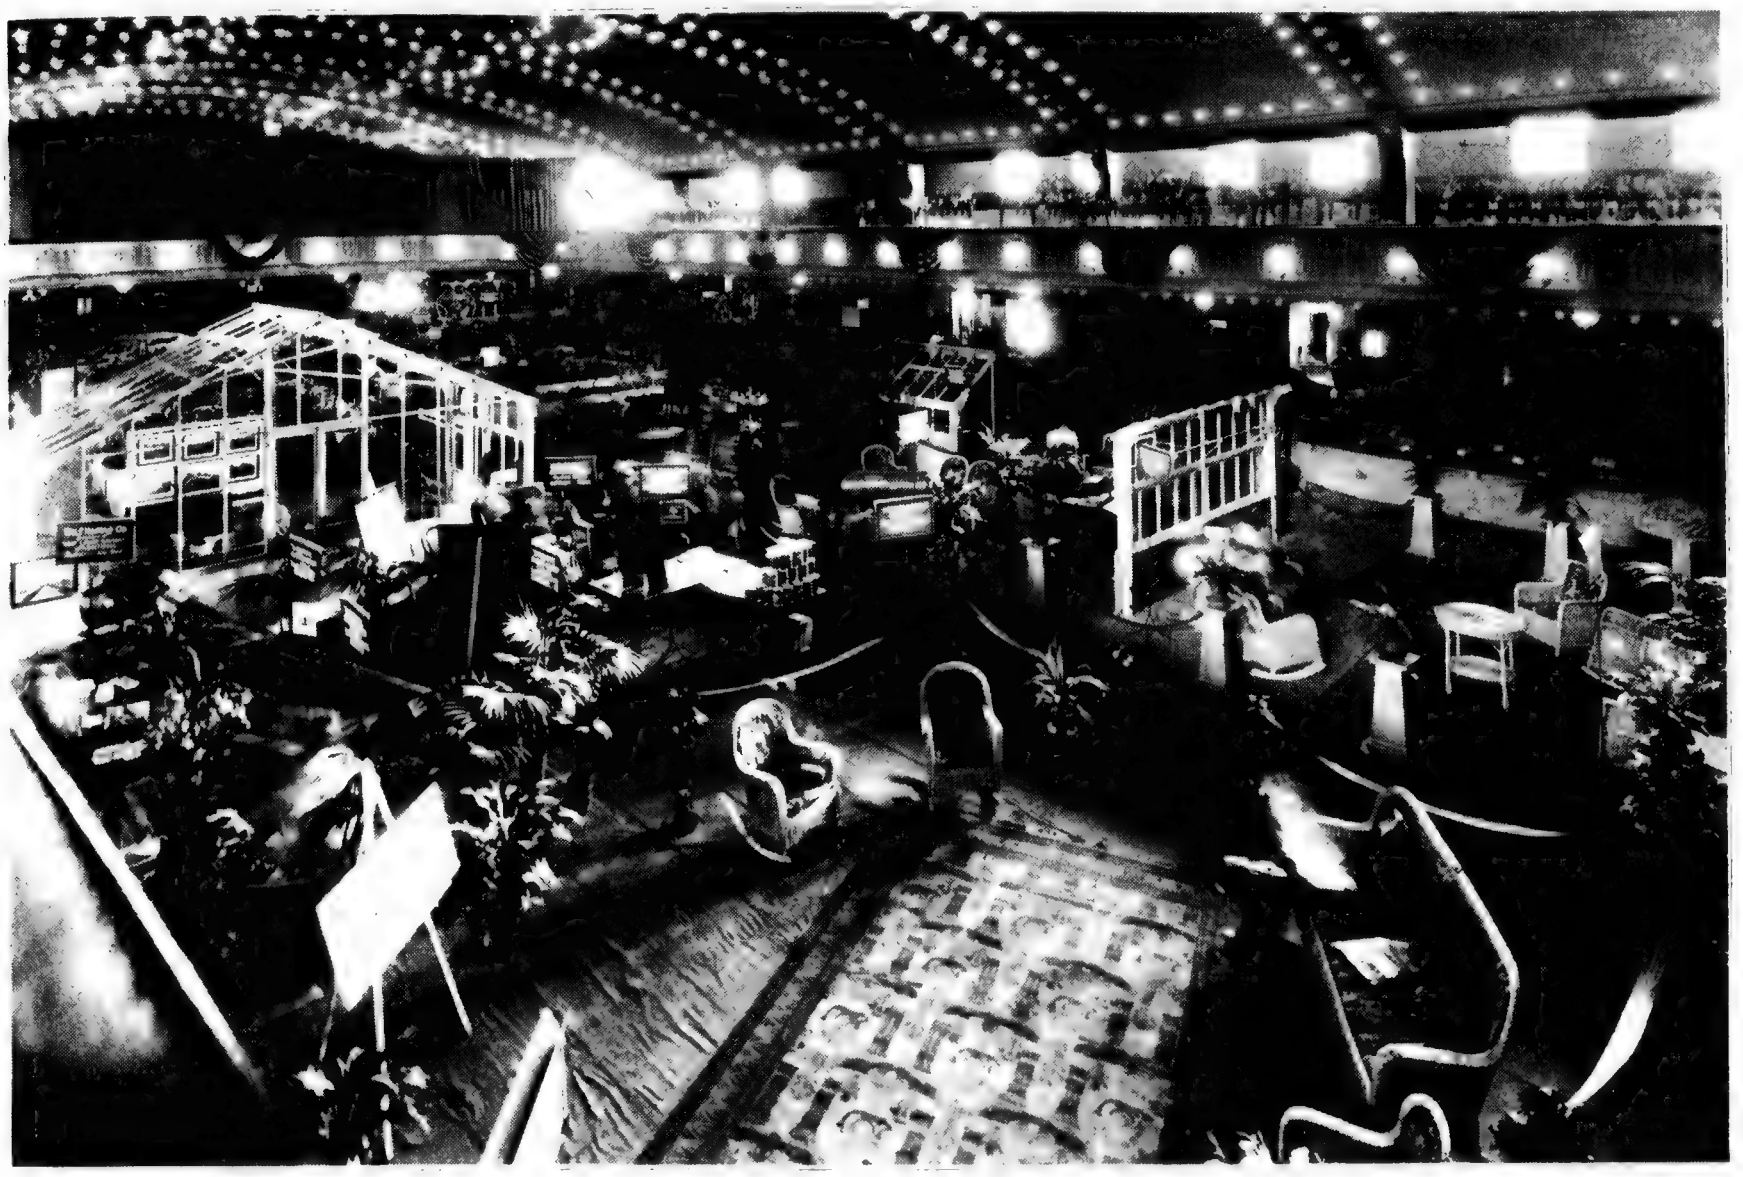
THE TRADE'S DISPLAY AT DETROIT

MORE exhibitors could not have been accommodated in the Arcadia auditorium, large as it is. After reservations were made, the allotments were cut down in some cases in order that additional exhibitors might have the opportunity to stage displays. And this condition prevailed in spite of the fact that greenhouse builders limited the extent of their displays because they did not wish to take skilled workmen off building jobs when such labor is so scarce, and plantsmen restricted their showings because they thought it inadvisable to exhibit specimens of stock on which they were already sold out. The supply houses made the most extensive exhibits and were most strongly represented, practically every concern which caters to florists making an exhibit. Yet they did not spread themselves as they sometimes have. The fact is that material is harder to obtain than orders, in every line that florists call for, and the outlook is not toward an immediate or early increase in the supply.

One who wished, however, could buy anything he needed, from greenhouses to pins, on the exhibition floor. All departments were well represented and the exhibits were staged with care. The quality of everything shown was excellent, indicating that the increase in demand had not caused a lowering of standards or the substituting of inferior grades of material. Of course, prices are consequently high, but under present conditions no one expects them to be anything else, unless higher. A few supplies, some bulbs and two Belgian palms were all the foreign goods on the exhibition floor. The quality of the American-grown plants made one wonder if, after a year or two, Quarantine No. 37 will be much felt after all. Prices are higher, on account of the labor, but the quality, some maintain, is also higher.



Following is a list of those who have space in the trade's display, together with a short description of what each one shows:

Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.

In the exhibit of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. were included ventilating apparatus of all types and fittings manufactured by the Advance Co. R. E. Jones was in charge.

American Bulb Co., Chicago.

On the tables of the American Bulb Co. were cases of three sizes of Formosa lily bulbs expressed from the Pacific coast from the first cargo from Japan.

Prices are higher, on account of the labor, but the quality, some maintain, is also higher.

Following is a list of those who have space in the trade's display, together with a short description of what each one shows:

Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.

In the exhibit of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. were included ventilating apparatus of all types and fittings manufactured by the Advance Co. R. E. Jones was in charge.

American Bulb Co., Chicago.

On the tables of the American Bulb Co. were cases of three sizes of Formosa lily bulbs expressed from the Pacific coast from the first cargo from Japan.

Gladiolus, freesia and rubrum lily bulbs were also shown. The company was represented by A. L. Koehler, Guy M. Reburn, T. V. Neil and D. W. Dumser.

American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.

One-half of a bay of an 18-foot model of a 36-foot greenhouse was put up by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. A McKee boiler was also on display. A collection of pictures, some of them water colors, of greenhouses was exhibited. In addition to the fittings of its own line, the firm exhibited ventilating equipment and fittings of the Advance Co. P. L. McKee and H. O. S. Nichols were present.

Atlantic Machine & Mfg. Co.

The Merry Garden auto-cultivator was set up for exhibition and the results of its work were shown by an exhibit of photographs by the Atlantic Machine & Mfg. Co., Cleveland.

S. Bryson Ayres Co., Kansas City.

The new celosiamum of the S. Bryson Ayres Co. was exhibited just to show the trade what this cross of Celosia plumosa and Celosia Childsii looks like, for no seed is available this year or next. Mr. Ayres was with the exhibit.

W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

A rackful of its seed packets and a basket of onion sets was in the W. W. Barnard Co. space, which was chiefly laid out for the comfort of visitors, providing easy chairs for them.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Among the novelties in the display of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. were trellis boxes with Victory girls attached, suitable for table and other decorations, Victory bromus grass wreaths and knot showers for brides' bouquets, in addition to an extensive line of baskets, wreaths, foliage and other supplies. I. M. Bayersdorfer and Stephen Green were with the exhibit.

Beeman Garden Tractor Co., Minneapolis.

The Beeman garden tractor was on display to show visitors just how it works. The exhibit was put up by the local distributors, the Michigan Motors Co.

Bergman-Koropp Co., Chicago.

A wide variety of colors and stock and some unusual sorts of prepared natural foliages and flowers were shown by the Bergman-Koropp Co. Victor Bergman was present.

Buchbinder Bros., Chicago.

Photographs of the many Buchbinder refrigerators used by florists were displayed for Buchbinder Bros. by Sidney Buchbinder.

Burlington Willow Ware Shops.

In the large display of baskets of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., were birthday baskets to help retailers in their effort for promoting birthday gift sales. Many shapes and sizes in other baskets were shown. F. G. Nelson, vice-president of the concern, was in charge.

Chicago Printed String Co., Chicago.

Samples of printed string, a narrow, unbreakable tape made of cotton, particularly adapted to florists' use, were shown by the Chicago Printed String Co. The company has a new holder and cutter which makes the use of the string easy. M. H. Trau was with the exhibit.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park.

SECRETARY'S ACTIVITIES

IT was my pleasure, at the St. Louis convention, to report that in spite of adverse conditions existing for a year or more, our society has made satisfactory progress. Since that time conditions have, as we all know, changed materially and effort to advance our organization in the trade has, in consequence, met with gratifying success.

As the strength of an organization lies mainly in its membership, the society is to be congratulated upon an influx of new members since our last convention that might be surprising to some. We have taken in altogether 659 annual members from August 10 of last year to August 10 of this year and our list of life members has been increased by 209. The total membership August 1 was 3,025, of which 710 are life members and twenty-four pioneer.

It is a matter for regret that quite a number of our members have not paid their annual dues for 1919. Not only does this neglect occasion anxiety, but these members prejudice the second class mailing privilege for our Journal, as we are not allowed to avail ourselves of the low postage rate except to members in good standing.

The society is fortunate in having so large a list of life members, inasmuch as the fees in this class are turned into the permanent fund, for investment, and yield an annual income indefinitely. The life memberships for the year total an addition of $5,000 or more to this fund. In addition, we have twenty-four pioneer members whom the society has exempted from the payment of dues. Of course, in our membership aggregate there are some members who are in arrears for dues, but in the figures presented I have included none from whom collections of arrears might be deemed impossible or improbable.

Boosters for Membership.

Most of the new members were obtained through a systematic and thorough campaign instituted by the secretary's office and carried on by correspondence, and the dissemination of pertinent literature, among which the society's Journal played an important part. A goodly number of applications for membership were turned in by our state vice-presidents and by special representatives appointed to solicit subscriptions to the publicity campaign fund.

The following have sent in one or more names for membership since the last convention:

From the report of John Young, secretary, presented at the Detroit convention of the S. A. F., August 19, 1919.

The Work of a Year.

Chief among the work of your administration office since our last convention has, of course, been that attaching to the publicity campaign and which will be detailed in the report to be made at a later session covering our promotion bureau. Of the other work, much has been accomplished by our committees, all of whom will make separate reports. I might, however, mention the work covering our opposition to Quarantine 37. Several meetings were held at our headquarters, attended by members of our tariff and legislature committee and representatives of outside interests, and your secretary with a large delegation attended a special hearing before the Federal Horticultural Board in Washington, at which the case of the florists was fully argued. Subsequently at other meetings a lengthy brief was prepared for presentation to the Secretary of Agriculture, and by appointment your secretary, again with the delegation, appeared before Secretary Houston to present it. That little in the way of modifications in the quarantine order resulted is a matter for report, but it is doubtful whether the case of the florists could have been more intelligently cited. It may be that Dr. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, and whom we expect to address us at Thursday's session of the convention, will deal fully with this subject from the board's standpoint.

Administration Offices.

The wisdom of our executive board in establishing office quarters in New York was amply exemplified during the year just closed. The growth of the society has necessitated a great deal of detail work requiring ample room for its performance. Already the space available is taxed to the utmost. Many of our members have found their society's office convenient, as furnishing a place for the transaction of business and receiving mail, as well as a communicating point while visiting New York. It has been used to a great advantage for meeting purposes, affiliated and auxiliary societies also sharing in the convenience.

War Emergency Congress.

The United States Chamber of Commerce last November invited our society to have a committee present at a congress of war service committees representing American industries, to be held at Atlantic City, N. J., December 3 to 6, such committee to represent the florists' industry and take part in the proceedings of the congress. President Totty appointed himself with W. F. Gude, chairman of our tariff and legislature committee, your secretary and George Asmus, of Chicago, as such committee, and all were in attendance throughout the congress. The committee was admitted to the congress under credentials which relegated it to voting power in Group No. 32 and in accordance with the program they took part in the discussion of the different phases of the problem of reconstruction as they affected the florists' trade. The committee for its section presented the following resolution, which was carried:

The committee representing the Society of American Florists and the allied trades, an organization working under a charter passed by Congress and signed by the late President McKinley, do hereby submit the following: Resolved, that we recommend the continuance of the war industries board for a limited period. We further recommend the creation of a central committee composed of representatives of the major business interests of the country to take up the work of the war industries during the period of readjustment; also that official recognition shall be given the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as this body would be of valuable assistance in economic liquidation of left-over war properties; further, the florist industries ask that all restrictions that have been imposed on them as war measures be removed, such as fuel restriction, and the importation and exportation of its products. These recommendations are of vital importance to the florist industry.

The florists' trade generally was represented fully and solely by the committee, the Society of American Florists being recognized as a trade organization exerting influence in its principal field. The attendance at the congress was large, including nearly 5,000 delegates, representing practically every industry. The prevailing idea of the congress was that industry should be allowed in great part to settle the various problems of reconstruction outlined in the Congress without restrictions by the national Congress which might be derogatory to inevitable reconstruction.

The Trade Exhibition.

Better evidence that business in the florists' trade is on a pre-war footing could hardly be presented than is contained in our trade exhibition of this year. This exhibition has been given an unusual amount of publicity in the trade papers, in the society's Journal and in a series of about 16,000 form letters which have been mailed over the entire mailing list compiled for the use of our publicity campaign, all with a view of swelling the attendance at this convention and inviting interest in the society's work.

THE TREASURER'S REPORT.

The summary of the treasurer's report as read by J. J. Hess, at Detroit, for the period of time elapsing between December 31, 1918, and July 31, 1919, is as follows:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

The full text of the address of J. Fred Ammann president of the Society of American Florists, delivered at the convention in Detroit, August 19, 1919.

THE great pleasure it gives me to preside at this meeting I cannot find words adequate to express. I do not think myself worthy of the high honor you have conferred upon me by electing me your presiding officer. I feel that the honor should be intended more for St. Louis, the community I represent, than for just the individual. Be that as it may, I do want sincerely and from the bottom of my heart to thank the St. Louis Florists' Club for electing me to this most cherished and honorable position in the gift of our beloved society.

My constant prayer and aim has been that I may live up to your expectations and to the great responsibilities of the office. The future only will tell how well this has been done, hence I beg you withhold judgment for a little while, and when the curtain finally drops and this administration goes out, kindly cover our mistakes with the mantle of charity.

We are just now in the first stages, so to speak, of the reconstruction period after one of the greatest wars ever fought by mankind. We can only grasp the immensity of it when we stop to consider that approximately 50,000,000 men were mobilized for the great conflict, of which 8,000,000 are dead, 18,000,000 are wounded, 6,000,000 are permanent wrecks and 7,000,000 were blown to pieces, buried dead or alive, or are prisoners to be worked or starved to death; 9,000,000 civilians, women, children and aged, have been murdered, starved and slain by disease just because some war lords dreamed of a world conquest.

What the War Cost.

Edgar Crammond, a British financial writer, estimates the total cost of the war, including indirect losses, at $260,000,000,000. The Department of Commerce in 1916 reckoned the total national wealth of the United States at $228,000,000,000. Accepting Mr. Crammond's figures as somewhere near the truth, this war has consumed $32,000,000,000 more than the value of all property in the United States three years ago.

Colossal and unprecedented as it all is, nevertheless strong and courageous people can stand it if only they resolve that it shall not have been done in vain. Let us, as true Americans, resolve that the 50,000 or more of red-blooded Americans who gave up their lives and made the supreme sacrifice on a foreign field of battle have not died in vain, and that we, as members of a national body, whose charter was given by an act of the Congress of the United States, shall unflinchingly do our part in time of peace as we did it in time of war, by extending the hand of true Christian fellowship to the bleeding nations of Europe and by honorably and in an American, businesslike way working untiringly to make our own nation better morally, politically and commercially. Above all, let us insist that everybody who wants to claim and does claim citizenship in this great land be first of all an Amercan.

Right here let me quote from an editorial in the New York Times, which I consider just as apropos now as during the war, entitled "The More Excellent Way":

J. Fred Ammann.
(President of the Society of American Florists.)

"The More Excellent Way."

This colossal war is profoundly affecting American thought and life. It is safe to say that more men and women are thinking, and thinking seriously, than ever before in our history. The days of prosperity are not conducive to serious thought. Life is too easy. Things come without overmuch effort. At such times we are prone to skim the surface and miss the depths. A certain light-hearted flippancy seems to go hand in hand with prosperity. That day is gone. Times have changed. The placid depths are broken up. The days in which we live impose upon us the duty of serious thinking and a deeper sense of gravity. This war has brought home to a good many men the consciousness that they have somehow missed the path of high endeavor. We have been walking in the shadows instead of breathing the free air of the mountains. But today men are searching for the way to the shining tablelands. To find that path and, when found, to walk in it, they recognize as a duty to themselves and to their country.

This discovery means a radical change in the general attitude of life. It cannot be accomplished without a new conception of the law of attainment. Men are born to achieve. A kindly but shrewd observer of American life recently remarked that its outstanding characteristic was the passion for attainment. And it is here that the war is teaching the great lesson of life and conduct. Before the war, men valued life in proportion to what they could get out of it. Not what they could give, but what they could get; not how much they could put into life, but how much they could extract from it. They laid life under tribute for their own ease, enjoyment and comfort. That man had attained most who got most. The one idea was to get, and, having got, to keep. There was little thought of service rendered, less of sacrifice to be made. The imperious demand on life was to give, give.

We are slowly but surely learning that there is a more excellent way. The war has come with stern demand for service and sacrifice upon the part of every American citizen. In its lurid light we are learning the more excellent way of attainment. It is teaching the old Lent lesson that the man who seeks to save his life loses it and the man who sacrifices his life saves it. "Who can tell," said an old Greek philosopher, "whether to die may not be to live, and to live may not be to die?" It was a paradox, but all life is a paradox. The man who values life by what he gets out of it does not really live. He exists, but existence is not the attainment. It defeats its own ends. The great need of this critical moment is that men should think of what they can give, not what they can get. The need of the hour is the extinction of selfishness.

Past, Present and Future.

And now, friends, for a brief review of our work of the past, present and future. Thirty-five years ago this society was organized, as our charter reads, "for the development and advancement of floriculture and horticulture in all their branches, to increase and diffuse the knowledge thereof, and for kindred purposes in the interest of floriculture and horticulture."

Let us see how well we have lived up to the precepts laid down for us by the grand old pioneers of our organization. Statistics speak for the wonderful advancement of both floriculture and horticulture and I shall not burden you with figures on that at this time.

Knowledge has certainly been spread over this land, creating a love for the beautiful, through the various mediums of our society. It will not be amiss here to name just a few. The school gardens committee, under the splendid guidance of the chairman, Benjamin Hammond, has done and is still doing a great work along this line. The American Rose Society, with its long list of both amateur and professional members, is spreading the gospel of, "A Rose for Every Home and a Bush for Every Garden," through the publication of the rose manual. Time can only tell the results of this great work. Many more active influences in the past, as the national flower shows, the convention garden and others, could be mentioned, but suffice it to say that this society has truly lived up to the mandate of its charter, in the spreading of knowledge of floriculture and horticulture, from its beginning.

Just now we are in the midst of the greatest campaign of publicity in floriculture the world has ever known. Ornamental horticulture is also coming in for its full share in this great campaign. Aside from the paid advertisements, we are getting a lot of valuable knowledge before the public through the promotion bureau, for which the material is got out in the secretary's office at little cost to the society. Of this you will hear more in detail later from the secretary's report. This is just a citation to show the increase and diffusion of knowledge of the various branches of floriculture and horticulture.

Kindred Organizations.

What about the kindred purposes in the interest of floriculture and horticulture? First of all, we have the Florists' Hail Association, a product of this society, organized thirty-two years ago. It gives protection to over 1,600 greenhouse establishments, with over 45,000,000 feet of glass insured, has paid out to date over $465,000 in losses to its members and has at present a reserve fund of over $47,000. Of course, when we think of hail insurance we think of J. G. Esler, who has faithfully steered this wonderful by-product along the road to success, from its installation to the present date.

Next we have the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, of much later origin, but such a wonderful growing medium that it, too, bids fair to vie with the parent organization in the near future for numbers in membership. Organized in 1909, it has now a membership of over 1,100 and transmitted by telegraph last year orders to the amount of approximately $1,000,000, and the worthy secretary, Mr. Pochelon, informs me this is bound to increase from thirty to fifty per cent annually.

This is, without a doubt, the greatest medium that floriculture has through which to spread the gospel of publicity. We cannot think of this young giant of an organization without bowing our heads in sorrow for the great loss to the trade and to humanity of its founder and ex-president, J. A. Valentine. We are every mindful, also, of the efficient secretary of this organization, A. Pochelon, who with untiring efforts has really been the bulwark of its great progress. I plead with every member of our society to give this wonderful offspring all the support you can by assisting its officers and especially the secretary in putting the retail division of floriculture on a higher plane than ever before through efficiency and service. You cannot but help in benefiting the entire trade by rendering unselfish service to any one branch thereof.

In addition to the above named, we have numerous other kindred organizations whose origin can be directly traced to this parent society, such as the American Carnation Society, the Rose Society, the Chrysanthemum, the Sweet Pea, the Peony and the Gladiolus Societies. The latter has its annual exhibition at this meeting and the beautiful variety of blooms shown here, I am sure, speak for the wonderful progress of this popular summer flower. Each of these kindred organizations has done a vast amount of good and bids fair to make even much greater progress in the future.

Trade Affiliation.

We have covered the past and touched on the present briefly; now let us look into the future just a bit. What this society needs to boost more than any other one thing, for the future success, is closer trade affiliation. We have in the making one of the finest retail organizations in the world, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. Now we need a national wholesale and commission men's organization and in addition to this we need a national growers' organization. These three branches of our trade should be thoroughly organized and through their proper accredited representatives should be represented in the executive body of this society.

These branches of the trade should not be organized one against the other, as is sometimes the narrow view; but rather for the purpose of better coöperation with one another for the mutual benefit of all. This can be done and I predict will be done in the near future.

I just want to briefly call to mind a few topics that even now demand such coöperation. First of all, a credit system is needed for each branch, a standard grading system for both plants and cut flowers, and a knowledge of the cost of doing business and the cost of production is necessary for the success of either. We also need more complete statistics of the various branches of our business. I could mention numerous other items that we have immediate use for to carry on our business more successfully, but I just name these few for your earnest consideration.

I am glad the retailers have such a

FLOWERS BY TELEGRAPH

IN any sales campaign there are essential points that must be answered:

First. Have you a powerful product to market?

Second. Can you convince the public of its necessity?

Third. Is it worth its price?

If you answer these questions in a satisfactory manner, then your road is fairly level.

Let us investigate and see.

Power is a wonderful thing, whether it be the power of great machinery, of individual effort, or of money. The most potential power lies back of good organization, the organization of principles for the advancement and good of society. Our F. T. D. represents one of the best examples of an organization for the good of all mankind, because it is a direct individual appeal to the higher ideals of all organized society. It appeals to the true sentiment of humans, the love of home and dear ones and the unselfish principle of "doing unto others," the lofty ideal of repaying obligations by personal thought in the selection of flowers.

The address of F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, delivered before the Society of American Florists at Detroit, August 20.

Unique Merchandise.

Ours is the only material in commerce that conveys expression of joy, sorrow, love, hope and happiness, and reflects the life-giving sunshine of the great outdoors. The most delicate expression of sentiments of love and respect, condolence, cheer, sympathy, congratulation, faith and personal thought are possible to transmit almost instantly to any part of the civilized world through the medium of our F. T. D. and flowers. And this is our organization and our merchandise.

The multimillionaire, the pauper, royalty in its palace, the shop girl in the factory all read the same message of love and hope in a flower. The extreme, cold, calculating scientist, the poor laborer see in flowers a more expressive message than is possible by written word or through any other medium and they are waiting for the message, knowing that no distance is so great but that expression of their feelings can be conveyed through the subtle eloquence of flowers through the powerful agency of our F. T. D.

What Are You Doing?

What are you doing to tell the public of the service you can render? What are you doing to advance the work and scope of your own organization, the F. T. D. Association? What are you doing to help the small florist in the little town take the care of your orders in a manner that your customers expect? And you of the big little towns, are you supporting this movement the way you should? And florists of the big cities, what are you doing to take care of the little fellows' orders when they send them in for $1 or $1.50?

Don't rave and swear and stamp around because you receive an order for a dozen roses at $1.50 when your cheapest are $3. Don't take too seriously the fact that your delivery costs nearly fifty cents, and, above all, do not leave the order unfilled. Remember there are florists in your town somewhere on the outskirts who will gladly fill the order at the price, or you may substitute, but notify the recipient as well as the correspondent that you have done so.

Help the Others.

And then get busy and educate the other fellow. You owe it to him. Think back; there are few but who will remember the day a dollar looked big and profitable.

That these orders come to us, that they are filled at a loss are facts, but it is our duty to lift up the smaller men, not crowd them down and discourage them with a return of their unfilled orders because they are not up to our standard. This thing with your help will right itself in time, but be careful how you try to right it or you may find you have thrown a monkey wrench into the wheels of your own progress.

Too many of us are inclined to want to occupy the center of the spotlight. We are much like the fellow who shows his bank book to prove he is a gentleman.

We meet many interesting types in the flower game. I have a fellow in mind who told me a short while back that he "would not advertise the F. T. D. because his competitor was so doing."

Another said he "did not like some of the association officers;" another "allowed he had gotten along pretty well without membership, so guessed he would not join the society;" another said he "never expected to receive any orders, so what was the use of bothering his head trying to send any?" And still another, the worst of all, said, "We are big enough and independent enough not to join."

Oh, Mr. Ostrich, with your head in the sand, beside such as these your sagacity is like unto a Solomon.

Strength of the F. T. D.

My topic should be "Selling Flowers," not "Selling Flowers by Telegraph," if we are to reach any of the above.

The biggest single customer for flowers today in the whole world is the F. T. D.; it outbuys any other customer many thousand times; it makes of the smallest florist in the tiniest hamlet a merchant of international repute; it permits him to say to his customers, "See that list of over 1,000 reputable business houses, scattered throughout the United States, Canada and many foreign countries. All are agents of mine, all under guarantee to me. If they send me an order, I can collect the bill. If I send them an order, they know they will be paid. I am guaranteed against their not filling my order properly just the same as they are guaranteed against me." That sounds like powerful talk, doesn't it? The beauty of it is, that it is absolute truth.

My answer to the man who would not advertise the F. T. D. because his competitor did, had better be left unsaid. Time alone will right him. The man who criticises the officers of the society I would ask what he has done or is doing to better the conditions he thinks exist.

Fred C.W. Brown.

(Vice-president-elect, Society of American Florists.)

Progress Bars Criticism.

Mr. Critic, your vote counts one just the same as that of others. I, as a member, have not had any constructive effort offered to me in the form of direct suggestion for the change of any conditions that do exist. It seems to me that those conditions are not so bad after all, when you take into consideration the advances we have made during the short period of our existence. I hold no brief for our officers; I hold no brief for their methods of procedure, but I do realize the wonderful things that have been done by those gentlemen. I did know of a mistake or two, but they have been crowded out of my memory by the myriads of successes.

When I calmly consider the situation and try to figure where we would be today had our pilots not taken hold of the ship, but left it to the tender mercies of those who now freely (but always below decks) criticise their actions, it seems to me that the millions spent for flowers through the F. T. D. agency would still be going into the pockets of other merchants or remain out of circulation.

In our business we frequently find well-meaning employees who are prone to point out the mistakes of others. On these occasions our feelings are always one of elation. We say to ourselves of the subject, "Here is a man worth watching, one who displays initiative, a man worth while; one who dares." We forget the man who made the complaint in the pleasure of the knowledge of our having the other who at least tries.

Reply to Critics.

If you are not satisfied, come out in the open, and if your complaint is just you will have the backing of your fellow members, but in Heaven's name don't steal into our chicken coop while our back is turned and try to kill the goose that is laying our golden eggs. Please remember she belongs to each one of us just in the same proportion that she belongs to you and there are none of us entitled to more than our share. If you can prove that she hasn't the proper kind of a coop, we are all, every man jack, willing to help build a new one, provided you can convince us you know of a better kind.

To the man who says he has gotten along pretty well without joining: In our memory we know business men who thought they could get along without a telephone or advertising; they have passed unnoticed from the business world. The F. T. D. brings our retail store nearly as much business as the telephone. These two statements should be sufficient answer to that man.

To the man who never expects to receive any F. T. D. orders, therefore does not go after any himself: Please ponder the answers in the previous statement.

Duty to Customers.

To the florist who is big enough and independent enough not to join: Are you fair? Are you fair to your fellow craftsmen? Are you fair to your customers? Remember you are part and parcel of a great democracy for the selling of flowers and not alone. If you do not care to participate in our success, do not try to hamper us. Remember that our customers are visiting your cities and towns, and as we are teaching them the advantage of conveying their wishes to other cities by flowers, we want, and they when going into your establishment demand, the right to use the medium we are building so fast.

If you will not give our customers that privilege they will go elsewhere, but pause a moment in your assurance of security. How about your customers when they come to us? And they will come. Can you afford to have the great majority of keen, bright business men in the same line, in your home town as well as abroad, offer advantages to your customers that you, because of some conceit or perverse idea of your own, refuse them? If you persist in your obstinate stand you may find it too late when you make your decision to change. The damage to your reputation may be beyond repair. This is not a threat, but an honest appeal for your consideration. Be fair to the rest of us.

Where Rumors Rise.

We hear rumors of dissension, separation, and of new societies, always in organizations such as our F. T. D. Rumors that usually emanate from those who are not within the fold or from members who, from grievances fancied or real, just bubble over with periodical effervescence of their ego. Flattering indeed are such breaks, for they prove the value of our association and truly cement the ties already holding us. They also increase publicity of the thing we wish to advertise. Make a memo. of these, Mr. Secretary, as they come along and be sure to place them on the list with the fellow who is going to resign unless his individual views are always accepted and the man who freely admits he would make a better executive than the one in office.

We want to know these birds. No, Al, they are not blue birds of happiness and content, but black birds of uncertainty, always hunting for the well built nest of their more industrious cousins, in which to lay their eggs of discontent. But the advantage is ours, for we recognize them. We knew them in their childhood, when their favorite lullaby was, "I don't want to play in your yard."

The Farmer and His Bull.

To those contemplating such breaks I think the story of the farmer, his little red bull and the railroad train is fitting.

In this instance, the railroad train is our F. T. D. Association, the farmer our dissenting florist, and the little red bull his vehicle of attack.

The story: To continue its progress, the railroad had to pass through the farmer's land. The farmer passively fought its progress, but, being well paid for the slice of land needed, tolerated its presence. But he was not a progressive farmer. He could not see how the value of his land had been increased. So he vowed a vow never to ride on "one of them blamed contraptions."

It wouldn't have been so bad had he let it go at that, but he then set to work to try to stop the train. Afraid of it himself, he trained his little red bull to stamp and bellow whenever the train passed through. One day, when he thought the time was ripe, the farmer removed part of the fence and let his little bull on the track. The bull, with much noise, stamping and lowered head, waited to prove that he was the match for any such thing as a railroad train. Had he not challenged the thing again and again without reply? He felt he was better and intended to prove it, but alas, the railroad train, with a warning whistle, passed on without a pause. Poor little bull!

The farmer had expected that even if he did lose his bull he might wreck the train, but he did not take into consideration the modern cowcatcher (our collective ownership), or the efficient conductor (our president), or the steady-handed engineer (our secretary), or the train crew (our worthy directors).

So buy your ticket (a membership) and climb aboard our train of success, bound for the valley of profits and bigger business, and don't be classed with the man who says, "The old hoss and rig has the auto skun a mile."

Individual Effort Counts.

Selling flowers by telegraph is a matter of individual effort in its final analysis. The magnitude of the business today is largely the result of individual effort. The means to attain the end are as diversified as the mind can imagine. For me to try to tell you how would make me look ridiculous. We are prone to think that occasionally we meet some bright fellow who is almost as intelligent as ourselves. I have no desire for that distinction.

The work of our publicity campaign is producing wonderful results. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is the greatest and most effective slogan of words ever assembled for business. More power to the campaign! May we not stop, nor even hesitate, until it has been doubled and quadrupled. But all those efforts will lose their power without the backing of you individuals.

Our societies are doing their share. You do yours. Our associates are devoting their time and effort to better your business. What are you doing?

The vehicle to bigger business is waiting at your door. Climb aboard. The road to success is paved, not with uncertain good intentions, but smoothed and rolled to a level by your publicity managers. Many are riding its course successfully and happily, but each machine requires its own pilot.

To the thousand who are already members of our great association I would say:

Would you sell flowers by telegraph? Then sell your organization to the florists and when you have doubled your membership, double it again and yet again. We, the members of the F. T. D., own and control the organization; it is not the property of an individual, nor a small group of individuals. It increases its owners by one, as each new member is added to the roll of progressive florists already on the lists. It increases its value to the old members by each new member elected. Get busy.

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY MEETS.

The exhibition of the society was held in the balcony of the auditorium, where a row of tables was placed on each side of the hall. The blooms were well developed and the stock was all of good quality. The commercial growers' classes had much larger competition than the amateur classes.

The principal exhibitors and prize-winners in the open classes were C. Zeestraten, Bemus Point, N. Y.; United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Joe Coleman, Ravenna, O.; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Pittsburgh; J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O., and Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.

In the amateur classes Madison Cooper was almost the whole show, but the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, St. Thomas, Ont., staged a good collection.

Jelle Roos, Milton, Mass., received honorable mention for baskets of Gladiolus Mary Fennell, Mrs. Dr. Norton, and Peace. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. received honorable mention for an artistically arranged basket and the Grullemans Co. was given honorable mention for its splendid achievement in hybridizing primulinus.

The Gladiolus Society held its annual meeting at Hotel Statler, electing the following officers: President, H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; vice-president, C. R. Hinkle, St. Joseph, Mich.; secretary, A. C. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y.; treasurer, Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; executive committee, Joe Coleman, L. R. Bonnewitz and I. S. Hendrickson. The meeting next year will be at Cleveland, with the S. A. F. The secretary reported high-water mark in the membership at 280, and $100 was voted to the S. A. F. publicity fund.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association, held at Detroit, August 20, all the officers were reëlected, except that Anders Rasmussen succeeds J. J. Hess as a director.

The report of Secretary John G. Esler showed 1,604 members August 1, 1919, with insurance on 45,131,271 square feet of glass. An equivalent of 201,819 square feet of single thick glass was broken by hail during the year, for which the association paid $10,090.93. An equivalent of 240,914 square feet of double thick glass was broken, which cost the association $16,863.98, making total losses paid aggregate $26,954.01. At the close of the report there were unadjusted losses not exceeding $1,300. The total receipts for the year ending August 1, 1919, and including last year's balance, as per treasurer's report, were $70,860.79. The total expenditures, as per treasurer's report, for the year ending August 1, 1919, have been $39,648.27, of which $26,954.01 was for losses, $4,884.04 for expenses and the balance for investments. The cash balance on hand is $31,212.52, of which $875.79 belongs to the reserve fund. The reserve fund now amounts to $47,875.79, of which $47,000 is invested in Liberty and municipal bonds, together with $875.79 in the hands of the treasurer. The amount of interest collected on reserve fund investments is $2,370.60. Over 2,800 losses have been adjusted since the organization of the F. H. A., involving a total expenditure of over $465,000. There has been a large accession this year to the hazardous risk class, which will be materially felt in the thirty-second assessment.

THE TRADE'S DISPLAY.

Hubert V. Pearce, Detroit.

Mr. Pearce again appeared with his steam trap, not seen at the last several conventions.

S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia.

A comprehensive array of baskets, chiffons and ribbons covered the tables of the S. S. Pennock Co. Cradles in pink and blue for birth gifts and 50-inch velvet velour in a number of colors were of particular note. Robert Greenlaw and E. J. Fancourt were with the display.

Peters & Reed, South Zanesville, O.

Pots to draw the attention of growers and jardinieres to attract the interest of retailers were exhibited by the Peters & Reed Pottery Co., with D. W. Worthington in charge.

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Victory fern, a sport of Teddy, Jr., bearing both light and dark green leaves and having branching fronds, was chief among the display of ferns by F. R. Pierson, under James T. Trevillian's care.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh.

A varied line of baskets, chiffons and artificial flowers of standard and staple sorts composed the display of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. L. H. Bergman was with the exhibit.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.

The work of the art director, Miss Roth, was of prime interest in the extensive exhibit of Poehlmann Bros. Co. A large panel painted by her, of the kind used for backgrounds and windows in retail stores, and elaborate bird houses of her design attracted considerable attention. Pumpkin baskets for Halloween, and Christmas novelties in the form of fireplaces and chimneys, were other features. Baskets of many kinds and prepared grasses were well shown. A. A. Martial and Miss Roth were with the exhibit.

C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Wax flowers of many sorts and other retailers' supplies were shown by the C. C. Pollworth Co., as well as a good collection of foliage plants. Phil. Weil was in charge.

Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, O.

Photographs of letters of commendation from users of Vitaplastic glazing cement and some automatic glazing machines in which it is used formed the display of the Quality Brands Co.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

A good-sized room off the main hall housed the large display of the A. L. Randall Co. Supplies of every nature, from glazing material, paint, insecticides, hose, pots, etc., for the grower, to boxes, ribbons, wreaths, artificial flowers, foliage, electric fountains and aeroplane fans for the retailer, were included in the extensive collection. Wicker furniture for florists' stores was shown. Frank Johnson, Edward Galavan, Victor Tredup were with the exhibit.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.

Baskets of antique finish in bronze, garlanded in an Italian style, were an eye-catcher in the display of the M. Rice Co. The decorated forest wreaths were of pleasing variety. Ribbons, chiffons, wax flowers, wreaths and designs were included in the display, which was notable for novelties. A. Zirkman, J. P. McCarthy and H. Heilman were on hand.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

For the Julius Roehrs Co., Thomas Knight arranged a collection of American-grown stock of excellent quality, including palms, boxwoods and Scotch and Mediterranean heather. Two large Belgian palms, of this spring's importation, were a reminder of the refrain of Poe's raven, "Nevermore."

Max Schling, New York.

Copies of Max Schling's expensively illustrated book on "Art in Floral Arrangements" were set out for examination at his exhibit, together with some specimens of Mr. Schling's handiwork in basket arrangement.

Schloss Bros. Co., New York.

The ribbons and chiffons put on display for Schloss Bros Co., by Sam Seligman, included a number of novelties in weave and luster.

Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O.

Sections of the Skinner irrigation system formed a railing in front of chairs placed for their consideration by visitors.

Joseph M. Stern Co., Cleveland.

This display consisted of artificial flowers, ruscus and supplies.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

An excellent display of cut blooms of Cedar Acres gladioli included primulinus hybrids of attractive quality, from B. Hammond Tracy.

Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Among the ribbons and chiffons in the display of Wertheimer Bros. were a number of novel effects, such as corded satin and corded taffeta ribbons, basket weave corsage ribbon, ombre edge chiffon, with cable stitch, shaded jacquard ribbon, and a large range of 8-inch novelty edged chiffons. Harry Brand was in charge.

George Wittbold Co., Chicago.

Palms, ferns, cyclamens and foliage plants of other kinds were displayed by the George Wittbold Co.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

On the tables of Vaughan's Seed Store were vases of named gladiolus blooms, foliage plants of a number of kinds and narcissus bulbs of various sizes.

MISSOURI MEETING ON TRAIN.

When thirty-seven florists of the state of Missouri were en route to the S. A. F. convention August 18 they called themselves to assemble in convention and organized a body, to be known as the Missouri State Florists' Association. The officers elected to effect the organization were as follows:

President—G. A. Kaupp, Nevada, Mo.
Vice-president—Edwin Denker, St. Charles, Mo.
Secretary—C. C. Sanders, St. Louis.
Treasurer—L. H. Archias, Sedalia.

The first meeting of the association will be held during the first week of November at Kansas City, Mo. By that time a large membership is expected, since all of those on the train were enrolled immediately.

F. T. D. HOLDS MEETING.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association held a meeting on the morning of August 19 to obtain views as to the program for the convention to be held in Buffalo, October 14 and 15. When President Gude made his opening remarks there were about 250 present and others straggled in later. An introduction of himself to the audience by each member revealed the fact that many sections of the country were represented and Canada strongly also. After President Ammann, of the S. A. F., paid tribute to the energy and achievements of the association, W. W. Gammage, of London, Ont., spoke for the Canadian Horticultural Association. George Dicks, also from London, Ont., told of his efforts in behalf of the F. T. D. among the Canadian retailers and turned in eight members, reporting several good prospects in addition.

When Charles H. Grakelow told of the Philadelphia retailers' desire for a minimum price for F. T. D. orders and asked that a committee be formed to report on the matter at Buffalo, he started a spirited discussion. The opinion, while strong that retailers should fill the smallest orders for the sake of the service and customers' satisfaction, was general that education toward larger sized orders was highly desirable. Philip Breitmeyer stated that last month the wire orders going out of the store of J. Breitmeyer's Sons averaged $7.58 and those coming in $5.46, whereas four or five years ago the average was scarcely above $1.50. A service that since its inception had brought the retailers in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 in business was, he said, worth occasional sacrifice on the part of the members.

Secretary Pochelon stated that the association now had 1,088 members and $12,230.70 in the guarantee fund. The dues for the coming year would, he estimated, total $11,943, as compared with $205 seven years ago.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The Ladies' S. A. F. held its annual meeting at Detroit, as usual, with the largest attendance on record; they filled their hall to overflowing. Officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.
First vice-president—Mrs. Charles Graham, Cleveland.
Second vice-president—Mrs. J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.
Secretary—Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.
Treasurer—Miss Perle B. Fulmer, Des Moines, Ia.

Seattle, Wash.—The annual dahlia show of the Seattle Dahlia Society will be held September 3 and 4, at Madison street and Western avenue. More than 500 entries are expected.

Rhinelander, Wis.—Joseph Goldberg, one of Rhinelander's leading merchants, has sold his store to E. Elkon, formerly of the Rhinelander Nursery Co. Ill health compelled Mr. Goldberg to dispose of the business.

PENN ON PUBLICITY

THERE is greater need today than ever for the florists generally to continue the national advertising campaign and to further the uses of our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," so that whenever the public have something particular to give or do, they should unconsciously think of flowers. The keeping of our slogan always before them will in time generate this idea, so that it will be dominant and imbedded in the thoughts of people as never before.

We have always had the finest product that nature can bestow, yet we fail to take advantage of the most important function needed to stimulate the greater use for more flowers, and advertising is the needed force.

When we consider the fact that for so many years prior to our taking up this campaign we managed to get along so well, what may we expect when all the florists tie up to this campaign, using their own advertisements in their own localities? It will be a growth beyond imagination.

Government Recommends Advertising.

Just note how Uncle Sam is sending out his message through the United States Department of Labor. Here is his message:

If you are not advertising, then advertise, because it saves money for you and it reduces the price to the consumer.

Advertising prevents profiteering. It insures honest profits and makes them permanent.

The message of the U. S. Department of Labor to merchants and manufacturers and to all progressive American business men is to advertise.

Tell the public about YOUR goods. The consumer has plenty of money. He is willing to spend it and we want him to spend it on American-made products. The easiest, quickest and most economical way in which this can be accomplished is by advertising.

Start your campaign right now.

(Signed) U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.
W. B. Wilson, Secretary.

Need we have better evidence of its worth?

Possibilities Unrealized.

Granting the fact that we have also started a national campaign and as chairman of the publicity committee in surveying our work, I note the florists have not awakened to the possibilities, else we would have had our $100,000 oversubscribed by now. But probably the balance may be forthcoming soon, so that our plans may be carried out to one hundred per cent result.

We should be proud that our campaign started when it did, and that so many other trade organizations are now emulating the example of the S. A. F. to such a degree that we are constantly being called upon to give data, etc., about this campaign of ours.

When we have been using publicity long enough the effect will be so general that its continuity will be assured for all time and behind it will come the movement necessary, that is, of retailers using more space to extol the merits of flowers, so that the sale will be greater and broader.

During the months of January and February, 1919, we appropriated $5,000 for advertising, because no money seemed to be in sight at the time, and your finance committee did not want to obligate the society beyond the amount of money on hand.

The work that we did with this $5,000 during January and February was the most amazing advertising that I have ever known of, and I have been studying and spending money for advertising for a number of years.

Consider for one moment, if you will, that with this $5,000 we reached over twenty million people in this country, impressing them with our wonderful slogan, "Say It with Flowers." When you consider that few national magazines are confined to one reader, you will understand what a magnificent investment this $5,000 proved to be.

The following is a list of publications that we used during January and February, together with their circulations:

The next meeting of the publicity committee and finance committee was held in Cleveland early in the year and an appropriation of $26,000 was made for large advertising in the following national magazines: Literary Digest, Outlook, Red Book, Collier's, Hearst's, Literary Digest, Cosmopolitan, Sunset, Everybody's, Quality Group (Atlantic Monthly, Century, Harper's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, World's Work, Munsey's), Collier's, Literary Digest, Metropolitan, American Magazine.

Our color page in the so-called "Quality Group" magazines was a most striking piece of work and evoked favorable comment from all.

The Present Schedule.

Our third schedule of the year is now running in the magazines and again because sufficient money was not at hand we were obliged to cut down our space, but the results of that investment also were amazing.

We are using about twenty-six national mediums during the months of July, August and September, the total cost of which will be approximately $5,000. The following is a list of the publications: Atlantic Monthly, Century, Harper's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, American, Everybody's, Metropolitan, Munsey's, Red Book, Sunset, World's Work, Hearst's, System, McClure's, Popular Science Monthly, Cosmopolitan, Argosy, Collier's, Christian Science Monitor, Independent, Leslie's Weekly, Life, Outlook, Scientific American and Judge.

We expect to appropriate immediately $35,000 or $40,000 to be used in big space during the months of October, November and December. In the October magazines, our present plan is to try to increase the sale of chrysanthemums. In the November magazines we will dwell on the idea of everybody using flowers for Thanksgiving, and in the December publications elaborate upon the Christmas thought and spirit and urge sending flowers as Christmas gifts in place of the usual things that are sent.

We now have several men on the road soliciting subscriptions, but Secretary Young and Mr. Asmus, chairman of the finance committee, will tell you more about that detail.

Your publicity and finance committees have had several meetings during the year in various parts of the country. They have worked unceasingly to make this advertising campaign bring results. We, who are in close touch with the work, feel that it is the best thing that the florists of this country ever did, and we hope that those who are not contributing at all and those who are not contributing to their fullest extent will think a moment, and ask themselves if it is fair to let a few carry the burden of this great work.

NECROLOGY.

Secretary Young reported that the S. A. F. has lost the following members by death during the year since the St. Louis convention:

Henry F. Michell II (Life), Philadelphia, Pa., accidentally drowned while with the A. E. F., April 7, 1917.

E. E. Stone, Dickinson, Tex., killed in action with the Canadian forces, date unknown.

Charles C. Hill, Govanstown, Md., died of pneumonia while with the A. E. F.

E. A. Seidewitz, Baltimore, Md., August 24, 1918.

John White, Springfield, Mass., August 26, 1918.

Wm. F. Dreer (Life), Philadelphia, Pa., September 8, 1918.

Thos. J. Gibson, Newport, R. I., October 6, 1918.

Chas. G. Roebling, Trenton, N. J., October 5, 1918.

Theo. Shober, Wyncote, Pa., October 7, 1918.

Chas. Brown, Canton, O., October 3, 1918.

Report of Henry Penn, chairman of the publicity committee of the Society of American Florists, submitted to the convention at Detroit, August 20, 1919.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

SINCE our last convention the work of the promotion bureau has been carried on with great vigor. At a joint meeting of the publicity committee and publicity finance committee held in Cleveland, January 30, it was decided to aim for a fund of $100,000, instead of $50,000, the mark set for 1918. The committees were unanimously of opinion that the larger sum would be forthcoming and the work of collecting same was left to your bureau. At a meeting of the executive board next day in Detroit, at which the committees were present, reports were made by the chairmen of the committees as set out in the issue of our Journal for March, copies of which have been distributed at this convention. So enthusiastic were the members of the committees and the board at this meeting, that among them the sum of $2,065 was subscribed to the campaign fund, much of it in addition to amounts previously subscribed by some.

Your bureau immediately set to work in an endeavor to raise the larger fund. Large numbers of letters in various forms were sent out, followed by others calculated to sustain any interest excited by the first, and appealing to the better instincts of the prospective subscribers. About eighty articles containing argument and appeals for subscriptions have, since the opening of the campaign, been sent to the trade papers, each publication publishing one every week, together with a list of new subscriptions reported. This assistance on the part of the trade press is gratefully appreciated by your bureau and by your committees. It might also be here mentioned that the same papers published recently our entire subscription list, at actual cost of type composition and paper stock required, thus giving us the benefit of the combined circulation of the four papers at small cost.

How the Fund Was Used.

To show how the fund was being used, a broadside was sent out over a mailing list of approximately 13,000 florists, instancing one transaction, necessitating the outlay of about $5,000, which resulted in the display of our slogan before 20,000,000 people; or it could perhaps be safely asserted 100,000,000 people, as it is generally conceded that there are five readers to every copy of a national magazine—at a proportionate cost of $50 per million, a wonderfully small cost. The broadside also described and illustrated the various newspaper electrotypes, glass signs, decalcomania signs, lantern slides and stickers supplied by the bureau and intended to publicly connect any user with the campaign publicity, with the result that much of this material passed into the hands of florists, where they served the purpose not only of individual publicity, but provided that much more publicity for our slogan.

Your bureau has kept careful record of florists using newspaper columns for their announcements and has repeatedly urged that they incorporate the slogan, "Say It with Flowers" in all their advertisements, preferably using the same script form adopted for the campaign. The reason for this is that the slogan in uniform character is more easily impressed upon the public mind and is in every way more forcible through familiarity.

The demand for lantern slides has been marked so far through the year. The first series of slides has been supplemented, in response to requests from many users, by a second series, and many florists have both. The amount of publicity secured through a constant use of these slides in moving picture houses is too immense to be even guessed. Everybody goes to the "movies" nowadays and the slides when projected compel attention.

While there has been a fair demand for our line of slogan "stickers," the trade has not used them as generally as might be expected. Their use on boxes, stationery and in many other ways affords cheap publicity to our slogan. It has been argued that the people who see it in this form are already customers, but are they not ordinarily as much in need of a reminder as anyone else? The more they see of the slogan, the better customers they are likely to become.

Value of Signs, Etc.

The distribution of glass signs bearing our slogan for window or wall use has been large. Since the beginning of the campaign the bureau has supplied 1,100 of these signs and they are on display in as many establishments throughout the country. In addition, the bureau has disposed of about 650 sets of decalcomania transfer signs which are affixed to windows and door panels and display the slogan to advantage. Florists who have not furnished themselves with one or the other of these signs are missing an opportunity to spread the influence of the slogan and at the same time connect their establishments with the magazine advertising. The value of such a connection is evidenced by the hundreds of congratulatory letters received from members of the craft who have used our service aids to link up with the campaign. That the wisdom of this course is based upon common sense need hardly be pointed out. Not one person present at this convention but who has been impressed with some slogan in trade use applying to a particular commodity, the name of which is readily suggested when the need for it arises. It is just so with the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Its suggestive powers are exercised whenever it is seen.

How many thousands of men, can we suppose, through seeing that slogan in the florists' shops, in the magazines, in local newspapers, on wagons or elsewhere are reminded of a birthday anniversary of wife, daughter, or dear friend? Men are many times more forgetful in this respect than women and appreciate a reminder which is not at all mandatory. While the number of signs supplied has been fairly large, it should have been many times larger. The cost of a sign is small and its acquisition easy. When displayed properly it is at work continually, suggesting the use of your products to every beholder. The display of even a thousand more signs would mean, at the lowest estimate, 1,000 more sales daily, 300,000 more sales yearly. Is it any wonder that our slogan has been valued by advertising experts as worth to our craft a million dollars or more? The use of signs need not be confined to shops. We know of many growers who have procured signs for display at points adjacent to public roads passing their establishments. One grower in the vicinity of New York, on a road traveled by hundreds of automobiles daily, has a sign on each gate post at his entries. While upon this subject, it may be stated that the bureau has noticed, with regret, that some in the trade have, in use, distorted the slogan by injecting a proprietary name, such, for instance, as "Say It with Green's Flowers." This is unnecessary and inadvisable, and has a tendency to cheapen, even destroy, the sentiment carried in the message of the original slogan.

The Question Answered.

The slogan, we find, works in a multitude of ways and there is absolutely no occasion when the suggestion it carries is not in place. As an instance: Last month, in a middle western town, a committee representing an industrial community which had raised a war chest on the plan followed by many such communities in different parts of the country, finding in the chest a goodly sized money balance for which there was no real further use, the war having ended, determined to return it, pro rata, to the contributors. The contributors, in grateful appreciation of the committee's action, felt that they should present the committee with visible evidence of their appreciation, but experienced difficulty in deciding what form it should take. In the dilemma a contributor suggested "Say It with Flowers." The suggestion was unanimously approved and a beautiful floral "square," 4½x6 feet, was the presentation piece, conveying the sentiment that the committee was "on the square." Who shall say that the slogan did not work in this case?

While a goodly number of florists have taken advantage of the bureau's electrotype service, there are many others who might do so, with advantage to themselves and the campaign. The electrotypes supplied feature individual advertisements appearing in the magazines so closely that when used in local newspapers the similarity is quite apparent to a reader, who is likely, if he has been impressed by the magazine announcement, to patronize the florist whose name appears in connection with the newspaper reproduction. This is an important service and can be profitably used by anyone seeking to draw to himself direct results from the magazine publicity. The electrotypes are good for any length of time, irrespective of the magazine advertising.

Coöperation of Papers.

The bureau has had the good fortune to secure generous publication of the stories sent out this year for the use of newspapers throughout the country. A judicious distribution of this press matter has resulted in awakened interest on the part of editors and publishers in matters floricultural and horticultural, and in many cases regular departments for the purpose have been inaugurated, the material supplied by various writers attached to their own staffs. It is gratifying to notice that in the main the material so published is beyond censure as to quality, and that absurd statements by incompetent writers, so common in matters of this kind so short a time ago, are rarely met with nowadays. Our bureau is continually called upon for information on various subjects floricultural, for use along these lines, which information, and any other assistance asked, is cheerfully given.

Subscriptions Needed.

And now a word about subscriptions. In spite of the intensive work done by the promotion bureau, subscriptions have come in slowly and the monthly aggregates have not been anything near what might reasonably be expected nor at all near to a ratio which might furnish a prospect for the completion of the fund of $100,000. Your bureau has sent official letters explanatory of the campaign to every known florist, not once but several times, always enclosing literature which left nothing unexplained. While these efforts were rewarded with success, it was not such as it ought to have been, considering the great number to whom the appeal for subscriptions was directed, and the fact that the campaign experience of last year left no doubt as to results. That many hundreds of florists have not responded simply through carelessness is quite believed, and the report of the chairman of the publicity finance committee, which will deal with an organized personal effort to obtain contributions, will bear out this belief.

FINANCING THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

IT is my opinion that there has been no work taken up by the national organization that has meant so much to every person engaged in our industry, and that the campaign as inaugurated by the society in New York two years ago has brought results far beyond our fondest expectations.

To those of us who have in charge the financing of this wonderful project, it has seemed from the results obtained the first year, that we ought to have easily doubled our first year's quota. of $40,000 by this time. Over half of the year has passed and we have now about $47,000 subscriptions to date. If money is subscribed in the same proportion up until the end of the year, it is possible that we may reach the $75,000 mark. This may indeed seem large figures, but when the results obtained are considered, and in one instance the profits of one firm have increased that much and more in one year, it seems ridiculous as a business proposition, that instead of being solicited the shrewd business man should be overanxious to see that publicity is one of his greatest assets and not only be a big subscriber, but a help to our committee in securing subscriptions from others.

It has been a difficult and an uphill task to get together the fund we now have. It is true we have had wonderful support from the officers of the society and also from some of the business men throughout the country. It is not to this few that I am alluding, but the great majority. If someone were to come along and show the average grower a device where he could save ten per cent on his coal bills, he would be ready to invest thousands of dollars. But the publicity campaign can show results that are not only savings, but earnings of a great many times this amount. And yet where are the business men of our profession when it comes to supporting their own advertising campaign?

There are a number of other industries who have closely watched our campaign and are so satisfied with the results obtained that they are copying our methods in all but one thing, and that is their insight to realize what such a campaign meant to their trade by the starting out with sums ranging in double to three times the amount of money expended.

The average subscriber to the fund has had to be approached, not only through our mail campaign, but by the paid solicitors. This is indeed a deplorable condition when the results obtained are considered.

Chairman Penn and his committee are to be congratulated on having contracted with the P. F. O'Keefe Agency. It was Major O'Keefe, of this agency, who recommended our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," which is conceded to be, by the brightest advertising men in the country, the best trade slogan ever known by any commercial industry, and which is rapidly becoming a byword to the people of the United States and Canada and I may also add that they are using it in Europe. I was much impressed to find that several customers at our retail stores when enclosing a card with flowers had used our slogan as one of the best expressions they could think of in connection with the gift. All of this obtained with the expenditure of about $60,000. The enormous amount of advertising matter that is appearing in the magazines shows that the advertising brains of this country are unanimous in their opinion that this medium ranks first. Evidently the magazines are realizing this, as the rates in most publications have advanced from thirty to 100 per cent. This is another reason that there will have to be more money raised if we wish to have the prosperous conditions of the trade continued.

Evidence of Success.

Exceedingly few men in our profession a year or more ago thought that there would be any building of greenhouses for some time to come. And yet the greenhouse builders are extremely busy and behind with their work. Considering the high cost of material, this is evidence for itself of the success of the campaign. There is no branch of the industry that has not shared in the prosperity and when statistics show us that the amount spent for flowers per year for each individual in the United States is only 57 cents, it can easily be seen what the possibilities are. It perhaps will be interesting to know in what proportion each branch of the trade has subscribed, and while the figures I now give you may vary a trifle, they are nearly accurate.

Division	Amount	Subscribers
Wholesale florists	$ 4,814.00	66
Nurserymen	450.00	5
Greenhouse builders	500.00	5
Seedsmen	550.00	16
Dealers in supplies	1,485.00	25
Retail florists	17,968.00	1,220
Growers	9,811.00	470
Total	$35,578.00	1,807
F. T. D.	$ 1,500.00
Clubs, societies and organizations	600.00
Grand total	$37,678.00

There is an ironclad rule that the space in the magazines must be contracted for three months before the date of circulation. The committee has been hampered much by not being able to make definite appropriation and have lost out on some of the best publications and the choice of space for this reason. I point this out to the people who have subscribed for one year only. I hope in the near future that we shall have contracts with subscribers for four-year periods and that the total amount will be at least $100,000.

The results obtained in the coming few years undoubtedly will be much greater, for it must be remembered that the great agitation for publicity has aroused the country so that the florists in all communities are banding together and organizing to carry on a local campaign that will tie up with the national. Also wonderful work is being done by the promotion bureau with its sale of dealers' helps and articles. They have been successful in getting into the papers throughout the country and have been of enormous aid.

Waste of Money.

Secretary Young has had to bear the burden of this additional work. He has done work that is truly wonderful and saved the subscribers thousands of dollars. I wonder if the business men in our profession have ever stopped to consider that the solicitation of the fund by mail and otherwise has cost them quite a few thousand dollars, where this money might have been spent for advertising space. Articles have appeared weekly in the trade papers pointing out the fact, and yet despite all, the responses have in no way been in proportion to the results obtained.

Report of George Asmus, chairman of the publicity finance committee, presented at the Detroit convention August 19.

I wish to point out here a plan of procedure that if adopted where possible might help solve the problem of equitable plan of assessment, and whereby everybody pays his correct proportion and allows for seventy-five per cent of the money so collected to be used in the local community, through the hard and earnest effort of President Ammann.

How St. Louis Does It.

The St. Louis florists have adopted the following plan: To charge every retailer purchasing flowers at commission houses for advertising. That is, if the retail florist purchased $25 worth of flowers he would be charged 25 cents for advertising, the grower to be assessed one-half of the one per cent as his share. The commission houses, as their share, are to be collectors and distributors to an advertising committee who have in charge the matter of properly using it for advertising purposes. Twenty-five per cent of this fund is to go to the national publicity campaign. The balance is to be used locally. This method has also been used in the city of Milwaukee, where the results were so great and the increase in the business so noticeable that the amount assessed was doubled. The only difference is that they have not as yet decided to give twenty-five per cent to the national fund. Thus, everybody pays exactly alike and in proportion to the amount of business done, and it is surprising that with ever so small an assessment the amount obtained will run into thousands of dollars.

One per cent of what the retailer buys in cut flowers really amounts to 1/35 of the 1 per cent of his total business. In other words, he secures an extraordinary amount of publication for the sale of flowers, and as figured out by the leading retail florists' of this country, that from 3 to 5 per cent of his gross business is the amount he should spend for advertising. If this is so he still has about 90 cents left out of every dollar he ordinarily spends for advertising. Does it not show to him clearly that he is securing any number of times more publication and saving for himself a great deal of money? The grower is affected in the demand for flowers keeping up in prices to a much higher level, therefore his half of the 1 per cent is hardly noticeable when the difference in his receipts are considered. Such a campaign conducted locally could take care of glut season and save the grower considerable money.

I am now going into discussion as to the future conduct of the affairs of those who have charge of this important work. Those of you who are familiar will remember that through a recommendation of Ex-president Patrick Welsh the national publicity committee was originated, to be composed of five men. One was to be retired each year, the incoming president to appoint his successor. Their duties were to have in charge all matters pertaining to the publicity.

Launching the Campaign.

At this time the national publicity campaign was but a thought, and it was only after a wonderful paper read by W. F. Therkildson on publicity, at the New York convention, and the recommendation that came from him, who was then chairman of this permanent committee, that the convention voted unanimously to approve of his recommendation. And then and there the project was launched. After further discussion, Chairman Therkildson suggested that a special committee be appointed to have in charge the raising of money to finance the project. After a debate, action was passed that a committee of five be appointed to have in charge the financial end of the campaign. Thus the committee, of which I am chairman, has acted since this time, acting on all appropriations, superintending the collections of funds, etc.

The wise selection of the O'Keefe agency has left little for the publicity committee to do. Major O'Keefe and his associates, with the assistance of Chairman Penn, have demonstrated that they are entirely efficient to prepare good copy and sketches that go to make the advertising effective. His suggestions to the committee have proven conclusively that he has wonderful ability in placing money where it will do the greatest good.

At the last joint meeting of both of our committees, held in Cincinnati, it was decided that the railroad traveling expense of the two committees was a great expense and I suggested that the national finance publicity committee, of which I am chairman, be abolished. After considerable discussion President Ammann, who presided at these committee meetings, secured an expression from all of the members present and it was the unanimous opinion that one committee should handle the entire work, working on similar lines as the National Flower Show committee works. One man retiring each year means that there will always be on the board men of from four to five years' experience in the handling of the campaign.

Each member of the committee could be delegated to take care of a certain department. You are all aware that the principal work must be done by the secretary and office force and suitable appropriations must be made to establish a systematic method of procedure. If there were only five members to be considered in calling a session of this important committee they could have meetings more often and, of course, results obtained would be better.

Billboard Advertising.

I point out to you the danger of having an appointive committee, whose term expires each year, in charge of such important work. The feasibility of this action will appeal to all. At a recent joint meeting of the various trade interests in Chicago the Wholesale Growers' Association of Cook County proposed a billboard campaign, having in view an easy matter of obtaining sites for the erection of billboards, with nothing but our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," throughout the country. They offered to erect boards at their own cost. There are any quantity of locations where greenhouse plants are and where the railroad passes and automobile traffic is heavy, and you can imagine what an addition to publicity could be gained by the thousands of billboards all over the country with our wonderful slogan, "Say It with Flowers." I am about to have an interview with one of the largest billboard agencies in the country and perhaps may have something further to say on the method and cost at that time. The following is the brief summary in total of the financial conditions of the campaign up to August 1:

Total amount of fund	$ 42,069.50
Of this amount there has been collected	35,518.75
Balance due and unpaid	6,549.75
Cost of magazine advertising up to date of this year	24,933.24
Drawings, plates, etc	2,187.81
	$111,259.05

Subscriptions by States.

Secretary Young's report as a member of our committee and in charge of detail will be more comprehensive to you. His report will give in detail the expense and work of the promotion bureau. It may be interesting to the convention to know the amounts subscribed by each state, which are as follows:

Illinois	$5,887.50
New York	5,607.50
Pennsylvania	5,055.00
Ohio	3,347.00
Michigan	3,182.00
Massachusetts	2,651.00
Missouri	2,045.50
New Jersey	1,808.00
Wisconsin	1,377.00
Connecticut	1,219.00
Indiana	1,022.50
Texas	892.00
California	878.50
Iowa	633.00
Minnesota	540.00
Maryland	511.50
Colorado	446.00
Washington, D. C.	405.00
Kentucky	356.50
Rhode Island	338.00
North Carolina	236.00
Canada	215.00
Utah	168.00
Oklahoma	127.50
Virginia	125.00
Louisiana	200.00
Maine	100.00
New Hampshire	95.00
Georgia	92.00
North Dakota	80.00
South Carolina	77.50
Kansas	68.50
South Dakota	60.00
Florida	55.00
Vermont	28.00
Idaho	20.00

Principal Work Done.

It wants to be borne in mind that the principal work has been accomplished by our committee, as ninety per cent of the $47,000 now subscribed is for four years, and as I said before, if the present ratio of the subscriptions is kept up on a four-year basis there ought to be at least $65,000 for the publicity committee to start with January 1, 1920.

I wish to say to the members of both committees that they have responded to every call and have given me every assistance possible and to them you owe a debt of gratitude for this service. I know that I speak the thoughts of all of the members of our committee when I say we all feel gratified in knowing we have not labored in vain and feel happy to think that we have been part of this great movement which has done so much to bring prosperity to the florists' business.

Following is the resolution that I referred to in my message that will abolish the finance publicity committee and put all the work into the hands of the publicity committee as originally intended:

"It is hereby resolved that the committee known as the finance publicity committee be abolished December 31, 1919, and that the work of financing and appropriating moneys to take care of the national publicity campaign be added to the duties of the national publicity committee."

NEXT NATIONAL SHOW

MY report to the convention will consist in a brief summary of the situation pertaining to the future shows as it appears to the exeprienced members of our committee.

First it is perhaps well to explain to the convention what the committee finds are the necessary principal adjuncts to make a successful exhibition that is in keeping with what would be expected of a show that stands for all that the society represents, which means the last word in floriculture.

There is no question in the committee's mind that as far as the prosperity of the country is concerned, and this has to be taken into consideration because of the necessary gate receipts that help so materially to finance the project, conditions like the present are ideal.

There are several cities that are desirous of securing this exhibition, some of which have erected or are erecting buildings suitable for our purpose. Your committee feels that almost any city in the Union with a population of 600,000 or more people is capable of supporting our exhibition.

Shortage of Exhibits.

The perplexing question before our committee is the one pertaining to the exhibits. I have been in touch with the largest growing establishments in the United States and a number of people who have been exhibitors in the past national shows, and on whom we could depend for support, and I find that there is a great shortage of the large-sized plants that go to make up our exhibitions. Then, too, the extreme scarcity the last twelve months of plants of all descriptions, and the prices obtained for this stock, have led the committee to believe that it would be difficult to stage our exhibition until this condition changes.

There are some large growers who told me that the passing of Quarantine No. 37, prohibiting imports of a great number of plants that were grown for the past exhibitions, would also be a factor we must consider in the future. Your committee feels that it will be but a matter of a year or two when we shall be better able to know what effect the quarantine act will have on our exhibitions.

Then, too, another one of our strong supports in the past at the exhibitions has been the support we received from the private gardeners, who, having in charge the large private conservatories in connection with the large estates, were producers of not only many of our novelties, but well grown plants of all kinds. The war caused the closing of a greater portion of these private conservatories as a fuel-saving act. These conservatories are being restocked, but in most instances it will be some time before we can depend upon their exhibits.

It is true that the feature of the last few big exhibitions has not been so much the wonderful specimen plants as it was the wonderful garden effects, not only roses, but of bulbous plants. These, with the rock gardens and the wonderful exhibitions made by the orchid growers, have been some of the important features.

We still can do all of these nicely and perhaps we shall soon learn to adjust ourselves to the absence of plants such as the azaleas, etc., except what are here now or can be grown in this country.

Must Be Supported.

Now, until our committee can safely rely on the growing interest of this country in supporting the exhibition as it has in the past, we cannot in any degree of confidence start the wheels that are necessary for the launching of one of these magnificent undertakings which have meant so much for the benefit of the trade. It would be an ideal time, when we are rocking the country from coast to coast with our wonderful publicity campaign, "Say It with Flowers," to have this exhibition blossom out in connection with it every two years in one of the leading cities of this country. It is too bad to waste this wonderful opportunity that could be gained by this additional publicity.

In making the above statement I am quoting to you the opinions as expressed to me by the various members of the national flower show committee at my solicitation. Therefore it is important that this convention go into discussion so that the committee may be somewhat enlightened from the suggestions that will come from the foremost men who are present.

Your chairman believes that the spring of 1921 would be the ideal time for the staging of the next national flower show.

The report of George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, presented at the Detroit convention August 19.

THE W. R. SMITH MEMORIAL.

[Report of William F. Gude as chairman of the committee on memorial to the late William R. Smith.]

The amount on hand at our last report was $1,894.10. The interest, $40.59, makes the amount $1,934.69, of which we have deemed it best to invest $1,000 in Liberty bonds and $842 in war savings stamps, leaving a balance of $92.69 in the bank. There have been no collections or donations during the last year.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues dull, with little, if any, change in the general demand. With one or two exceptions, there is plenty of stock available, far more than the market can absorb. Gladioli and asters present clearance problems which at times are bothersome. While, perhaps, the quantities arriving are no larger than in previous years, they certainly are no smaller, and the usual difficulty in moving arrivals is experienced. Some of the gladioli are fine, flowers well set on long stalks, exhibition flowers without question. Montbretia is arriving in quantities and sells fairly well at 30 to 50 cents per bunch of one dozen stalks.

Roses are not so plentiful and prices are, consequently, a little stiffer on some varieties. American Beauty particularly is light in supply and specials advanced to 40 cents minimum.

Lilies are not in supply, except in the auratum and rubrum varieties, which are attractive only for funeral work. Lily of the valley is scarce, and brings as high as 12 cents when good. The weather has been conducive to a fairly good flower trade, but something more than weather is wanted to stimulate the existing demand.

Various Notes.

Among the new corporations listed last week were C. Orifice, Inc., 201 East Thirty-first street, general florist dealers, with a capital of $25,000; Guido, Inc., New York, horticulture, $5,000; Geo. M. Plumis Co., fruits, candies and flowers, $25,000.

Alexander Warendorff, 325 Fifth avenue, was a member of the grand jury, special term, and was engaged in deliberations last week on anarchical charges.

The Detroit convention has been an all-absorbing topic of conversation for many days and much speculation existed as to the probable size of the New York party. When the party assembled on Sunday evening at the Hoboken depot of the D., L. & W. a counting of noses showed sixty or more ready for the trip to Detroit. Their names appear, with those who went in advance, in the general list of attendance at the convention. A special train of three Pullmans, a club car, and a baggage car, comfortably accommodated the delegation. P. W. Popp was to have been of the party, but his taxi collided with the Sixth avenue elevated structure and he missed connections, but joined the party in Buffalo. Mr. Snyder, the violet grower of Rhinebeck; the Boston delegation, including Allan Peirce, Wm. Sim, Joe Fuller and L. J. Reuter; the Philadelphia party, including C. H. Grakelow and Harry Betz; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent, of White Marsh, Md., and others swelled the party at Buffalo. In transit to Buffalo a reception was tendered, in the club car, to President Phil Kessler and a short program of speeches was indulged in, enlivened by the serving of light refreshments. After a substantial party breakfast at the depot in Buffalo, the party, now quite large, boarded three special cars for a trip to Niagara Falls and to Lewiston over the Gorge route. On the return, all sat down to lunch at the Imperial hotel in Niagara Falls. Buffalo was reached in ample time for the boat to Detroit, and all got safely aboard. At 9:30, with the regular boat dinner finished, the party took possession of the spacious dining room on the steamer and all florists on board were the guests of the New York Florists' Club. Speeches and songs were the order of the evening, with light refreshments. Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, delivered one of his striking addresses of the after-dinner variety, which was greatly enjoyed. President Phil F. Kessler acted as toastmaster and Chairman A. L. Miller was responsible for all arrangements. The party reached Detroit at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. J. H. P.

CANADIAN CONVENTION CLOSES.

Officers Elected.

The officers of the Canadian Horticultural Association elected August 14 at the convention at Toronto are as follows:

President: Emery B. Hamilton, London.

First vice-president: E. W. Groves, Hamilton.

Second vice-president: C. J. Hay, Brockville.

Secretary-treasurer: Herbert J. Eddy, Westmount.

Directors (three years): William Hall, Montreal; S. Jordan, Peterboro; Silas A. McFadden, Toronto; (2 years), H. J. Moore, Niagara Falls; (one year), Victor McAlpin, Sudbury.

Retailers Organize.

The organization of retail florists was effected under the name of the Canadian Retail Florists' Association. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President: George M. Geraghty, Toronto.

Vice-president: Victor McAlpin, Sudbury.

Secretary: Silas A. McFadden, Toronto.

Treasurer: Mrs. Percy Waters.

The executive committee is composed of Frank McKenna, George Dicks, Frank Smith, J. Hill and H. G. Dillemuth.

It is proposed to affiliate with the Canadian Horticultural Association.

Entertainment.

The picnic to which the visitors were invited by the Retail Florists' Club of Toronto, held at Long Branch, Wednesday afternoon, August 13, was a success that surpassed all the high expectations of the local enthusiasts who planned it. Over 550 were present.

The outing on Lake Ontario Friday, August 15, brought to an end what was unanimously agreed to have been the most successful convention in the twenty-two years of the history of the Canadian Horticultural Association.

The Exhibits.

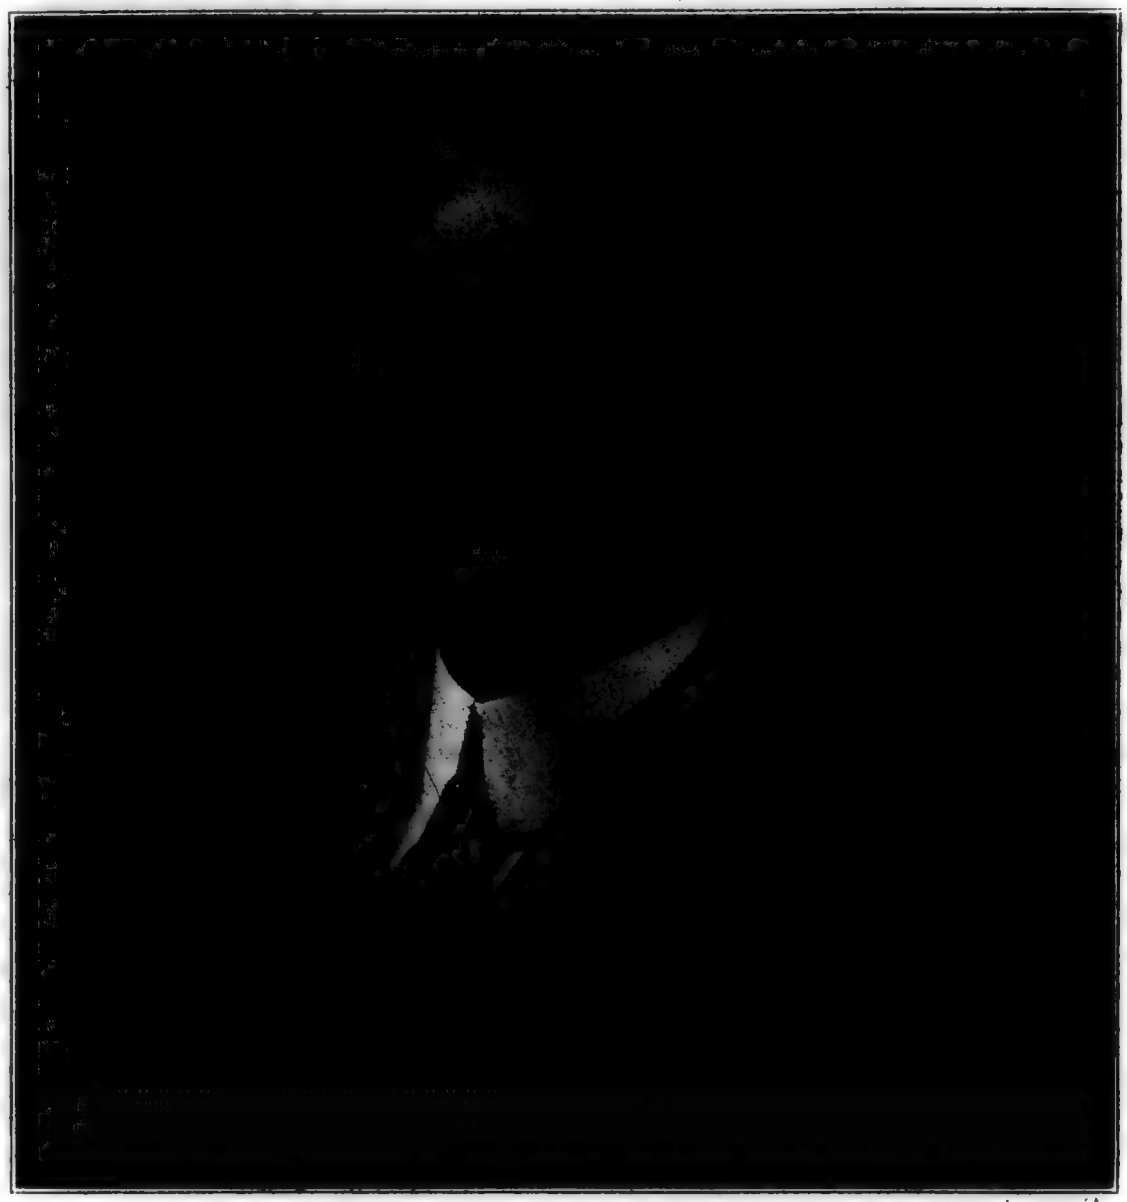
The exhibits, even those somewhat delayed in the customs, were set up in good time to get much attention from the visitors.

Displays of florists' supplies were staged by Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; J. A. Simmers, Toronto, and George B. Hart, Rochester.

Plant exhibits were shown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Roman J. Irwin, New York, who showed the new begonia, Mrs. M. A. Patten; Wm. Jay & Son, Toronto, and Arthur Gilchrist, North Toronto, who showed some excellent gladioli, among them a seedling, primulinus x America, a soft shade of pink and an early bloomer, which promises to be a good variety for forcing.

Pick-Ups.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, were represented by Stephen Green, on his way to the S. A. F. convention.



W. A. Manda left in a hurry with Adam Jennings to purchase a carload of decorative plants for Toronto.

The talk on publicity produced results. Wm. Gammage, of London, started the ball rolling by pledging up to $250.

A. Gilchrist is aiming at varieties of gladioli that will bloom around the stem and be suitable for basket work, and seems to be succeeding in his aim.

W. E. Groves' paper on "Coöperation" was considered the gem of the convention.

The Prince of Wales did not arrive in Toronto in time to attend the convention, but that prince of good fellows, Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., made a flying visit with President Ammann, Philip Breitmeyer and Albert Pochelon, from Detroit.

The Market.

While assortment has been lacking in the cut flower trade here during the last ten or twelve days, there has been a noticeable improvement in the quality of the goods coming from the outside. The demand, generally, has been of a midsummer character; hand-to-mouth, as it were, but to be expected at this season of the year, when a large part of the clientele of the florist is vegetating or recuperating at points "far from the madding crowd." Some rather classy asters have come in from California during the last week and have helped to eke out supplies, but outside of a few parcels of tuberoses and gentians from Texas, the trade has had to rely mainly on outdoor grown stock to fill in gaps. This latter has been mainly in the way of roses—White Killarney, Cochet and Radiance—which have compared with the best coming in from the greenhouses of the middle west. The aster crop here has been practically a failure. Root aphids, coupled with adverse weather conditions, have been the main factors and only here and there have the gardens produced anything approaching desirable trade stock. Sentiment seems to be swinging towards the dahlia and home-grown pompons have met ready sale. The supply, as yet, is narrow.

Field Work.

Weather conditions have been unfavorable of late for any material field work. Labor conditions have also hampered work considerably and many of the nurseries are grassy and unkempt. Heavy thundershowers are of daily occurrence, making it almost impossible to work the beds in anything like a satisfactory manner, and hence overhead expenses are naturally increased. At present $3 per day is in many instances being paid and labor is scarce at that.

Interest has again centered mainly in the chrysanthemum crop. While the plants show good growth, here and there, owing to excessive precipitation, the beds show deterioration. The white ant, one of the most destructive pests the grower has to contend with at this stage of the crop, has done only minor damage thus far, and the same may be said of the lace-winged bug and black aphis. High cost of living will be a material factor in crop returns, as many rely on temporary cloth-covered structures for

Various Notes.

The City Parking Commission is to take measures towards beautifying Lafayette square, which is practically the center point of the city, facing the municipal executive buildings. Formerly the square was dubbed "the Parnassus of Poets and the Mecca of Loafers." From its situation, the square lends itself particularly as the ground plot of a beauty spot, especially when the sentimental side is thrown in as lagniappe.

The plan of a public parkway as a permanent memorial of war achievements has been defeated in favor of a memorial hall or auditorium.

Henry Scheuermann, the popular florist of Baronne street, will operate after September 1 the well-known flower establishment of Mrs. F. Gruaz, Washington avenue and Carondelet street.

Max Scheinuk, the Broadway florist, has broken ground for his new display establishment at the corner of St. Charles avenue and Third street. He expects the new buildings will be completed before the All Saints' day display.

Peter Chopin will shortly move his auxiliary nursery, situated on Broadway, to Fontainebleau avenue. His main establishment still will be "At the Sign of the Fleur de Lis."

Harry Papworth and E. C. Farley are at Detroit to attend the S. A. F. convention. E. F.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Market conditions are much more favorable. Cool weather and rain have helped wonderfully to bring in a larger supply.

Roses are a little more plentiful and the quality has improved. The demand has been good. A limited quantity of carnations has been available, but as yet can hardly be counted. The mainstays of the market continue to be asters and gladioli. Asters have improved, although there is still an inferior grade selling as low as $1 per hundred. There are, however, a larger number of better ones and these range from $2 to $5 per hundred. Gladioli are fair; a few good ones are seen and prices range from $6 to $8 per hundred.

A general line of summer offerings meets fair approval; in fact, almost everything is being utilized. In this latter class are buddleia, tuberoses, snapdragons, calendulas, statice, baby's breath and such garden flowers as zinnias, marigolds, hydrangeas, delphiniums, wool flowers and helianthus.

Business has been good for summer. Funeral work has been an important item. Weddings and social functions have also called into use a good many flowers. With the running of trains again, green goods are back in normal supply.

Various Notes.

Len Elder, A. F. J. Baur and family, and Irwin Bertermann and family, have gone to Detroit to attend the S. A. F. convention. The latter two families motored through.

Wm. Hack, in the Commandary, O. E. Steinkamp, in the Green Squad, and E. E. Temperley, in the Shriners' Patrol, went to Greensburg August 20 to attend the county home-coming of their local soldier boys. They were the guests of the Greensburg Shriners.

Bert Stanley and E. E. Temperley are cutting good asters.

Clarence R. Greene, as chairman of the local Credit Men's Association's picnic committee, staged the largest picnic ever given by them. Mr. Greene received several letters of praise and was highly congratulated upon the success of the affair.

Chris. Schwomeyer is rebuilding his establishment and it is advancing nicely.

Wm. Hamant is building a new greenhouse.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Owing to the railroad conditions, eastern shipments have not put in an appearance for the last ten days, thus severely handicapping the wholesale cut flower market. This applies chiefly to roses, for which the local supply is not large and does not by any means meet the demand. The retail business during the last week has been extremely good and everything in sight has been cut and sold to meet present demands. Local stock is in good condition, with an excellent supply of gladioli arriving daily, among them being Schwaben, Halley, America and many beautiful seedlings. These are selling at fairly good figures. Roses also are in fine condition and among the arrivals are Maryland, Ophelia, Sunburst, Shawyer, Francis Scott Key and Killarney. Insufficient white roses arrive for the demand. Carnations are few and far between, being small and inferior. Good gypsophila reaches us and sells well. Calendulas are good and move fairly well. Only a few asters are on the market; the long drought has caused the meager supply. Sweet peas are arriving a little more freely, but are not of good quality. Excellent and highly colored zinnias are seen and sell well at summer prices. Good blooms of hardy hydrangea are seen and move well. Snapdragons are reaching us, but not in any large supply. The demand is good. Hardy and annual phlox is in fair supply. Good hardy summer chrysanthemums are seen occasionally and move well. There is a fair supply of all kinds of green goods on hand, for which there is a ready market.

Various Notes.

Miss Orwin, head bookkeeper of George B. Hart's force, is away on a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Ingram, of Hart & Vick, Inc., is spending a two weeks' vacation at Conesus, N. Y.

The picnic planned by the Rochester Florists' Association was held at Grand View beach, August 12, and proved to be a great success. It was one of the largest ever held and many florists from nearby towns took the privilege of uniting on this occasion. Sports and bathing were indulged in and were followed by an excellent luncheon.

Horace J. Head was in charge of the exhibit of George B. Hart at the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association held in Toronto, August 11 to 14. He also visited the S. A. F. convention at Detroit.

The store of H. E. Wilson has recently undergone many improvements, which are now complete. An attractive staircase with a mahogany rail leads to the second floor. The office has been changed and is enclosed with attractive woodwork finished in white enamel. A balcony surrounds the workroom in the back of the store, while the upstairs is nicely papered and enameled in blue and white. New electric fixtures make a big improvement. The large window on the second floor makes the salesroom light and is a vast improvement.

William H. Dildine, president of James Vick's Sons, reports an excellent business during the last season. He says that work at the experimental grounds is going along in fine shape. They are planning extensive exhibits at the Victory Exhibition at Exposition park and the New York state fair to be held in Syracuse, N. Y., in the near future.

George Case is spending a two weeks' vacation in Canada. H. J. H.

BOSTON.

The Market.

During the first half of last week business was dull and prices sagged considerably, but commencing August 14 trade improved, due in great measure to so many flowers being ruined outdoors by the torrential rain. Outside of gladioli and asters, there is little coming in and the quality of the latter is not equal to that of a week ago, all open flowers showing traces of the drenching, driving rain. Good asters are worth $4 and $5 per hundred, but a lot of the inferior ones sell cheaply. Gladioli are in heavy supply and prices are rather low, a large proportion of them realizing no more than asters. Roses have shortened considerably and fewer flowers are coming in than at any time this year. Prices have improved and short-stemmed stock easily brings $3 to $4 per hundred. There are small lots of American Beauties arriving and some nice Maryland, Ophelia, Premier and Columbia.

There are small lots of bouvardia and an assortment of annuals such as cosmos, scabiosas, etc. Dahlias are flowering abundantly, but have never proved popular commercially in Boston. There are no lilies obtainable and few orchids. Sales of asparagus are light.

Quarantine Hearing.

There was a quarantine hearing at the State House, Boston, August 15, to consider drastic regulations to prevent the spreading of the corn borer. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, was present and associated with him were Karl F. Kellerman, George B. Sudworth, William R. Walter and R. C. Althouse, from Washington, in addition to officials from New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Officials favored drastic regulations, the enforcement of which meant an embargo on all vegetables, herbaceous perennials, gladioli, dahlias, cereals, etc., but met with exceedingly determined opposition from market growers, nurserymen and others vitally interested. J. K. M. L. Farquhar pointed out the absurdity of placing an embargo on all herbaceous perennials when the pest had only been identified on a half dozen varieties. W. H. Wyman spoke in a similar vein. One prominent market grower stated that there was no sense in placing a ban on shipments of such early crops as rhubarb, spinach, etc., which were marketed before the borer appeared. He stated that $1,500,000 worth of celery is grown on 2,000 acres of land within ten miles of Boston and not 100 borers had been found on celery in all, then only when corn and celery were planted in alternate rows. As borers always attack the stem of tomatoes and not the fruit, what is the sense in placing a ban on the shipment of these vegetables? It was emphasized during the hearing that if weeds were kept down and poultry turned loose among corn fields there would soon be fewer borers. While no decision was rendered at the hearing, the prevalent opinion was that the F. H. B. would leave the matter in the hands of the local authorities, who are fully competent to deal with it.

Various Notes.

A good delegation left Boston August 17 for the Detroit convention. In addition to those going by railroad, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Howard are making the trip in their automobile. The total attendance from Boston and vicinity is approximately twenty.

In the will of the late Arthur F. Estabrook, one of the trustees and past-president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the sum of $50,000 will revert to the society on the death of Mrs. Estabrook. Also, $5,000 is given to the Arnold Arboretum.

I regret to report the death of Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, wife of Professor Sargent, director of the Arnold Arboretum, which occurred August 13. Mrs. Sargent, like her illustrious husband, was a devoted patron of arboriculture and horticulture and assisted him greatly in the various exhaustive works he has written on the trees of North America, making many hundred lifelike drawings of subjects treated. Mrs. Sargent also accompanied her husband on many of his collecting trips, both here and abroad, and was a help and inspiration to him in many ways. A wealth of magnificent flowers at the funeral, August 18, attested the esteem in which she was held.

Harry, second son of William Nicholson, of Framingham, arrived home from France last week, after many hard experiences in the war zone. He was formerly head gardener at the Evanston hospital, Evanston, Ill., but owing to the serious illness of his mother he will stay in the east for some time. Mr. Nicholson, Sr., owing to trouble with his legs, is unable to follow his favorite pastime of golf this season. However, he manages to look after a good-sized garden, which is producing beautiful crops.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, on invitation of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., will hold a field day at the nurseries in Lexington, August 28. All members and friends desiring transportation are asked to be at Harvard Square, Cambridge, at 3 p. m., where automobiles will be on hand to make the trip to historic Lexington. The nurseries contain large collections of gladioli, dahlias, herbaceous plants, trees and shrubs that will be in fine condition late in August.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. report an unusually heavy demand for strawberry plants and advance bulb orders are far ahead of previous years. John K. M. L. Farquhar had not planned to go to Detroit, but C. L. Marlatt having been asked to lecture on Quarantine 37, he has decided to go and will, no doubt, have something to say on the subject.

It is a long time since Boston experienced so severe a northeast rain storm as occurred August 14. Although precipitation was only 1.86 inches, the wind and rain leveled cornfields and gave all outdoor flowers a sad battering. Large blocks of dahlias and gladioli were laid flat and asters got a terrible mauling. The storm caused a sharp advance in the price of flowers on the market.

J. W. Simpson, of Reading, is just finishing planting his carnations. He has pulled out his last tomatoes, which he planted in rows among his carnations, and they netted him a substantial sum. John Baer is his favorite forcing tomato for spring and summer use.

Our local street railway strike caused a great deal of inconvenience a short time ago and, now that the steam railroad strike is petering out, the policemen are on the warpath and there are others to follow. There seems to exist at present a curious distaste for work and an exaggerated demand by labor for its share of all produce. To refrain from necessary work seems a sign of social aberration and it will undoubtedly pass. The crying need of the present is to replace what has been wasted and destroyed in the last five years, but how few realize this! Our local florists are in many cases unable to secure assistants, even at over double pre-war prices, and will welcome the time when the friends of labor adopt a new attitude towards work.

The only carnation noticed in the market August 16 was Morning Glow, from Edward Winkler. This variety seems to beat all others during the hot months. Joseph Margolis, with H. M. Robinson & Co., reports business fine and their July sales broke all records for that month. Henry M. Robinson and family are still at Green Harbor, Mass., and Charles E. Robinson is at Millington, Mass., right in the hardy fern district.

B. A. Snyder was one of those who made the Detroit trip by automobile, taking some friends with him. Business with B. A. Snyder & Co. is away ahead of last August. W. N. C.

DISSEMINATORS' TROUBLES.

We are planning to disseminate Crusade, Pilgrim and Mrs. John Cook, three valuable new roses, this season. We had placed orders for over a million Manetti stocks. As you perhaps know, prices that used to be $6 per thousand have been advancing until recent advices from Europe tell us that we can look for $50 per thousand, and in some cases to an advance in the price to $56 per thousand in Europe for Manetti stocks. This would necessitate a complete change of prices. We have bought a large quantity of Manetti at under that figure, but not enough to take care of our demand in case we send out these roses.

We have been unable to figure cost and establish any price. We are expecting to do a lot of advertising this fall, providing we can get the material, but until the matter of stock is definitely settled we have been withholding our advertising. A. N. Pierson, Inc.

LOWEST prices never bought highest quality.

GOOD morning! Have you bought your coal yet?

ONE way of meeting high costs is to keep down waste.

FUEL economy may be practiced by closing up the cracks and crevices in the glazing.

SELLERS who see the buyers' point of view are the rare individuals who build up businesses that last.

TALK about carrying coals to Newcastle, the San Francisco news letter this week speaks of shipping asters from the coast to Rochester!

THE price of grafted roses is due for a big increase, the supply of Manetti stocks being small enough so that the growers in Europe are asking three or four times last year's prices. Stocks have not yet been successfully grown in America.

THERE are four full pages of Wanted and For Sale advertisements in this issue. This department of The Review is beginning to be a feature of interest comparable with the Classified section and the Pink part. They grow because they are of real use to the trade.

A CALIFORNIA freesia grower says it is expected that the freesia acreage will be light next season, due to increased cost of labor, meaning that the crop will not be as large as usual. The same authority says there is a surplus of ½-inch bulbs this year, although large sizes are cleaned up.

EVERY woman knows that the impulses governing human actions apply to all men—except her husband. Every florist credits every business—except his own—as being regulated by certain fixed rules. These mental exceptions explain the growth of divorce suits and florists' failures.

THERE seems to be no danger that the prices of pot plants will fall this season; the supply has not increased and the demand certainly is as strong as ever. As for cut flowers, they seem likely to bring as much as the quality justifies; the American people are not seeking anything but the best these days.

MEAT EATERS BUY FLOWERS.

Flower buying was once considered an extravagance; it is no longer, or if it is, the American public is so given to extravagance in general at this day that this particular form is overlooked as a milder variety. But the more prosperous people are, the better flower buyers they become. And now the American public has reached the point, according to U. S. Wheat Director Julius H. Barnes, where they shun the economical loaf of bread as their food and consume instead the higher-priced forms of nourishment, such as meat, eggs and butter. The flour consumption of America has fallen from its normal of 235 pounds per capita to 171 pounds during the last year. In other words, the American public has the money and wants to spend it. A meat-eating public should be a flower-eating public.

THE RIBBON MARKET.

One of the leading New York ribbon manufacturers states that the price of raw silk is probably stabilized for some time to come and that the eight-hour day for labor will mean a curtailment of production and a consequent guarantee against overproduction, which would be the only cause for a radical decline in prices. Furthermore, the strikes that are now taking place in many mills are also contributing to the scarcity of ribbons. As the buyers come into the market for the usual holiday supply, this house anticipates a real scramble for almost any kind of merchandise for quick delivery.

The chiffon situation is a little better. European manufacturers are experiencing similar labor troubles and the general adoption of the eight-hour working day in Europe also is tending to the restriction of production.

BARS DOWN TO CANADA.

Plants of Canadian origin, not mere reproductions of stock grown in Europe, can come into the United States under a new regulation (No. 3), supplemental to Quarantine 37. The new rule, which went into effect August 16, is:

"When it is deemed by the Secretary of Agriculture that the importation from countries contiguous to the United States of any class or classes of nursery stock and other plants and seeds the entry of which is not otherwise provided for by these regulations will not be attended by serious risk to the agriculture, horticulture, or floriculture of the United States, permits may be issued, on application, authorizing the entry of such nursery stock and other plants and seeds under such safeguards as may be prescribed in the permits: Provided, That importations under this regulation shall be limited to specific classes of nursery stock and other plants and seeds which can be considered as peculiar to such contiguous countries, and not mere reproductions of imported stock from foreign countries, and which are not available in sufficient quantities in the United States: Provided further, That this shall not apply to nursery stock and other plants and seeds governed by special quarantines and other restrictive orders, other than Quarantine 37, now in force, nor to such as may hereafter be made the subject of special quarantine: Provided further, That in addition to the certificate required by Regulation 7, the invoice covering nursery stock and other plants and seeds offered for entry under this regulation must be accompanied by a certificate of a duly authorized official of the country of origin, stating that the nursery stock and other plants and seeds proposed to be exported to the United States have been produced or grown in the country from which they are proposed to be exported."

MARVELOUS!

A florist who had occasion to move some surplus stock through a classified ad in The Review made this comment last week: "There certainly is no relation between your charges and the returns the advertisers get; the cost of the little liners is insignificant compared with the value of the orders they bring." He was right; The Review's rates are not based on what the traffic will bear, but on what it costs to publish the paper. Nevertheless, it is a satisfaction to know that users of The Review recognize that the service is efficient. Like this, from another advertiser whose expenditure was $1.25:

The pulling power of The Review is indeed marvelous; we have sent back $200 since we were sold out of the stock advertised.—Walnut Hills Floral Co., Harrodsburg, Ky., August 15, 1919.

If you hear a florist complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Last week, starting rather dull, turned out to be one of the best of the summer to date. As the week advanced, demand increased until it reached the point that there was not enough good stock to go around. There were quantities of low grade flowers which could not be sold, but it was only because the quality was not good enough to meet the needs of the buyers. The market's condition was apparent from the fact that the wholesale houses had their buyers out almost continuously, in search of stock good enough for the shipping trade. Anything good that a wholesale house did not need for its own orders was promptly taken up by some competitor. Friday many shipping orders went out only partly filled.

This week things started quiet again. It seems that convention week almost always is dull. Perhaps it is because a large number of the leaders in the market are out of town for the convention, but it may be that it is only because the demand in summer is spasmodic, depending largely on the call for funeral flowers.

Considering flowers grown under glass, the rose is almost the only important item now on the list. There are large receipts of roses, the grade varying widely. There are some long-stemmed, fancy roses, stock that would class up with the best ever seen in summer, but by far the greater part of the receipts are short in stem, small in flower and, especially after hot days, wide open. Between the two extremes there are moderate quantities of other grades. A few roses are being sold as high as $25 per hundred, but only a few. It would not take a large increase in the supply of the extra long stock to overload the market. The bulk of the demand is for medium stems. Columbia, Russell and Premier are the leaders, but

We Offer a Large Cut of Fancy Gladioli

IF you are having any trouble getting all the Gladioli you need, or as good Gladioli as you want, it is because you have not ordered of Amling. Send us your orders and everybody will be pleased—you, your customers, and us. We never have had a better supply. Plenty of fine Schwaben, Pendleton, Myrtle, Chicago White, America and King.

Giganteum Lilies

Another batch of fine Giganteum Lilies is ready this week. They have been selling briskly, but the increased supply enables us to take care of some more customers.

Colored Pond Lilies

Blue, red, yellow, pink, white—an exclusive supply. They are very useful in every flower store.

Columbia, Russell, Premier

Amling's is headquarters for these, but there also is a good supply here of Milady, Ophelia, Sunburst, White Killarney and Cecile Brunner.

Beauties

We offer a fine lot cut from young plants.

Asters

Asters are available in quantity, all colors.

The Greens You Need

It should not be overlooked that Amling's also is headquarters for Greens. Everything. Good. Plenty.

there is a special call for white which enables those who have good, clean white roses to get a little extra money for them. Beauties are increasing in supply and are selling quite well.

Last week the market apparently was between crops on gladioli. The supply was decreasing and the quality was such that a good many flowers went to the dump. The good stock sold well, but a lot of the stuff that came in merely made cartage for the man who drives the garbage wagon. This week the cut from later plantings of bulbs is coming in, with a consequent improvement in the quality of the stock, and it is reported that during the next two or three weeks there will be large supplies of good "glads."

There was a flurry in asters last week, the prices of really good stock taking a jump that disturbed a number of buyers. There were not nearly so many good flowers as were needed, though there were some poor flowers that proved hard to sell. To serve the needs of this market the stock must measure up to certain standards; it is useless to send the low grade stuff here.

Beyond these three items there is not much to say. The growers of specialties are doing well. There still is a demand for cattleyas which permits the one or two growers to name their own prices. It is the same with valley. At the moment the production is practically all in one man's hands. He cannot always supply the demand, which is erratic. Some days no one wants valley and some days everyone wants it. A few giganteum lilies are available and are selling briskly, but the call for them has somewhat abated since the first auratums, albums and rubrums came in.

There is no trouble selling good flowers and everyone is confident as to the approaching season.

convention at Detroit this week, the party composed principally of those affiliated with that organization having made the trip in a train of six motor cars. They left the Wabash avenue headquarters Sunday morning, spent the night at Kalamazoo, 160 miles away, and finished the run of 300 miles on Monday. These were in the party:

In the Moline-Knight driven by Manager Paul Klingsporn was President George C. Weiland, of Evanston; August Jurgens and W. C. Johnson, the latter of Memphis.

In his big Cole Treasurer C. W. McCauley, of Geneva, had Mrs. McCauley and their daughter, and Mrs. Wells.

In the Buick driven by Rudolph Ellsworth, of Downers Grove, were Mrs. Ellsworth and Clarence Ellsworth.

In his Moline-Knight Fred Stielow, of Niles Center, had his brother, Arthur Stielow, their mother, Mrs. F. Stielow, and their sister, Miss Louise Stielow.

In the Moline-Knight of George Ball, of Glen Ellyn, just back from a tour of the east, Mr. Ball had as company his foreman, Herbert Buhr; Joseph Schoos, the Evanston carnation grower, and Fred Schramm, of Arlington Heights.

In W. P. Kyle's fast gray Mercer Mr. and Mrs. Kyle had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schramm, of Crystal Lake, Ill.

The six cars lined up opposite the old Pullman home, on their way out of the city, long enough to make the photographs reproduced on another page of this week's Review.

Various Notes.

One of the first automobile parties starting for the Detroit convention was that which left August 16 in Eric Johnson's big Buick. He had with him A. M. Anderson, also of the Randall forces; Sam Bloom, the Sixty-third street retailer, and W. H. Englehart, of the Idlewild Greenhouses, Memphis. They spent Sunday at Battle Creek, where they were joined by D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., who has been vacationing there.

Three-quarters of a century had rolled over the head of Peter Risch August 19. He was born in 1844. Mr. Risch no longer is active in the affairs of the Weiland-Risch Co., but never loses interest in the business.

E. E. Francis and H. A. Francis have bought out the Attica Floral Co., at Attica, Ind., and have gone there to take up the active conduct of the business.

Leaving Chicago Saturday, a party bound for Detroit spent Sunday at Lakeside, where the Bruns and Henderson families have a cottage. They used the Bruns Packard and in the party were H. N. Bruns, Herman Bruns, A. Henderson, George Wienhoeber and E. C. Amling.

W. A. Hansen and Albert Cole are representing the E. C. Amling Co. at Detroit this week.

The window boxes of pink petunias in the old-rich section just south of Lincoln park are making a splendid showing, weather conditions having been favorable. For the most part they are examples of the work of the E. Wienhoeber Co.

Thus far this year Paul Klingsporn, state vice-president of the S. A. F., has obtained forty-three new life members for the trade's national organization. His latest recruits are O. A. Tonner, G. M. Reburn, Clarence Ellsworth, C. S. Claussen and Roy S. Kroeschell, of Chicago; Roy H. Kemble, of Oskaloosa, Ia., and Julius Dilloff, the ribbon salesman. New annual members are W. A. Hansen and Albert Cole.

The J. F. Kidwell Co., on Michigan avenue, is getting everything done at once. Everybody gets a vacation while the store is in the hands of decorators. The establishment is being brightened up in every nook and corner. Just enough attention is being given to business to take care of the orders that come in over the phone.

A. Lange is on a two weeks' vacation at Mount Clemens, Mich. He was right handy to the Detroit convention. Howard Lange, the son, is in charge of the store during his father's absence.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has added four new men to its force, including two draftsmen, one correspondent and a field man.

Philip Schupp left August 19 for Detroit to attend the convention and also make a visit. He will be away about two weeks.

The J. Bombenger greenhouses at 6431 Woodlawn avenue are being dismantled. It marks the passing of one of the oldest florists' stands on the south side. There were greenhouses there even before Woodlawn was a part of Chicago. If Mr. Bombenger had hung on another couple of months he would again have been making money there.

W. C. Florentine, of the A. L. Randall Co., left August 18 for Benton Harbor, where he will stay a few days.

A. J. Zech left August 17 for the convention.

John Poehlmann left August 18 to attend the convention. The company has a large display there.

The news was received in the market last week, from a concern in San Francisco, that the San Francisco commission florists are already sending daily reports to the growers and are not permitted to reconsign their shipments.

C. L. Washburn and wife left August 18 for Detroit. Mrs. Washburn intends to play in the golf tournament to be held at the Detroit Golf Club.

E. Meuret, of Des Plaines, was not able to go to the convention at Detroit as he had planned. He is still planting carnations.

from here to Detroit for the S. A. F. convention. While in Chicago Mr. Oelschig consulted with greenhouse builders with regard to the plans for new houses the firm has under consideration.

Among last week's visitors was George Rye, who likes to be known as "Some Florist." His home is at Fort Smith, Ark. He was on the way to New Haven, Conn., to attend a convention of Elks, intending to return in time to spend August 21 at the S. A. F. convention.

W. C. Johnson, of Johnson's Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn., was here this week on his way to the S. A. F. convention. He says he is doing the largest summer business on record, principally with home-grown outdoor stock, his purchases in this market in July having amounted to only $58. How insignificant this sum is may be better realized by quoting Mr. Johnson's further remark that he paid $1,500 express charges on flowers from Chicago last season.

B. Juerjens, landscape gardener and florist, of Peoria, Ill., was in town last week for a couple of days.

C. E. Schaefer, who has charge of the florists' department of the Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., spent August 18 here, on his way to the convention.

Richmond, Ind.—Edward A. Neuman, who for the last five years operated with Herman C. Thomas under the name of Neuman & Thomas, has bought Mr. Thomas' interest. The change in ownership went into effect July 1. Mr. Neuman will specialize in roses, particularly Ophelia and Columbia. He contemplates enlarging the range next year.

The Market.

The wholesale market during the last week was not overcrowded with first quality stock, but there was plenty of second quality for the demand. The hot and dry weather has caused a lot of outdoor stock to be killed off and only those growers who have the Skinner system have saved a great deal of their stock, which brings a much better price than stock with badly burned leaves and tops.

There are a good many roses coming in, but all short-stemmed stock. They clean up fairly well. Few carnations are coming in; in fact, so few that it's hardly worth while quoting them. Asters are taking their place and plenty of these are coming in daily, though only few of the fancy sorts. Fine, long-stemmed single tuberose stalks are arriving in large quantities and are selling well. Gladiolus spikes are also in large demand daily and clean up at good prices. Hardy hydrangeas and Golden Glow also have some demand.

The usual good demand for all kinds of greens continued throughout last week and the supply was adequate.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The August meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club proved to be one of the largest attended of the year. The meeting was held in Kirkwood, at the greenhouses of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. The city members made the trip, starting at 1 p. m. from the wholesale district, in automobiles and arrived at the meeting place at 2 p. m. The meeting was held under a tent on the lawn in front of the greenhouses.

When President Hummert called the meeting to order there were sixty members present, in addition to all the officers of the club. After disposing of the usual preliminaries, the chair called for final reports of all committees. Chairman Bourdet, of the publicity committee, reported that the committee is holding monthly meetings and that everything is in good shape to begin advertising next month. He called on Secretary Beneke for a financial report, which was highly satisfactory to the members. The trustees reported on the recent successful picnic given by the club and were given a vote of thanks for the way the affair was managed by them. State Vice-president W. J. Pilcher, of the S. A. F., had charge of the transportation of the St. Louis delegation attending the Detroit convention and reported all the seats in the special car had been spoken for.

This being the annual meeting of the club, the election of officers was in order. It resulted as follows: W. J. Pilcher, who was nominated at the last meeting for president, and W. A. Rowe both declined the nomination and August H. Hummert was reëlected president. For vice-president, A. S. Cerny was elected. For secretary, J. J. Windler, who has held the office for the last three years, declined reëlection, and J. J. Beneke was elected secretary. W. C. Smith was reëlected treasurer. For the three year term trustee there were four candidates, but Oscar Ruff received the most votes, Messrs. Lurie and Rowe holding over.

The chair called on Andre Bourdet, who had just returned from France, having served two years, and the young man responded with an interesting talk.

Prof. H. C. Irish, who had returned from the state fair at Sedalia, gave a talk, including what will be in store next year for floriculture.

When the meeting adjourned the members were taken in hand by W. C. Smith and shown through the big houses, which were found in fine shape, and then were invited to partake of refreshments of all kinds. They were served in the potting shed and greatly enjoyed.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association held a meeting August 11, at Mission Inn Garden, but only six members responded to the call and no business of any importance was transacted. The lack of interest shown by the retailers is still unexplained, but the officers say that another attempt will be made next month and if still no interest is shown the association will have to disband.

The publicity committee omitted its meeting August 12, owing to the fact that half the members were out of town. The next meeting will be held September 9.

Peter Fender, who has been with Vandervoort's floral department, has resigned and accepted a position as salesman for the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

August Vollmer, of the St. Louis Pottery Mfg. Co., says the force has been working overtime of late to catch up with advance orders for flower pots.

The many friends of young Andre Bourdet, son of Jules Bourdet, were pleased to greet the young man when he returned home from France last week.

The Lady Florists' Club will be entertained September 2 by Mrs. Gust W. Grossart at her home in Belleville, Ill.

The Meyer Green Florists' Thread is the leading thread. It is put up full 2 oz. to each and every spool, making 16 oz. actual thread to a pound.

GREENHOUSE-GROWN ASTERS

OF EXCEPTIONALLY FINE QUALITY

The supply of good Asters has increased considerably, and from now on they will be ample until the end of the season. A few weeks ago we had a quantity; now Quality is more in evidence, and the latter is the more desirable. The Best Asters are the indoor-grown stock. You will find them exceptionally fine.

Gladioli

You are obliged to carry some stock during the summer months, and you have less risk of loss in Gladioli than any other flowers you can buy. We have all the standard varieties, especially Augusta, America, Halley, Francis King, Schwaben, Pendleton, etc.

EARLY CLOSING

WE CLOSE EVERY DAY AT 4 P. M.

Rubrum Lilies

They are inexpensive and very desirable for design work. We have them in quantity, both in long and short stems. Pink Lilies make a good showing and on account of their good keeping quality they should be used more freely.

The Market.

The feature of a listless market was the shortening up of the rose crop. There was just enough business to make the decrease in the supply of roses felt, although roses are only a poor third on the list of varieties.

Asters have succeeded gladioli as the leading variety of flower. The Semple's and the astermums are so much better than the early varieties of asters that they placed this sterling summer flower in the van. The fag end of the crop of the early varieties is giving lots of trouble and little return. They have no show against the finer flowers. With the finer varieties past the height of their season, gladioli have dropped back into second place. There are good gladioli in plenty, and there will be good gladioli for weeks to come, but the height of the crop is over.

These are the features of a dull market. Beyond that, it is interesting to note that the price of fancy Premier, 25 cents, is just half that of Beauties, long-stemmed, and that ordinary orchids are scarce at $1 each.

Twelfth street, below Chestnut. Both were plainly clad, evidently workers, and not from the class who can ordinarily indulge in flowers, yet both gazed intently and on the faces of both there was keen appreciation of what they saw. They turned to each other as though moved by a common impulse. "Do you know," one said, "I come two blocks out of my way just to look at this window, even when I am dead tired." "I come even farther," the other replied, "it gives me so much pleasure that I just wish Mr. Battles could know."

(I think he does know.—Phil.)

A Fern.

My friend, John Savage, once told me that he thought the horticultural press was all right provided it did not become old-womanish. When I asked what that meant he laughed a little and said it meant giving experiences. He thought giving too many experiences was a mistake. I have so rarely given experiences that I am going to give one by way of variety:

There is a Boston fern that has stood in the west window of a suburban home in this city for nineteen years. It is perfect in form and has an extraordinary spread. It is now so big that it cannot be potted any larger. Every summer it is moved outside and all the old fronds cut off. When the new fronds begin to appear it is fed with liquid manure until fall. It is grown on the theory that it must reach perfection outside. As it will not improve inside, the best that can be hoped is to keep it in as good condition as it was when brought inside.

162 Flowers Per Plant!

Your expert remarked that Premier will produce nine flowers to Russell's one. Now, here are figures carefully kept by a grower of Russell that show he cut eighteen and a fraction flowers to each plant that he grew last season. Now, nine times eighteen is 162. So if Premier will produce nine times as many flowers as Russell in a season it will produce 162 blooms to a plant.

(The "expert" probably said, or tried to say, two to one, which is what the introducer claimed.—Ed.)

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

"Nothing doing," is the report of the majority of retailers throughout the city and suburban towns, although the wholesale markets seem to be having a fair average of business, considering the midsummer season. However, large quantities of stock are coming in right along and of course prices are bound to suffer. The markets are fairly loaded with gladioli, which run from $1 to $8 per hundred. There are fewer asters than during any previous season in the history of the trade, although the few maturing are good, with a range of $1 to $5 per hundred. This season is conspicuous also on account of the absence of sweet peas. Even the private gardeners are practically without them, owing to the prolonged dry, hot spell early in the season. The later hard rains and torrid sun added to the injury by fairly scalding the few producers.

There are plenty of roses of fairly satisfactory quality selling at $1 to $12. The summer really has been remarkable for the quantity of American Beauties, which are also more satisfactory than usual at this season. They, too, are disposed of at "asked prices," or $1 to $5 per dozen. There are no orchids, but the growers are still cutting fair carnations, which are disposed of at $2 per hundred.

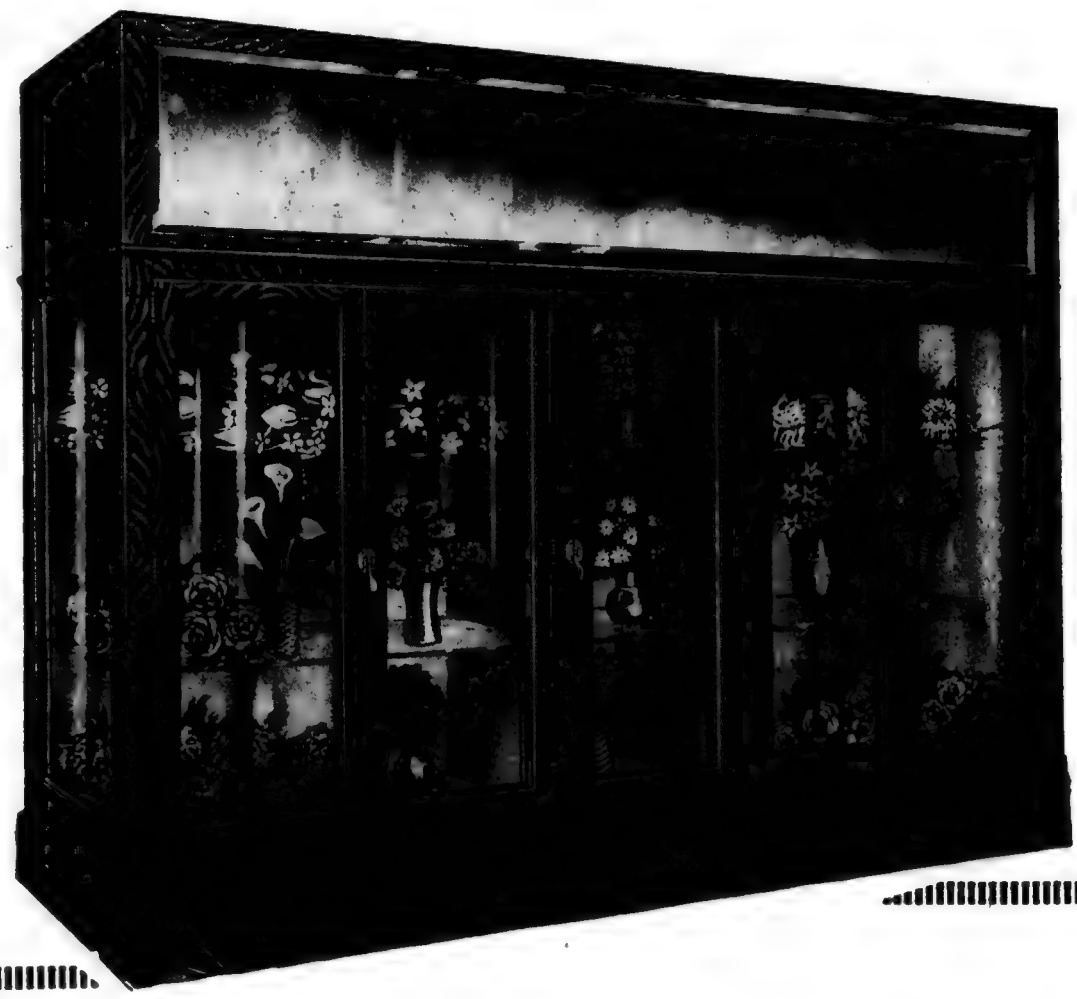
reputation for its importations of rare birds from Australia and other parts of the world, the collection being one of the finest maintained for commercial purposes in the country. Three large and attractive aviaries in one of the conservatories house from 300 to 500 specimens, including from fifty to seventy-five varieties, which are kept under natural conditions as far as possible. Manager Harry Gibson, of the Zieger Co., is probably better versed in bird lore than any distributor in this section of the country. He expects to take an extended motor trip east in September. Miss Minnie Gerbie, of the sales force, is now on a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Smith left August 14 for a two weeks' visit with Mrs. Smith's family, near Buffalo, N. Y.

Edward L. Weaver, the veteran salesman for Randolph & McClements, is on his vacation, the greater part of which is spent at home. Miss Essie Reilly spent her vacation at her home in Braddock, returning to business last week. Miss Clara Hittle and Miss Madeline Farrell, of the office staff, are having vacation, Miss Hittle at her home in the east end and Miss Farrell at Ohiopyle, Pa. William G. Picketts, of the designing force, will spend a part of September in New York city and Atlantic City.



Accompanied by his family, Manager John B. Strayer, of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co., left August 11 for a motor trip to include Cleveland, Detroit and Mackinac. Miss Bertha Beck, of the accounting department, her sister, Miss Lillian Beck, and a friend are at Conneaut lake. Miss Bessie Boyd, the assistant auditor, and her sister, Mrs. Charles M. Kennedy, have gone to New York city, where they will spend the remainder of the month. Miss Margaret L. Burns, manager of the branch shop at the corner of Penn avenue and Stanwix street, left August 9 to spend a few weeks at her home in Fairmount, W. Va. Her assistant, Miss Bessie Hazen, has returned from a two weeks' visit at her home in Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Fuchs, of Carson street, expect to leave shortly for a trip including Cleveland, Toledo and Detroit, arriving in Detroit in time for the convention. Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Riegelmeier and their daughter, Miss Helen Riegelmeier, have returned from a motor trip along the Atlantic coast, stopping en route in New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

William Clarke, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clarke, has matriculated for the Pennsylvania State College and will enter the agricultural department in September with the intention of specializing in floriculture. He and his brother Ben motored from Lake Chautauqua last week, accompanied by their sister, Mrs. Albert E. Erickson, and the latter's two children, who had been spending several weeks at the Clarke's cottage. The boys returned to the lake August 2, accompanied by their father, who will spend the remainder of the month with the family in the east.

Sergeant Charles S. Zimmerman, treasurer of the I. W. Seed Co., is again on the job, having been discharged from the service. He was stationed at Springfield, Mass. Mr. Zimmerman's intention is to take a motor trip east later in the season.

The A. W. Smith Co. received a telegram a few days ago announcing the safe arrival of Sergeant Ralph F. Pinner from overseas. Mr. Pinner, who went immediately to his home in Buffalo, N. Y., expects to come on to Pittsburgh in a week or two.

GLOEKLER FLOWER STORE REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh.

THE essential feature of a refrigerator for cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. The stock keeps to its full limit, and at the same time results in a saving of ice. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proved by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that the flowers almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

A NEW CATALOGUE of FLORISTS' REFRIGERATORS shows flower store interiors in full color. Send for your copy. It's free and it's worth while. Write TODAY.

I. SUESSERMAN,
104 Ridgewood Ave., Newark, N. J.

FOR SALE

The property of the celebrated GREEN FLORAL COMPANY, formerly owned and operated by Col. E. H. R. Green, multimillionaire, son of the late Mrs. Hetty Green.

It consists of 45 acres just outside the limits of Dallas, Texas, the foremost city of the Southwest, having a population of over 150,000 and in the heart of the rich oil fields. The greenhouses are of concrete construction, are built throughout of the best material and are in first-class condition. They comprise 204,161 square feet of glass and are equipped throughout with the most improved system of piping. The boiler room has three large Babcock & Wilcox boilers. Oil is used as fuel and is delivered at the company's switch and pumped through its pipe line into a large storage tank near the boiler room. The company has an unlimited supply of surface and artesian water from its own wells.

A house for foreman, ten-room house for single men, also a house to be used for a boarding place. The place is thoroughly fitted out with teams, tools, etc.

The greenhouses are well stocked with every necessary variety of flowers and plants, the market for which is practically without limit, there being a demand for more stock than can be grown. San Antonio, Galveston, Houston, Waco and Ft. Worth, all large cities, are easily accessible in from one to twelve hours. The greenhouses were originally built by Col. E. H. R. Green, the entire plant costing him about $250,000. It was operated by him until he left Dallas some years ago to take up his residence in New York, at which time he sold his holdings to Mr. Seth Miller, who continued to operate the property until his death a few months ago, and it is now being disposed of to settle his estate.

While the property will under no conditions be sacrificed, it may be had at an attractive figure; terms will be liberal. For information address

K. H. MILLER, Ex., No. 2809 Ross Ave., Dallas, Texas.

FOR SALE

Or lease, the widely known, eminently successful and old established business of the late Frank F. Crump, deceased, Colorado Springs, Colo. Excellent and well equipped plant of 55,000 square feet of modern glass; fully stocked and in first-class running order; convenient 6-room modern residence. This is an exceedingly attractive proposition and will repay the closest investigation; liberal terms to reliable party, but quick action required.

EDGAR CRUMP,
Box 606, Colorado Springs, Colo.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Usual midsummer conditions prevail in this city and vicinity with everything connected with the florists' business practically normal. There is a sufficiency of all kinds of stock to meet demand, which depends largely upon funeral work. Asters and gladioli are the most conspicuous offerings at present, the latter having gained in popularity by immense strides in the last few years. Asters, while showing much improvement, are hardly up to standard, but a run of clear, hot weather will soon eliminate imperfections.

Vacations among the retailers and their clerks, alterations and renovations in the stores, repairs, expansions and rebenching, with plenty of outdoor work among the growers, summarizes the conditions.

Various Notes.

Lawrence Hay was a member of the reception committee at the Welcome Home celebration in East Providence, August 16, for the service men of that town.

Otto Hassert is remodeling, repainting and renovating his range at 403 Plainfield street.

Theodore Peterson, of Hogg Greenhouses, has just purchased a new pleasure automobile.

Robert Collum, representing H. Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, was a business visitor in the city last week.

The Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., 464 Valley street, is increasing its machinery and equipment.

Miss Catherine V. Kelly, bookkeeper for Joseph E. Koppelman, 47 Eddy street, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Hampton Beach, Mass.

Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, was chairman of the local committee in charge of the big annual hand engine muster of the New England States Veteran Firemen's League in that place, August 16.

Bernard Quinn, with R. Higgins, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Joseph Black, who recently took over the store of Smith the Florist, 25 Washington street, is continuing it under the same name. He has completely renovated and repainted the place.

John Lindbloom has taken a position with J. E. Koppelman temporarily, at his greenhouses in East Providence.

Israel Mirsky, of the Boston Flower Market, was in this city last week on a vacation.

Westminster Greenhouse, Inc., 1205 Westminster street, is making a complete rearrangement of its range.

Michael Hassett, formerly of Bristol, died at his home, 10 Codding street, this city August 2. He had been a resident of Bristol for more than fifty years, thirty-five of which he was gardener for William G. Low, at Ferry Hill.

Mrs. Richard Higgins is having the greenhouses on her estate, 217 Academy avenue, repainted, reglazed and generally renovated. W. H. M.

Columbia City, Ind.—Mrs. Jennie Sherwood, who for over a year managed the west side greenhouse, has sold out to L. D. Roebuck, of Fort Wayne.

Penn the Florist,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

While we are sure that praise for the kind of work you are accustomed to doing is not a new thing to you, we, nevertheless, take this occasion to thank you for your efforts in our behalf.

So many of our customers have come to us and remarked the elegance of style, delivery, etc., that their orders to Boston and vicinity had received and invariably we have found that "Penn the Florist" had taken care of the order. Hence, we feel happy in desiring to let you know that we thoroughly appreciate this and want to do the same for you.

Very truly yours, good start and I do hope the other two branches of our trade will get busy at once along the same lines.

More Branch Organizations.

There need be no fear of so many branch organizations that it might tend to lessen the interest in this, the parent society, for rather the opposite has already been proved. Never since our society was organized have we had so many special interests in various branches of our trade organized, and yet the parent society is growing in leaps and bounds. This society is and always will be the medium through which all others can meet on mutual ground.

One of the most important reasons for closer coöperation of our trade branches, which I forgot to mention above, is that of labor. We all are no doubt beginning to realize that the matter of labor is to be an important one in the near future. We should have standard working hours. It is not fair for one grower, for instance, who has his help on the 8-hour day schedule, to have to compete with others working men ten and twelve hours a day. Let us seriously consider this humane side of our profession.

In the last twenty-five years greenhouse labor was the most underpaid and overworked in this country. Had it not been for the love for the kind of work and the lack of competition in the field of labor, we could not have held men with the qualifications required to be good growers or designers at wages and hours maintained in the average greenhouse establishments. Let us not wait until we are forced by organized labor and public sentiment to solve this problem. Let us do it now.

Growers, wholesalers and retailers, let us put our men and ourselves, also, if you please, on the standard American 8-hour day schedule and let us in reverence to God and for the love of man close our shops Sunday. Do not say it can't be done, for many instances can be cited where it is now being done and successfully, too. I know of establishments that even have adopted the program of five and a half days a week, giving their help Saturday afternoon off in addition to the 8-hour day and Sunday closing.

undertake to do in this fair land of ours, just so long as we do not trespass upon the rights of others. That is the definition of our free country and when all who class themselves as Americans once get that straight we will need less police protection and the country will be even more a "Land of the Free and Home of the Brave." Oh, let us put humanity first in America and America first in the world!

Proposed Amendment.

A word on the proposed amendment to our constitution with reference to representatives on the executive board from kindred organizations. You will note that we have classified the various states. This is done to induce representation and coöperation from the small states as well as from the large ones. It may be said that the executive board would get too large and unwieldy. I say it may be said; however, there is little room for such objection. Why, just think what a wonderful organization this would be if we had each one of our forty-eight states represented in our executive body, in addition to the duly elected members and the other affiliating organization members! We may have as many as sixty or seventy-five. That may be beyond our fondest dreams, but at least let us try for it.

You know behind every vision there must be pep. The best gunner in the world would fail if he did nothing but aim. It takes powder, bullets and action. So while I am aiming for one of the most representative executive boards of any national body, you furnish the ammunition and let us pass that Recommendations.

In placing before you a few suggestions for your consideration, I think the first and foremost is that the annual and life membership dues both should be substantially increased. This has been recommended by some of my predecessors. We have an amendment before this meeting to increase the annual dues from $3 to $5 and the life membership from $25 to $50 and I hope this amendment will be adopted by a substantial majority.

I also recommend that this body approve the other amendments offered. The executive board, in their annual meeting, carefully considered these and unanimously agreed to submit them for your consideration. I am quite sure all the directors heartily approve each of them.

I also suggest that we should just as soon as possible put on another national flower show, and with our publicity campaign now in full swing this show would be a great asset to the work.

May I not plead closer coöperation for all members with the society in using the dealers' helps and tying up locally with this great publicity campaign? Take an active part in all organization work. Assist the committees in carrying on their work by answering all correspondence promptly. Let us be considerate of the other fellow who renders services unselfishly. Remember, everyone who serves on a committee and serves well makes a sacrifice. It's what you put into life that makes it worth while; the more you can do for others the happier your lot will be, for "it is indeed more cheerful to give than to receive." No one who has ever practiced this precept will deny it.

tary Young is indeed a busy man and the plan to have him devote his entire time to this work has proved one of the best yet undertaken by the society. The publishing of our monthly journal, the work for the promotion bureau, the handling of the dealers' helps, in addition to the vast amount of correspondence, involves much time and hard work. Yet our worthy secretary has found some time in the last two years to devote to field work in the interest of the society and the publicity fund.

We hope under a new plan the publicity committee has now adopted, and of which you will hear in their report, our secretary can devote his entire time to office work.

Our membership is now just about 3,000, and at the rate we have increased this year, which was over 400 annual and 200 life members, it does seem we are now on the road of progress. No doubt the trade at large is waking up to the importance of the S. A. F. as an organization and is beginning to realize what it really means to be a member of this great society. This also proves that the work of the various committees, such as the legislative, publicity and others, has not been in vain.

Reward always comes to those who work and wait. So with this incentive, let us begin anew to prove the worthiness of our great cause. Remember, we have just made a good start in publicity and before we adjourn from this meeting we shall have the great pleasure of listening to such men as Major O'Keefe and Payne Jennings, besides the committee chairmen, Henry Penn and George Asmus. Don't miss this, fellow members. We have set aside the whole afternoon of Wednesday for the discussion of this great work.

This society is not only growing in membership, but also in ideals and thought. We need the considerate advice of all the members present and we want you to enter freely into all discussions. Just and fair criticism stands for progress. Let us have it here and now. Don't go away a knocker, but be a booster. There is an old saying that a horse never pulls while he is kicking, so don't be like a kicking horse. Get hitched up and pull. This S. A. F. wagon is loaded full of good ideas and we have many fine and willing workers to pull it along the road of success and accomplishment. Let's keep it moving.

tence unheard-of, because fewer flowers will be sent to the dead and more to the living—I want to express my sincere gratitude, and I am sure I voice the kindest appreciation of the other officers and every layman of this society, by giving our heartiest thanks to the men who so faithfully and untiringly have served on committees under the leadership of such knights of service as W. F. Gude, Henry Penn, George Asmus, Benjamin Hammond and a host of others too numerous to mention. Gentlemen, may your reward be such as we this day feel has come to the great pioneers who nursed this organization from its infancy and trained it to full-grown childhood, whence it comes to us, with the admonition for righteousness and fair dealing.

We indeed owe a debt of gratitude to the trade press for the many kind favors and the liberal amount of space devoted to our cause, without any compensation. So let us not forget them with our paid advertisements and our patronage in general.

To the trade exhibitors at our annual meetings we are in a large measure indebted for meeting the financial expense of the convention. Let us in turn remember them with our liberal patronage when in need of anything in their line and with kindly consideration receive their traveling representatives when they call upon us at our various establishments.

We are here in the metropolis of the great state of Michigan. We love to think of Detroit because of the wonderful progress she has made in the last decade. But we even more love to think of our great, big-hearted brethren here, headed by such leading lights in our profession as Philip Breitmeyer, Albert Pochelon, E. A. Fetters, J. F. Sullivan and many others. Why should we not come and thankfully partake of their hospitality? Yes, we are indeed glad to meet in Detroit and thank you for having invited us.

To the paid servants of this society, under the leadership of our amiable secretary, Mr. Young, and his efficient staff great society, and what a boon it was! From that day to this, with every added year, the morale of our annual meetings has improved.

The presence of the women in our American public life is being manifested more and more and is, I think, the one great factor that helps to put this nation to the front, especially in the things that make life worth while. We greet you, ladies, and may you always in your companionship with men keep them in the straight and narrow paths.

In closing let me quote from an unknown poet "The Garden of Life":

SANDS THE FLORIST

Beautiful thoughts make beautiful lives,
For every word and deed
Lies in the thought that prompted it,
As the flower lies in the seed.

Back of each action lay the thought
We nourished until it grew
Into a work, or into a deed,
That marked our life work through.

Gracious words and kindly ways,
Deeds that are high and true;
Slanderous words and hasty words
And deeds we bitterly rue.

The garden of life, it beareth well;
It will repay our care,
But the blossom must always and ever be Like the seed we're planting there.

The Little Wonder Plant Irrigator

Absolutely Without Equal Anywhere

A wonderful little invention, that is a real necessity, and will soon pay for itself in time and labor saved.

Keeps plants watered just right. Keeps them fresh and healthy the year around, by absorbing the exact amount of water required.

Simple

Efficient

Self Watering

Waters the growing plants from the bottom, making longer roots and better plants.

No surface watering necessary. No more dripping water. Nothing to wear out. Lasts indefinitely.

Price $2.50 per dozen. Price $0.35 each. Price $19.00 per hundred

TORONTO.

The craft were all busy with funeral work last week during the convention. Especially noteworthy was a floral basket measuring about 4x4 feet arranged by Dunlop's artist, Edward Gate, and costing $75. H. E. Dillemuth also made up some fine work.

C. Tidy had a convention week window which was tastefully arranged and greatly admired.

At Miller & Sons' the tables were decorated with Gladiolus Schwaben, which was grown well and made a grand showing.

Thomas Manton, of Eglinton, Ont., has an order for 1,500 yards of cedar roping and to fill 400 window boxes for a leading department store. J. J. H.

The Market.

So far, this month has been a surprise in the amount of business done, being ahead of July for a corresponding number of days. If it keeps up at this rate, August will stand out different from other years. The long drought was broken August 15, when a heavy downpour of rain continued for several hours all over Kansas City and vicinity. A general rain from Great Bend, Kan., west to the Colorado line and local rains in other parts of the state have been reported. Growers are not the only ones who will be benefited by the rain. All through this section the ground has been so dry that farmers could not plow. Some seed has already been put in and other crops will be sown immediately.

Stock is getting a little better now and will show improvement right along. Home-grown asters are here, but are rather small on account of the heat. They are $2 and $3 per hundred. Gladioli are $8 and $10 per hundred and Russells, exceedingly good, are from $6 to $10 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Noll visited the state fair at Sedalia, Mo., several days last week.

The South Side Floral Co. has been bringing in some unusually good gladioli. All through the hot spell T. J. Noll worked all day and a good part of each night to keep his plants from drying up and his efforts have been rewarded with a fine crop of blooms when most needed. Mr. Noll also has some good asters. He says that prospects were never better for fall flowers than at this time. He has a fine crop of carnations and mums now on the way and expects to show some choice specimens when they are matured.

P. A. Manson, of the Pinehurst Floral Co., is going to Detroit. He will make the trip by motor.

J. E. Morichard, of S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

The Market.

Production is just about equal to the demand. With conservative use of stock the retailers are able to sell at a good margin of profit, undoubtedly better than they have been able to do for some months. The growers are also reaping a good revenue from their crops, their stock wholesaling from fifty to 100 per cent over the prices of last year. The failure of the aster crop has had much to do in keeping up prices. The crop is less than fifty per cent, but the cut sells for fifty to seventy-five per cent over last year's prices.

Gladioli are the ruling flowers. The cut during the week has been of good variety and quality, most of them selling at $4 and $5 per hundred, while the same grades of stock sold a year ago for as low as $1 per hundred.

Roses are plentiful, most of them showing improvement in the size of flower. Locally grown white Killarney is all that could be expected. American Beauties are also fine.

Various Notes.

F. L. Finch and wife, of 74 Brayton street, have closed shop for a week in order to enjoy a few days' vacation at Binghamton, N. Y.

R. C. Avery, of Ridge road, is angling at Canisius lake. Mr. Avery's favorite sport is snagging bass.

Galley Bros., of 161 Genesee street, are at the front with a unique Dutch scene in their window.

The Market.

The visit of the fleet to local waters has been responsible for some few decorations, but not a great many, and funeral work is the mainstay of the business. The weather has been warm and has resulted in some injury to asters, which are not quite so good as last reported. Otherwise, there is little to add to recent market notes.

Various Notes.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, San Francisco, is on a visit to the city, with Mrs. Podesta. He has been making the rounds of the trade and purchasing palms for store decoration from the Wilcox nursery.

Another San Francisco visitor is Tony Fregoni, the Ferry Florist, who, with his son, Fred, as chauffeur, motored down from King City. Mr. Fregoni likes Los Angeles so well that he figures on buying a home here and is going to extend his present visit considerably.

Theodore Payne, of Payne's Seed Store, and Ralph D. Cornell, of Pomona College, Harvard University, are sending out an announcement that they are entering the landscape field, with offices in the J. W. Hellman building, in Los Angeles. Mr. Payne's long experience in the wild flower and native shrub field will doubtless help out a good deal in this new venture.

Miss Hosp, of Riverside, her mother and sister, were visiting the city last week.

Fred Westrom, of Wright's Flower Shop, has returned from his month's vacation in the mountains and lake regions and reports the finest kind of a time, with practically no trouble anywhere. He and Mrs. Westrom visited Lake Tahoe and all the points of interest of the northern inland route, returning by the coast route and finishing up by seeing the fleet and taking a turn at surf fishing, at which Mr. Westrom is an expert. He looks tanned and in excellent health and has evidently taken the kind of vacation that will fit him for the strenuous season ahead.

O. C. Saake is back on the job after his northern trip.

Hal Kruckeberg, who has for some time been on the staff of Howard & Smith, has opened a nursery and flower shop at 5843 Santa Monica boulevard, Hollywood. He will specialize in landscape work. Mr. Kruckeberg, it will be recalled, was formerly secretary of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society and did good work for this now defunct organization in pre-war days. He has a host of friends and should do well.

The sympathy of his friends in the trade—and he has many—is with S. Shima in the death of his wife following an operation in a hospital at Pasadena. Mr. Shima took his wife to Phoenix some time ago with a view to her regaining her health, but no improvement resulted. He was formerly in business as a wholesaler in this city and more recently was connected with S. Murata & Co.

Walter Armacost is away on his annual mountain and fishing trip and from all accounts is having a fine time with the golden trout. He believes in getting away from the beaten track of most anglers and into the regions where the automobile is replaced by the gentle burro.

B. E. Gillis, president of the Park Floral Co., Denver, has been in town several days and is making side trips from here.

E. B. Washburn is living in Santa Barbara for the summer, intending to return to Pasadena for the winter.

Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., is spending his vacation at Santa Barbara, Messrs. Borden and Raymond holding down the stand in the meantime.

H. Reeve Darling is away on grand jury this week. J. Gordon has returned from his vacation at Big Bear and Catalina.

Albert Goldenson reports several good wedding decorations. H. R. Richards.

WHERE SHALL I TRADE NEXT YEAR?

With ARMACOST & CO., of course!

Easy to answer that if you have visited our plant and have become acquainted with us. If you haven't we will try to tell you in this space some of the reasons that have caused Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, to come to be recognized as the best and most dependable wholesale house on the Pacific Coast.

Reason No. 6

Mr. Armacost has gone off to the mountains, trout fishing, this week. Besides getting plenty of trout, a good appetite and a fine sunburn, he always brings back a fresh determination to make the firm of Walter Armacost & Co. stand for the very best in the Florists' business; to grow the best flowers and plants that can be grown; to handle only the best in Florists' Supplies; to improve the service whenever possible; to go to any limit in quantity buying in order to save money to our customers.

By the way! We are expecting a carload of Dr. Dux's Superiora Brand Magnolia Leaves in every day now. Wait until you get the price. No question then of where to buy Magnolia Leaves.

the Horticultural Trade-Journal: "Fred H. Howard, of the firm of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, California, U. S. A., was a visitor to our London office July 28. Mr. Howard has been in Europe for a few weeks, having been elected as a juror at the Bagatelle rose trials. During a brief stay in England he has managed to see a large number of the best establishments, especially those devoted to roses and to popular and serviceable hardy annuals. Mr. Howard holds a high opinion of the British standard of horticulture and is ready to admit that our plant breeders produce many things America is glad to buy. There are nevertheless some things the United States growers can supply us with which should be welcomed either for market or private trade, and Mr. Howard is intending to keep in touch with us, which we trust he will do to the mutual benefit of both his and our circle of horticulturists."

The Market.

Reports from the local market showed business rather quiet toward the first part of last week, although shipping has commenced in considerable volume and retailers state that trade is increasing slightly after a period of the usual vacation time slackness. A number of weddings are on the calendar for the latter part of August and September and these, together with the beginning of the social affairs of early fall and winter, are expected to provide plenty of decorative work.

Asters were plentiful and of unusually good quality last week. The price has dropped to $1.50 per bunch for the best quality, each bunch containing ten dozen. Every establishment doing a shipping business is working constantly filling out-of-town orders, many firms supplying retailers as far east as Rochester, N. Y., and Pittsburgh, Pa. Chrysanthemums, too, are on the shipping list now and the blooms are coming into the local market in excellent shape, although none of the mammoth varieties are ready for cutting as yet. The leading variety at present is Golden Glow, with Early Frost a close second.

Roses are in fine condition and bringing high prices. Wholesalers are asking $1.75 per dozen for the best Russells, while Columbias, best quality, are bringing a similar price. Ophelias are about the same as last week.

The carnation stock has improved and snapdragons, amaryllis, gladioli and other outdoor blooms are plentiful and good. Scarcity of orchids and gardenias continues, with no indication of relief until about September 1.

Dahlia Exhibition.

Of interest to dahlia growers and flower lovers in general was the complimentary dahlia exhibition of the California State Floral Society, which was held in this city August 8. The artistic manner of the arrangement of the exhibition was especially noted. Three huge tables were filled with the efforts of both amateur and professional growers and the shades ranged from the soft pastel tints to intense royal reds. Rustic baskets held many of the finest blooms and tall sheaves of variegated corn enhanced the whole display. The single blossom which attracted the most attention was a seedling measuring fourteen inches across, a creation of J. G. Winten, president of the society. Mr. Winten states that an offer of $250 for a single tuber has been refused. A basket of new English singles, raised by Miss Aimee Hodgens, was the subject of favorable comment and other notable blooms were a collection of pompon dahlias exhibited by Arthur Twitchett, a display of the famous Dr. Tevis, a dahlia of superb oriental coloring, grown by Frank Pelicano, and a complete general collection by Mrs. P. A. Sachau. Herman Plath and J. W. Bagge awarded the prizes, consisting of Rookwood vases. The following is a list of the winners: First award for general professional display went to Miss Aimee Hodgens; P. T. O'Brien received a similar trophy for the best general amateur display; seconds were awarded Arthur Twitchett and Mrs. T. A. Sachau; J. G. Winten received first prize for the best single dahlia on exhibition and special awards were given to Frank Burns, Misses Edna Spence and Aimee Hodgens.

Various Notes.

The fourth annual dahlia show of the Park-Presidio Improvement Association is to be held August 23 and 24. Prizes will be distributed to owners of the best specimens of flowers, with competition limited to amateurs.

The flower store at 1203 Sutter street, recently purchased from Mr. Shibeley by the Nelligan Sisters, who are conducting the business under that title, presents a metamorphosed appearance to the passer-by. The shop is in an excellent location on a busy transfer corner and the exterior has been painted in pale gray. The interior has been refinished in a similar tone, with the floor space pleasingly cleared in order that the blooms may be displayed to the best advantage. A large mirror is arranged on one side, giving an appearance of spaciousness and repeating the flower display in a delightful manner. The floor is covered with light, tile-patterned linoleum and the furnishings, including desks and chairs, are of painted wicker upholstered in refreshing cretonne. Luke J. Uzick, formerly employed by the Baldwin Flower Shop, is in charge of the buying for the new establishment.

A wedding of importance this week was held at the Fairmont hotel and decorated by A. O. Stein. The scene of the ceremony was the dignified Empire room, the color scheme being carried out in lavender and pink. At either side of a white altar were arranged tall columns of hydrangeas and gladioli of lavender hues, accented here and there with delicate pink blossoms. The single large table was decorated with lavender flowers arranged en masse and tied with pink and lavender tulle. The delicate beauty of the whole scheme was heightened by the appropriate lighting, entirely of candles. The bride's bouquet was of cyclamens and gardenias, while the bridesmaids carried bracelet bouquets of Columbia roses and carnations. Another wedding scheduled for the latter part of the week in St. Luke's will be decorated by this shop also. Both church and home will be decorated, as a reception is to be held after the wedding ceremony.

A. O. Stein is back from a most enjoyable vacation and N. Marcus, one of the decorators, left last week for southern California to spend about a month at Catalina island and other points of interest.

An attractive Satsuma ware display is arranged in the windows of the Corlis shop in Sutter street, which Mrs. H. Corlis states is proving its popularity by a constantly growing demand for the bits of hand-decorated china. A recent contract carried out by this shop was a dinner at Hillsborough at which a profusion of asters and Ophelia roses was used.

SANTA BARBARA.

The Market.

The local shortage of asters has caused a great deal of inconvenience to the trade and local gardeners, but it takes more than this to depress the spirits of the Santa Barbara brethren or to mar the beauty of this lovely section. Some of the lawns and shrubbery are dried up a little and business in the nursery end is checked, owing to the restrictions placed on the use of water. However, permits to use water have been issued to the nurserymen and more relief is in sight. The flower business has been exceptionally good and the visit of the fleet this week will probably boost the business still more. Although there is considerable local supply, retailers still draw on Los Angeles and San Francisco for the major part of their supplies, as there are no large greenhouse establishments to take care of the demand.

Various Notes.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, always wears a smile, especially a welcoming one to visitors. This time the smile was exceptionally apparent, the reason being that he had just won a sedan automobile in a raffle on a dollar ticket. Congratulations are in order. Mr. Gleave has worked up a splendid business in the few years he has been here and his store is always attractive.

Mrs. Helmer reports excellent business at her store, on Haley street. She has been growing some excellent gardenias, which find a ready market locally.

Among the visitors to Santa Barbara last week were Dr. Parker, of Santa Cruz; H. A. Siebrecht, Jr., and J. Groenerweggen, of Pasadena, and Theodore Payne, of Los Angeles. Mr. Payne has charge of the landscape work on one of the large private estates at Montecito.

Among the improvements at the beautiful Cowles place, at Eucalyptus Hill, where William Donald holds sway, is a wild garden. A more delightful setting for the purpose could hardly be imagined and Mr. Donald is wisely leaving the ground conformation exactly as nature has made it, simply removing a lot of surplus rock, which he has used in making roads and drives.

A. Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, is growing excellent asters in spite of the prolonged scarcity of water.

The Kentia Nurseries are always attractive and the Verhelle brothers are always on the job. At the city place everything in the way of young stock is in perfect shape and plenty of business is going on. Lack of time prevented a visit to the nurseries, but G. Verhelle says that the kentias never looked better and big eastern shipments are being made.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business was considered a little quiet the last two weeks and good stock was somewhat scarce, but fine asters are now arriving in all colors and good gladioli in all colors make up the principal feature of the market at the present time.

There is a large quantity of other outdoor flowers yet to be had, such as larkspur, zinnias, Golden Glow, scabiosa, and many others too numerous to mention. There are no potted plants to be had just now. Ferns are scarce and there appears to be a good demand for them.

Various Notes.

The growers' committee of the Portland Floral Society met last week and reports an interesting meeting. The ambition of the committee is to get the growers together and standardize stock and prices and possibly select a convenient storage room where the different growers can bring in their goods and dispose of them to the florists without the necessity of peddling around from store to store. This, they argue, would save much time and would also give the retailers a better selection to choose from.

Bert Clarke, with the exception of a lame wrist, has recovered from his automobile accident, which occurred about two weeks ago.

W. H. Beeston, one of the pioneer florists of Portland, after an absence of about twenty-five years in Tacoma and points in British Columbia, is back trying to find Portland where it used to be, but he says it's of no use—he feels like a cat in a strange garret. Everything has changed so much that he can hardly find any of the old landmarks.

Wm. Fernberger is taking a vacation of two weeks or more and is spending the time in making some alterations and improvements to his residence.

James Forbes has been on the sick list for a few days, but is back on the job trying to look pleasant.

W. S. Duncan, the Albany, Ore., florist, was in town last week.

Clifford R. Wagenet, of the Oakland Flower Shop, wholesale florists, visited the trade last week. He reports stock scarce at present in Oakland, Cal., and says that Portland stock is much more plentiful and of better quality.

Max Smith's store has undergone some extensive alterations and now only lacks the finishing touches to be complete. It will be a decided improvement and one of the finest flower shops in the northwest.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ALBERT HOPKINS SMITH, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., was 45 years of age August 16.

UNDER present conditions there doesn't seem to be much in 5-cent packets for anybody, planter, retailer or seedsman.

THE pessimistic crop reports from California are tinged with optimism, possibly because of the belief that a small crop will restore prices.

NO ROMANS THIS YEAR.

George Tegelaar, of Drevon-Tegelaar & Co., Ollioules, Var, France, who was reported last week as having returned from France, states that while he was there the French inspector of the Department of Agriculture refused to issue permit of inspection on Roman hyacinths. He says he now is in receipt of a cable from his office abroad stating definitely that no certificate of inspection will be issued on this variety. Consequently, no Roman hyacinths can be exported to this country. The reason is not stated.

CANNERS' PUBLICITY PLAN.

The National Canners' Association has issued a booklet explaining the method and rules under which it is planned to have the 1919 pack of corn, beans and peas officially inspected and certified under the association's publicity plan, and stating that at least 30,000,000 cases of this year's pack will be processed under the official inspection system.

It is expected to use the proceeds of the sale of inspection certificate stamps (at 3½ cents per case) for carrying on the work and to follow up inspection with an intensive plan of advertising which, in 1920, will feature the certificate of inspection issued by the National Canners' Association. There will be a general campaign of advertising in 1919, in the benefits of which the industry as a whole will share.

PASSING THE BUCK.

Beyond question there is demand for more Japanese lilies than the 1919 crop will produce, which accounts for the higher prices, but who started the ball rolling is another question. American importers say they had to bid up to the Japs to prevent the bulbs all going to England, where the price of the flowers has been higher than here, but the British tell another story. Here it is, from the Horticultural Trade-Journal:

"I have it on the best authority that we stand a poor chance of getting more than a mere fraction of the Japanese liliums which the government were willing to admit to the country. The Japanese growers were, as we all know, affected by the war, and many acres of liliums were plowed in. Now that stocks are far below normal, there has arisen an unexpectedly heavy demand from America. The big merchants have sent representatives to Japan to buy up whole stocks. High prices are not deterrent to Uncle Sam, and money is forthcoming in advance, even before lifting

GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden Yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

Each Color Separate or Mixed

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seeds carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

the bulbs. The consequence is there is no chance for the British buyer who seeks to make his deals by correspondence.

"Mr. Dimmock, the British agent for the Yokohama Nursery Co., who is in a position to know, confirms these views, and explains to me that the American merchants secured a strong pull over us by the smart action of the American Bulb Co., which placed credit early in the year to the extent of $50,000 to insure its supplies. We of course were handicapped by the uncertainty of the situation early in the year, but another season it should be possible for our trade associations with the help of Mr. Dimmock and others to make some such arrangements as our American friends have done."

At any rate, it looks as though America must be getting its share of the visible supply.

THE GOVERNMENT SEED ORDER.

The Bureau of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, last week sent out the following official list of the successful bidders for the government seed order for next year's congressional distribution:

Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., Los Angeles, Cal., lettuce, peas.
A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., peas.
F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C., carrot, corn.
J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., cucumber, radish.
John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., alyssum, aster, calendula, candytuft, tall morning glory, chrysanthemum.
W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, Ill., peas, parsley, tall nasturtium.
M. Cushman & Co., Rochester, N. Y., corn, lettuce, peas.
California Seed Growers' Ass'n, San Jose, Cal., lettuce.
Ford Seed Co., Ravenna, O., lettuce.
Fosgate & Lion, Mountain View, Cal., lettuce.
Holmes-Letherman Seed Co., Canton, O., cucumber, lettuce.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

KNOWLEDGE of the actual cost of producing stock is rarer than it should be in the nursery trade. Do you know yours?

THE officers of the Elm City Nursery Co., of New Haven, Conn., are: President, Ernest F. Coe; treasurer and general manager, W. W. McCartney; secretary and sales manager, Walter E. Campbell; nursery manager, W. H. Eagan.

OUTLOOK FOR ORNAMENTALS.

In place of the importations now cut off by Quarantine No. 37, nurserymen will be called upon to supply either native stock which they already produce or stock which they may be able to propagate of the varieties desired. In the course of a few years it may be expected that ornamentals previously imported will be propagated and grown by American nurserymen to some extent. How general or how successful will be the results, it is too early to predict. The better stocks require a longer time before they are ready to be put on the market. In the meantime there will be an increasing demand, as the profits of wartime industrial activity and the savings resulting from war economy are spent for better homes and more beautiful home grounds. This fall will probably witness a shortage of stock to fill orders even at high prices. No one, despite the activities of the government in forcing down food costs, anticipates general price lowering. Predictions are general the other way. When all others are getting plenty for their wares, the growers of ornamental stock seem likely to fare well also.

PRICES OF FRENCH STOCKS.

The frugal Frenchmen are getting even, giving a lesson in profiteering. Stocks for export are one of the vehicles. Rose stocks which, before the war, they were ready to sell at about $6 per thousand, they ask $50 for now. Fruit stocks are as bad.

American growers of rose plants for the forcing trade usually prefer English Manetti, but the supply never has equaled the demand, England as well as America drawing on France for large quantities of stocks on which to graft roses. A British grower is advised that the French exporters propose to fix the prices for Rosa canina, first choice, at about $48 per thousand, for autumn delivery, cash to be prepaid on price being fixed. The only reason advanced for this enormous rise is that owing to the drought, growers will only be able to supply eighty per cent of the quantities booked to their customers. The price is quite a shock to the British. On learning it, one of the large British buyers of rose and fruit stocks wrote to his supplier:

"We much regret that you see fit to make such enormous advances in prices, and we feel sure you do not realize the amount of the increase. Compared with autumn, 1917, it is four and one-half times greater and three times greater than last year. It is impossible that your costs of production have increased 300 per cent over those of the last year of the war and we much regret that we are quite unable to entertain such prices, and shall be glad if you will cancel the entire provisional order, as the price you ask is quite an unprofitable one for us. When you see fit to reduce the price to one more in accordance with the actual costs of production, we shall be pleased to again entertain the idea of doing business with you. We are extremely sorry to have to come to this decision, but will develop our own resources, which, fortunately, are now considerable, and while fully appreciating the gallant services and terrible sacrifices of your country in the war, much regret that we are unable to trade at a loss."

MENACE PROVES BENEFACTOR.

Only a few years ago the San Jose scale was looked upon as a most serious menace and fruit trees seemed exposed to almost certain destruction by the ravages of the scale. Now the scale is looked upon as having been a blessing in disguise. The rapid increase of the scale after its first appearance made it necessary to spray to save the trees. Lime-sulphur solution soon became the standard remedy for the control of this insect. In a short time it was discovered that this spray at winter strength aided in the control of many tree diseases and it has also come to be extensively used in a more dilute form for the control of fungous diseases during the growing season. This use of lime-sulphur in dilute form has now been found to aid largely in the control of scale insects by killing the young before they have taken on their protective scale covering. Therefore, where trees are sprayed regularly it is fast becoming difficult to find any evidence of the scale and it has ceased to be a bugbear.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Since last report there has been a favorable change in the weather. After a drought of some six or eight weeks' duration we are having an ample supply of rain and the season could not be better. Everything outside has taken on new life and there is an abundance of gladioli, asters, dahlias, hydrangeas, etc. Even stock that was thought to be practically dried up has revived and is giving some good blooms.

The market remains good; in fact, one could hardly hope for better business at this season of the year and, although there is an oversupply of stock, prices remain the same. Gladioli bring from $3 to $5 per dozen; asters, 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen; dahlias, from 75 cents to $3 per dozen; snapdragon, $1 to $3 per dozen, and hydrangeas from $2 to $4 per dozen. The offerings of roses are unusually good and there is a good demand for them at from $2 to $6 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Addison J. McNutt makes a favorable report. He is having lots of business, with a good supply of stock to take care of it. He is cutting a fine crop of Russell and Kaiserin roses and also some good gladioli, asters and dahlias. Mr. McNutt has been a regular attendant at the S. A. F. conventions for a number of years, but owing to the rush of business and the shortage of help was not able to attend this year. Mrs. P. K. Holden is taking her vacation and anticipates a trip to Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno reports business good. July was an exceptionally good month and August promises to do quite as well. She is cutting a fine crop of asters and some good gladioli. Edward L. Ryno has just been discharged from the army after thirteen months' service overseas. He was engaged in a number of battles, but is unhurt.

Mrs. S. C. Custer, whose place of business is in the residence section, is doing considerable business. Mrs. Custer has been in the business for a number of years and has an established trade. Although her place is small, she grows some choice stock.

A. H. Dailey is enjoying good business. He is cutting an ample supply of stock in the way of asters, gladioli, dahlias, hydrangeas and roses. Mrs. Howard Stair has just returned to work after a pleasant vacation at Chicago and other northern points.

Business is good at Crouch's. All vacations are over and everyone is ready for the fall season. They have just finished planting carnations and chrysanthemums and everything looks favorable for a good fall and winter business. They are cutting some extra choice Columbia roses.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., as usual, is busy. There has been a steady demand for flowers for weddings, receptions, hospitals and funerals during the entire summer. They furnished decorations for the reorganization of the chain of Kuhlman's Drug Stores, August 8. They are cutting a nice crop of roses, dahlias, asters, swainsona, hydrangeas and gladioli. The recent rains have revived the gladiolus crop and they are again having a heavy cut of excellent stock, which is being disposed of on the wholesale market at an average price of $5 per hundred. The greater part of this stock is being disposed of direct to the retail florists; some of it, however, is consigned to the commission house. Charles L. and Roy L. Baum are attending the S. A. F. convention in Detroit. On their way up they stopped at Cincinnati and Richmond. Their trip will extend over a period of ten days or two weeks and what time they are not at the convention will be spent in visiting the different growers of the north. Miss Lydia Mapes is spending her vacation with friends and relatives in Ohio and Michigan and will make it convenient to be in Detroit for the convention. Miss Mae Cartwright is spending her vacation with friends in Danville and Chicago.

HENRY I. FAUST, Merion, Pa., Wholesale Grower Christmas and Easter Plants

Knoxville on his way to the convention. Harold Joy and Mr. Johnson, of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., were in the city recently. R. E. M.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market last week was congested with a supply of stock which has not been equaled in Baltimore for a long time. Even with this, sales were above normal for the season. There was entirely too much stock for the demand and there was a large surplus of stock each day during the week, so that when Saturday came there was an accumulation that made the street men welcome at the wholesale houses. During the entire week it was a case of the purchaser picking out the best stock; the poorer quality had to be disposed of on the last day for anything it would bring. This is especially true of asters. The writer was struck with the great glut of an exceedingly poor purple aster which was seen at every place he visited. Upon asking the reason he was told there were no more of this variety than usual, but they did not sell, the accumulation creating the apparent glut.

The hydrangea season was at its height and the nurserymen seemed to be of the opinion that they might, this season, get something out of the flowers, instead of letting them wither in the fields. I am afraid that in a great many cases they did not get what it cost to cut the flowers and get them to market.

While there are some fairly good roses to be seen, the majority are of poor quality. This is the case with nearly everything on the market at this time. Quantity seems to have entirely taken the place of quality. There is the usual supply of all sorts of miscellaneous stock to be had at almost any price.

In speaking of conditions, with a man who is well informed on the subject, I was told the same conditions exist in almost every city of the east and, no doubt, the west also. In August the supply of outdoor stock goes away beyond the demand.

Various Notes.

John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., was recently showing me their line of ribbons and florists' supplies, saying that they are taking advantage of the slack times to get in readiness for the coming season. A fine new wall case, the entire length of the show rooms, displays these things to unusual advantage. Mr. Perry said they were just getting their stock in shape, as there would be lots added before fall. In speaking of business in general, Mr. Perry said that if he could only get the growers educated to properly grade and pack their stock many of his troubles would be past. When I said the grower was the loser in this case, he replied that it was just the point. When a grower has a good article and it comes to market bruised and in poor shape, it is an impossibility to get market prices for it, and yet the grower, who in many cases does not see it after it leaves the range, cannot understand why he does not get the prices he sees quoted in the trade papers. It seems foolish for a man to go to the trouble to grow his stock well and then spoil it after it is cut. This is one of the most important things the grower should look after.

Time spent in properly grading and packing his stock will insure larger returns.

A visit to the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co., to inspect its remodeled show rooms, revealed one of the best equipped stores for the wholesale flower business I have ever seen. A dwelling at 13 East Center street has been converted into an up-to-date store. The entire front is glass, a window 8x16 feet gives it the appearance of a retail store and, although the legend, "Wholesale Only," is conspicuously displayed on the window, Mr. Towner, the manager, tells me they have lots of applications for retail sales. The company has purchased the property and is preparing for the largest season's business in its history. The officers of the company now are: President, Edward Schroeder; secretary, Albert Beckman; treasurer, M. Hilpert; manager, James L. Towner; assistant manager, Robert Gladman. Mr. Towner, who is well known to the trade, was for many years salesman for Griffith & Turner. He says they now have the facilities for doing business, that it is only a question of getting stock to do it with and that he proposes to get the stock.

Mrs. Kate Patterson, of West Saratoga street, has disposed of her store to J. R. Dassing, formerly of Detroit. Mrs. Patterson intends making her future home in California.

Eugene Newton, who has a fine retail store in the Walbrook district, North avenue and Tenth street, is about to break ground for a new range of houses on Windsor Mill road, Woodlawn. Mr. Newton is a hustler and has recently added a line of candies to his store and has also been successful in obtaining the Walbrook substation of the postoffice. His idea is to get the public into the habit of coming into his store, even though it be only for a postage stamp; then when they want flowers or candies they will know where to get them.

Another who is this summer adding to his already large range is Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy. One of the finest cuts that comes to the Baltimore market is that of Mr. King, who is most optimistic over the outlook for the future of business.

Philip B. Welsh is sending in some fine, clean stock of asters. Anything Mr. Welsh grows always is of good quality.

The Market.

The market continues easy, with a good selection of flowers. Business is good for August and first quality stock sells quickly. Roses, gladioli and asters are in best supply. The quality is good and prices are fair. For the first time in a year orchids are completely out of this market. In a week or two a light cut will be on again.

Various Notes.

A large wedding in Sheboygan, Wis., August 11, kept the force of the Baumgarten Floral Co. busy for a few days. A church decoration, a dozen tables at the home of the bride, together with the bouquets for the bridal party, made up the order. August Kellner & Co. arranged the church decoration.

Herman Hunkel is busy with plans for the florists' exhibit at the state fair, which is one of Milwaukee's big annual events. The horticultural building promises to be about the main attraction this year.

James Matthewson and son were in Milwaukee August 18, en route to Detroit. About fifteen local florists attended the convention.

Gus Psimaras reports a good business the last week. Funeral orders were plentiful.

Joseph Sinick has taken a position with Gust. Rusch & Co. He has been about the flower market for many years, but has recently been inclined to make it a source of livelihood.

Mat Schiltz, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., called on the trade last week.

Ray Manning, with the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week, introducing William T. Then, who will take over the Milwaukee territory. Mr. Manning will, in part, take over the duties of the late Frank McCabe on the Randall selling force.

The new store of E. Welke Co., Third street, is nearing completion and will be as convenient and unique as careful planning can make it. A. H. M.

Houston, Tex.—R. C. Kerr is state agent for the Beeman garden tractor and already has sold six carloads of the machines.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

WHAT TO PAY FOR STEAM.

Have you any data on what would be a fair estimate of the cost of heating a greenhouse by steam at so much per thousand feet of glass? I have an opportunity to obtain steam from a mill nearby, but do not know what would be a fair price to pay for it. An early answer will be appreciated, as I want to get the pipe laid as soon as possible.

O. D. E.—Mich.

The price of steam from a service station would depend upon local conditions, of which you give no hint in your inquiry.

There are instances in which greenhouses are heated by the exhaust steam from light plants, waterworks or other power plants operated on the 24-hour basis. This exhaust steam would be a total loss to the seller, except for the neighboring florist's ability to use it, and consequently the price is moderate. Where the steam is manufactured for sale, as in the case of central heating plants, the price is measured by a different standard. In that case, it would be figured by what it had been costing to operate the greenhouse heating plant. Anything up to that sum would be a fair price for steam from the central heating plant. In figuring the cost of heating, coal, cartage, labor and repairs would be among the items figured. Also, if a grower could save the space and expense of installing boilers, he might well pay something more than if he already had boiler equipment which would go into disuse when the steam was purchased from outside.

HEATING A LEAN-TO.

I am sending a sketch of the house I have and of a proposed lean-to. The main house is to be heated for carnations and the lean-to for lettuce and other plants requiring low temperatures. Both are to be heated by a 15-horsepower steam boiler. With an outside temperature of 20 degrees below zero, how many 1¼-inch pipes would be necessary and how should they be arranged in the lean-to? Could I spare any of the east coil in the main house and arrange the remaining piping so it would be more effective? T. R. G.—N. Y.

The sketch shows the cross section of a greenhouse 21x100 feet, with forty-four inches of glass in each of the walls. There is a 3-inch flow pipe below the ridge and four 1¼-inch pipes under each of the four benches. The lean-to is 10x100 feet, with two feet of glass in the side wall. If the house is well built and an efficient steam boiler is used, there should be no difficulty in heating the greenhouse to 55 degrees

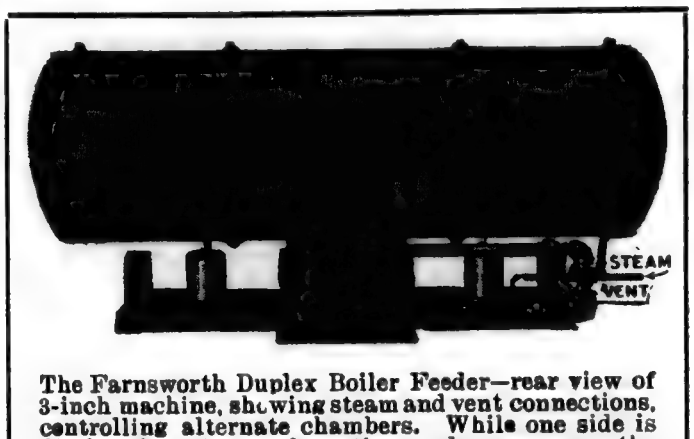
Florists Face a Serious Problem— Farnsworth Machines Solve It



The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—front view of 3-inch machine, showing duplex receiving and delivery check valves.

by using the

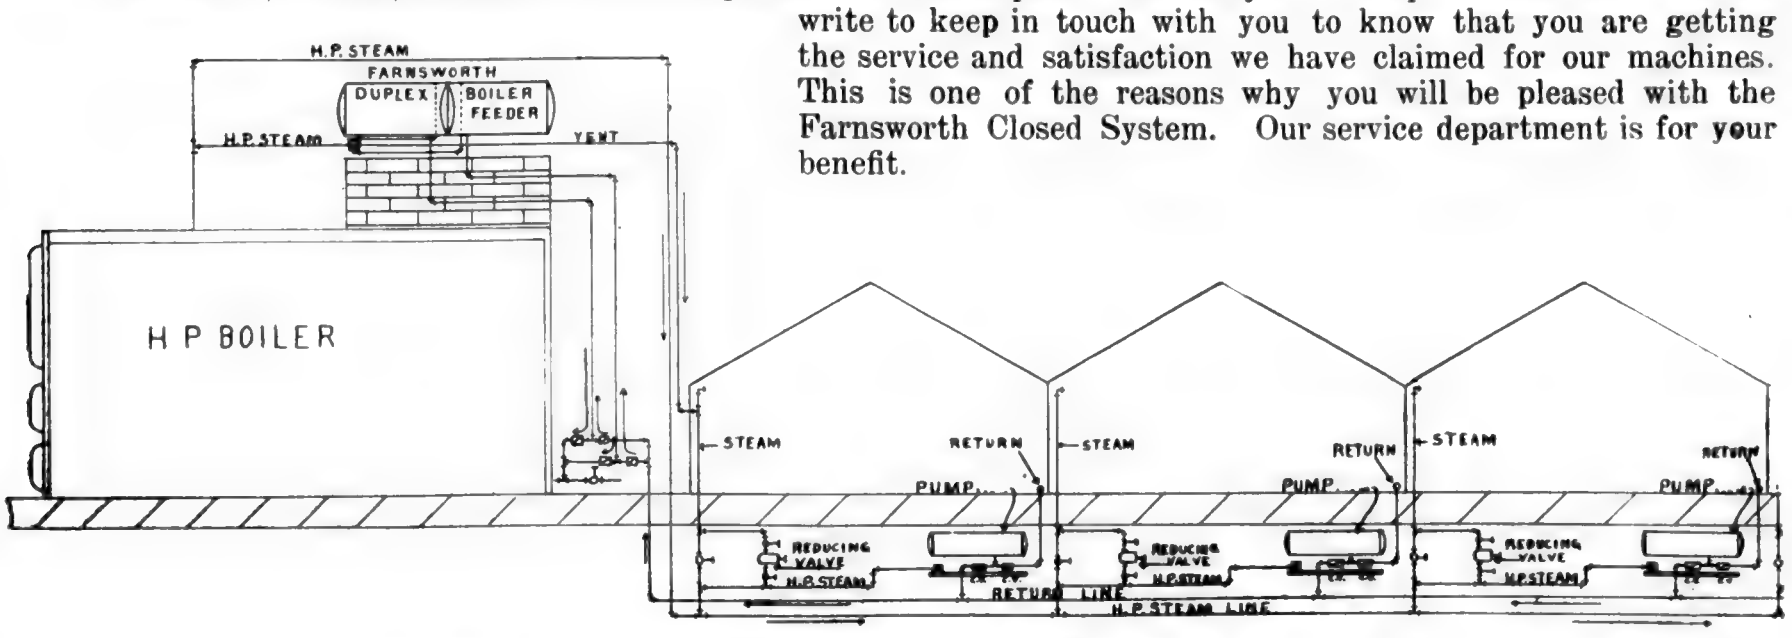
FARNSWORTH DUPLEX BOILER FEEDER

The Double Action Pump— The Only Machine of Its Kind on the Market

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—rear view of 3-inch machine, showing steam and vent connections, controlling alternate chambers. While one side is discharging the condensation under pressure, the other side is filling. It works with a continuous automatic flow.

Select the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder and you may rest assured that you have picked the quality pump, the double-action machine, and the "greatest coal saver ever offered the steam plant."

You may have paid a few dollars more for the better pump—the superior machine. You have simply added to the assets of your plant. Our machines are easily connected and at little expense.



You will soon have the service and the satisfaction which comes with the Farnsworth Guarantee. It will be a pleasure to note that you have cut your fuel cost and are saving many tons of coal. You have saved time and labor by eliminating your piston type pump. You are now feeding the hot condensate into the boiler at a temperature much higher than your steam pump could or would handle it. You are saving all your heat units by means of the closed system.

Here's what one of the florists thinks of the Farnsworth Closed System—a testimonial which speaks for itself—one of a great number.

This letter is from F. E. Cremer, Hanover, Pa., who became a "Farnsworth Booster" soon after he became "Farnsworth Equipped." He wrote:—

> "In reply to yours regarding the Farnsworth machines I have in use, I beg to state that the winter of 1917-18 gave them a thorough test and they worked to perfection.
> "These machines did all that was claimed for them. The Duplex feeder and the vacuum condenser return pump handled all the condensation from 28,000 feet of glass. As I have two plants, the one a gravity system with smaller boiler that I use for mild weather, because of the milder weather this winter I did not run the larger system except six days, and when the pumps were put in use they went right to work without a hitch. You can use my name or you may send any prospective buyers to my plant.
>
> "Respectfully,
> [Signed] F. E. CREMER."

Remember, Farnsworth Service never stops when the bill is paid. We ask you to keep in touch with us—we write to keep in touch with you to know that you are getting the service and satisfaction we have claimed for our machines. This is one of the reasons why you will be pleased with the Farnsworth Closed System. Our service department is for your benefit.

when the temperature is 20 degrees below zero. This is possible with ten 1¼-inch returns in addition to the 3-inch main. Six returns, therefore, may be taken out and used in the lean-to. The 3-inch main in the greenhouse will be large enough to supply the returns in the lean-to and the six returns from the greenhouse will be all the piping that is necessary. If the lean-to is to be piped independently of the greenhouse, we suggest running a 2-inch main upon the west wall of the lean-to. In this case five 1¼-inch return pipes will suffice. Three of the returns should be on the east side of the lean-to and the others on the west wall and in the walk between the solid beds.

three feet of glass. The concrete is six inches thick and all the glass is double-strength. The house will be heated with hot water. I have a quantity of 3-inch pipe on hand. Will that size serve for both flows and returns, or is it too large? I wish to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather. The house will be well protected on the north and will have some protection on the west.

A. E. P.—Ill.

We ordinarily prefer to use pipes smaller than 3-inch, both for flows and returns. Yet, if the 3-inch pipe is on hand, it may be used to good advantage.

We note that the accompanying sketch shows two overhead flow pipes. These will be all right, and with six 3-inch returns will heat the house to 50 degrees in zero weather. About 720 square feet of radiation will actually be needed, but the boiler selected should be rated at least at 900 square feet, especially if soft coal is to be used. For this a grate twenty-four or twenty-five inches in diameter will be needed.

For heating the house our choice would be to use as radiation three 2½-inch flows and nine 2-inch returns.

Our old-time friend, who is approaching the eightieth milestone of life's journey, pointed out many varieties of his own raising that are marked with four stars, which is, in orchid language, the top notch of perfection. Fuel Saving Pays for Morehead System in One Season

LOUIS KOEHL
2321 Ontario Street
2262 East Fourth Street
Cleveland, O.
June 14th 1919

Morehead Mfg. Company,
Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your request for information regarding the Morehead-Back-To-Boiler System, which we installed in September, 1918, we are very glad to submit the following data in the hope that it will be of some interest to you.

We are enclosing a photograph of our property, which consists of ten houses, all of which are approximately 150 ft. long and 21 ft. wide, together with a small propogating house located at the end of the green house.

Our boiler plant is located about 50 feet to the west of the green houses and contains two 125 H.P. boilers, which can be arranged for either coal or gas.

In the past we have always used a steam pump for returning the condensation to the boiler, on which we have had to carry at least 15 to 20# pressure, even in the mildest weather, because the steam pump would not work at lower pressures.

Our Morehead equipment consists of two #3 Return Traps and a Receiver and since their installation, we have never had to carry over 8 or 9#, even during the coldest weather.

We have sufficient records of our fuel costs to know that these traps have paid for themselves in one season in the fuel which we saved by the elimination of this steam pump.

The winter of 1918-1919 was mild compared to the previous year and we are convinced that this installation has been of considerable value to us and will prove to be in the future.

Yours very truly,
BROOKLINE FLORAL COMPANY,
Louis Koehl

Louis Koehl of the Brookline Floral Company, of Cleveland — wholesale growers of carnations, roses, chrysanthemums, sweet peas and other flowers — is among the hundreds of florists who strongly recommends and indorses the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System.

Read Mr. Koehl's letter — reproduced on this page — and then send for complete information regarding the Morehead System.

Let us refer you to florists in your locality who have reduced their fuel bills 10 to 50 per cent by installing the Morehead System.

Also Cattleya Lawrenceana and Cattleya Miss Williams. Odontoglossum pulchellum majus, commonly known as the lily of the valley orchid, is also in fine shape. He has approximately 150 plants, possibly the largest number in a single collection in America. "The blooms bring a figure hitherto unthought-of," observed our veteran enthusiast, "and must act as a stimulus to orchid culture. All the plants are grown in pots, since this has been found the most practical method." Certain it is the growths could hardly be stronger. Harry Mathews has charge of the chrysanthemums and is pleased with the way the plants are coming along, although the attacks of the bugs and grasshoppers are severe this season. Such pompons as Buckingham and Mensa, together with Bonnaffon, Seidewitz, Chieftain and Oconto, compose the list. W. M.

Toledo, O.—Fred Rinker has obtained a permit for a greenhouse at 220 Oregon road, to cost $9,500.

South Bend, Ind.—W. Thurston Gibbs has just recovered from injuries received when an agent tried to demonstrate a tractor that proved to be defective. The recent hot weather was almost disastrous for his gladioli, of which he has ten acres.

Randolph, Vt.—The H. M. Totman Co. has filed articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state. The company is organized to take over and conduct the greenhouses and store formerly operated by Mr. Totman personally. The incorporators are Mr. Totman and two of his employees, Hortense L. Flint and Edson E. Gifford. The capital stock is $35,000.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

MISSOURI POTTERY RED POTS

For over 30 years we have put forth every reasonable effort to make our trade-mark stand for the highest quality in pot construction.

You can depend on Missouri Pottery Red Pots—the quality is always the same, extra strong, unusually porous to allow free plant growth, and evenly baked. Red Pots—uniform in size, shape and texture—that's what you want. That's the only kind of pots we have to offer you and the price is right.

Send Today for New Mid-Season Bulletin.

It'll save you money and give us a chance to tell you our story. A post card will do. Send it NOW.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Market.

Trade, though irregular, with some big days and some days almost nothing at all, has averaged about normal for the time of year. With roses plentiful and gladioli and asters about the only dependable flowers, funeral work has been the mainstay of the business.

Various Notes.

C. O. E. Boehm, superintendent of parks, is out of the Ford class and now drives a fine new Maxwell.

George Thompson, formerly head florist for the Davis Floral Co., leaves with his family shortly for Council Bluffs, Ia.

Julius Staack & Sons report one day of $400 worth of funeral work.

Wm. Knees says the telephone strike in Moline and Rock Island cuts in heavily on the business, probably as much as one-half. There is little or no telephone service and there are no indications of a settlement, as yet.

Harry M. Bills is driving a new Nash touring car. W. G.

Club's Annual Meeting.

In the calendar of the members of the Tri-City Florists' Club are two red-letter days: the first a movable date determined by the weather prognosis of Park Superintendent Boehm, of Davenport, when the annual picnic is held at the camp of Wm. Knees, Sr., on Rock river; the second date is a fixed one, when members and families, on the second Thursday in August, take flight for Muscatine, ostensibly to hold the regular monthly meeting of the society, but really for an afternoon and evening of immeasurable fun and enjoyment.

On the latter occasion, we are the guests of Emil Krants and are generally entertained at the American community hall. August 14, after a short business session, during which action was taken regarding the members' exhibitions at the Iowa state show and applications for membership were received from Miss Mamie Tearney and Mr. Clausen, both of Davenport, the members were treated to a sight-seeing trip around Muscatine. Following this we were invited to partake of a wonderful dinner, which spoke volumes for the culinary skill of Mrs. Krants and her assistants.

Dinner was followed by a talkfest at which Messrs. Boehm and Anderson begged off because of surfeit and its accompanying discomfort. Dancing was next on the program. All were sorry when breaking up time came and returned to their homes with the best opinion of the hospitality and social ability of Mr. and Mrs. Krants.

The Market.

The continued cool weather of last week stimulated both the demand and the quality of the supply. Although funeral work was most prominent, there was a good demand for wedding flowers for this season of the year, and an excellent counter trade. In cut flowers, gladioli and asters predominated, although there are some good quality roses arriving on the market, cut from the young stock. Prices on these are not high, however, on account of the shortness of the stems. Gladioli are slightly declining in quantity, but some flowers of splendid quality are being offered. In asters, Comet is of unusually large size, but the general run of the asters is not as good as other years, on account of the dry weather earlier in the season. No carnations are offered as yet. Outdoor snapdragons are more plentiful and of good quality. Golden Glow and hydrangeas are on the market in large quantities. Dahlias are not plentiful as yet. Rubrum lilies, auratums and a few day lilies are being shown. Phlox and tuberoses are also offered. Smaller flowers, such as daisies, gypsophila, calendulas, cornflowers, delphiniums, etc., are fairly plentiful. Orchids are off crop. The scarcity of lily of the valley causes a greater demand for swainsona, which is fast becoming a popular wedding flower. A few chrysanthemums, the first of the season, are offered, but they are small and high in price. Statice is here. The supply of greens is adequate, with the exception of smilax.

Various Notes.

George Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., left August 17 on a motor trip to Chicago, where he will visit the growers of that city and vicinity, remaining there for the greater part of a week. Miss Bonnie Doswell, of the same firm, will go to St. Louis to visit her sister, Mrs. H. J. Wickman, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Knecht went to Detroit August 18 to attend the convention and visit surrounding places of interest before their return to this city.

Edgar Wenninghoff enjoyed a motor trip to Cedar Point, O., last week. He also took a fine boat trip on Lake Erie from the resort. Mrs. Clem Lanternier left last week for a visit in Toledo. Mr. Lanternier joined his wife in that city and they attended the convention at Detroit together.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom, of the Blossom Floral Co., and Miss Junetta Schoch, bookkeeper for the former concern, motored to Detroit to attend the S. A. F. convention.

The Knecht-Freese Floral Co. has just finished replanting roses. They will grow Premier, Columbia, Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney and White Killarney this season. R. F. B.

The Market.

There was a scarcity of cut flowers last week, on account of the heavy rain storms and the strikes, which made transportation difficult. Roses were especially poor. It is a fortunate occurrence that this shortage came at a time when business was naturally quiet and the demands for flowers were not heavy. A few late weddings and funeral designs are about the only things that keep the store forces busy at the present time.

Nevertheless, conditions improved last week and some good gladioli, asters, dahlias, Golden Glow, cosmos, etc., are to be obtained. Dahlias are especially large and of good quality. They make a good showing when displayed in the windows of the various florists. The cool, pleasant weather enjoyed during the last few days has been favorable to the production of flowers of good quality.

Various Notes.

James Horan & Son had the decorations for the Sterling-Grumman wedding. Lavender and pink flowers were used entirely. The ceremony was performed on the lawn and the bridal party stood under a huge floral umbrella composed of pink and lavender asters. They received their guests in the living room standing before a bank of palms and America gladioli. The house is spacious and the entire first floor was filled with flowers, palms, etc.

John Reck & Son have had a good many orders for funeral designs during the last week. This firm is displaying some splendid asters, gladioli and dahlias, the latter being exceptionally large. Mr. White, the manager, has returned from a three weeks' vacation. While away he visited Seneca lake and Keuka lake, in New York state. He says the florists he met while in New York state report that business is not brisk and that there is a shortage of flowers.

Robert Hawkins and his family are spending the summer at Fairfield beach, a summer resort near Bridgeport. This firm decorated for the Oliphant-Henderson wedding, which took place last week. This was a military wedding. The bride's bouquet was of white sweet peas and roses. The bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of forget-me-nots and Ward roses and the maid of honor sweet peas and Ophelia roses. A promenade was made by enclosing the colonial veranda with a screen of huckleberry and gladioli. I. L. B.

MANURE

Protects your crop. It is direct heat dried and sterilized, weed seeds, grass seeds, fungous and disease germs destroyed in a direct heat rotary drying process that does not change or destroy any of the valuable elements in crude manure.

Air dried manures cannot be sterilized and usually carry excess moisture that actually makes them cost more per ton than WIZARD BRAND even at the same or a lower price.

WIZARD TRADE BRAND MARK

Pulverized Sheep Manure

For nearly fifteen years the florists' standard of quality—always uniform and always reliable. A quick acting, powerful NATURAL fertilizer, absolutely free from chemical treatment or mixture. Order by name and be sure it's WIZARD BRAND. Don't accept a substitute.

Remember, WIZARD BRAND SHEEP MANURE is packed in extra quality 25-lb. and 50-lb. bags, and attractively printed 5-lb. and 10-lb. cartons for your retail trade. There is nothing better you can offer for lawn and garden fertilizer.

WIZARD TRADE BRAND MARK

About Insectonos

Insectonos (pronounced In-sec-tō′-nos) is a contact insecticide for the destruction of White Fly, Rose Leaf Roller and Chrysanthemum Leaf Tyer. Numerous growers have been using it for several months—and are so well pleased their recommendation by word of mouth already has caused many other growers to try Insectonos. Ask about it.

Mr. Pearce wrote:

Chicago, Ill., August 1, 1919.

You would certainly be surprised to see my place, as you know that when you were here in June and we syringed the Mums, the air was brown with millers; now the millers are mighty few and far between and consequently the same with Leaf Tyers. Insectonos did all that you claimed for it.

SAM J. PEARCE.

Gullett & Sons wrote:

Lincoln, Ill., August 8, 1919.

We have been using Insectonos as a remedy for the very destructive Leaf Rollers on Roses and Chrysanthemums, and have found it to be a good remedy. It is easy to apply and has brought us excellent results.

GULLETT & SONS.

While Insectonos is comparatively new in this trade, it has been manufactured and sold for other uses for the past 25 years.

Send $1.75 for a 1-lb. can, delivered postpaid anywhere in America. Being non-poisonous, Insectonos can go through the mails.

Use according to directions (one pound will combine with one pound of Ivory Soap to make 32 gallons of spray). When you see the results you will want a case (8 1-lb. cans), at $10.50, sent prepaid anywhere in the U. S. if cash accompanies the order. $12.00 per case, postpaid, to Canada. Will also supply Ivory Soap Powder, prepaid, at 30c per pound.

The Market.

Last week found the market flooded with gladioli and asters and also with quite an abundance of the shorter grades of roses. Gladioli are arriving in excellent quality, but asters are still rather mediocre. Japanese lilies are being received in larger quantities, but mostly short, while good sweet peas are hard to obtain. Calendulas have been coming in better and for the most part have cleaned up nicely. A little snapdragon and delphinium are showing up in a medium grade. Roses are arriving in a little better quality.

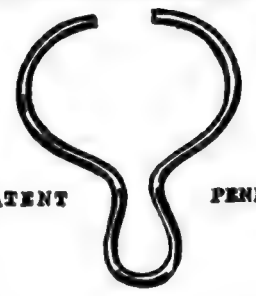
The Market.

Business is fair for the time of the year, but is not strong enough to take up all of the receipts. The choice and fancy stock generally sells readily, while the others move slowly.

Roses are in fair supply, but the larger part of the receipts are short-stemmed ones from the new cut. But few Easter lilies and rubrum lilies are coming into the market. Those that are available generally meet with a good demand. The aster supply is fair. The gladiolus receipts are sufficient for all immediate demands. Some snapdragon may be had. Greens are in good supply and sell fairly well.



Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has begun to stock up heavily in supplies for the fall and winter business, having added a large shipment of baskets to his stock during the last fortnight.

The marriage of Miss Clare Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., to Lloyd Andress Barnes, of Thermopolis, Wyo., was solemnized August 13, at Cedarville, Mich. The groom has been assistant inspector of the United States Emergency Fleet and Shipping Board. For their honeymoon they are leaving on an automobile trip that will take them through Yellowstone and California. Their future home will be Thermopolis, Wyo.

Washington, D. C.—The annual outing of the florists of Washington was held August 2, at Marshall Hall.

Mr. Grower:

In introducing my new plant and bloom support, "WIRE TIE," I am placing before the trade a long felt want and much needed by the grower.

"WIRE TIE" is a labor-saving device.

The cut shows the "TIE" open and ready to be placed in position on any plant or bloom needing support.

They can be successfully used on any plants needing support and are practically a necessity for Chrysanthemums; absolutely no danger of breaking stem.

They make a neat appearance and you can tie up five times as many Mums with "WIRE TIE" as you can by tying up plant with cord.

Send stamp for enough samples to give them a good try-out.

Permanite

Better Than Ever—Costs Less

When Permanite—the original Asbestos Glazing Cement—came on the market it was the first and only material of its kind; since then any number of other similar products have been introduced, but the greenhouse man who has but once used Permanite, hardly ever makes a change; he knows there is a difference—and he knows that Permanite is made better than ever before.

And he also knows that Permanite costs less per years of service, because Permanite does not harden, remains ever-elastic and is guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times.

If quality and service mean anything at all to you—just say the word—and we shall gladly send you further information; and don't forget to ask for particulars about the new one-hand Permanite Gun—it will do your glazing in less than half the usual time.

The Market.

Gladioli are more plentiful than they have been and asters are beginning to arrive in greater numbers. These form the stand-by for many florists these days, though there are other flowers in the market. There is less color in window displays now than at other seasons, ferns and other green stuff forming the bulk of the display. Growers are closely caring for their chrysanthemums, the earliest of which will begin to bloom about a month from now. A large cut is expected.

Various Notes.

Connelly & Plunkett have been painting their store at 149 Bloomfield avenue, as well as making other alterations and renovations preparatory to the coming season. Alterations have also been made to the branch store at 20 Belmont avenue.

"Positively the Best Sprinkler on the Market"

—says S. Bryson Ayres, owner of Sunnyslope Seed Farm

"Positively the best sprinkler on the market," says S. Bryson Ayres, owner of the Sunnyslope Seed Farm, Independence, Mo. His opinion is shared by every owner of this wonderfully efficient sprinkling device. It does the work quicker, easier and better. Saves its cost in a few weeks in water saving.

Double Rotary Sprinkler

Sprinkles Like Rain—Up to 75 Feet in Diameter

Nothing to equal this machine and its effect ever before made. Works equally well on hillside and level. Lasts for years. Positively the most satisfactory sprinkler ever known.

Saves Time, Labor and Water

To know true economy of sprinkling, in the use of water and labor saving, you must know the Double Rotary Sprinkler. Any garden hose fits. Water stream, striking rotary wheel, breaks into drops like rain and at the same time sprinkler head revolves, making even water spread up to 75 feet in diameter.

10 Days' Trial Once you see this sprinkler working you will never give it up. Guaranteed for long life. Can't get out of order. Use it 10 days and if not entirely satisfied, return it and you will not be out one cent.

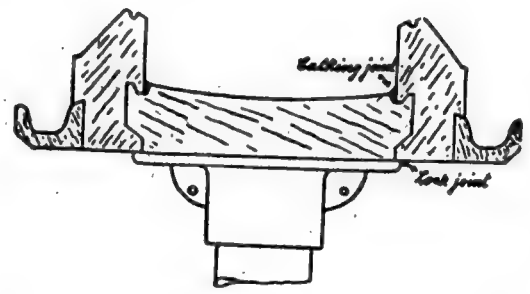
AN IDEAL TULIP SOIL HERE

FLOWERS GROW LUXURIOUSLY ON SUNNYSLOPE SEED FARM.

The Extensive Culture Near Independence Began in 1917 With a Shipment of Bulbs From Holland —Blossomed April 1.

Tulip growing on a large scale means much to the Hollander and little to the average Jackson County citizen. The reason is the culture of this flower is as rare here as it is common in the little European country. Yet there is a spot in Jackson County where there are tulips which have all the luxury of color found in those grown in Holland. Sunnyslope Seed Farm, near Independence, is the place.

Since April 1 the tulips have been blossoming. The pink tinged white Loreine came first and immediately afterward the deep red Artus. The pink Cottage Maid followed by April L. Midmonth witnessed the unfolding of the deep yellow Chrysolam and the Keiserkroon with its yellow tipped, red petals. The Murilla burst into flaming blooms April 20. Now the Clara Butt, colored as a piece of red and white stick candy; the Pride of Harlem, a soft old rose, and the red Gresham, have their day. It is tulip time in Jackson County.



ENOUGH FOR ALL DINNER TABLES.

If every bulb on Sunnyslope Farm was to produce the normal number of flowers there would be enough to provide a bouquet for every Kansas City dinner table today. According to S. Bryson Ayres, the operator, there now are one hundred and twenty-five thousand bulbs of all species in the storehouses and in the ground. This number includes the various species of narcissus (daffodil and jonquil) and gladiolus.

Extensive tulip culture on the farm near Independence began in 1917, when a shipment of bulbs was received from Holland, where the finest specimens of the flower are grown. In the fall the bulbs were placed in the ground, two and a half inches apart in long rows. They really were not yet bulbs, the name which properly is applied to them at that stage of development being "yearlings."

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee has returned from a six weeks' vacation tour during which little of the central part of the state was missed. She stopped in the Yosemite valley for about three weeks and then started on a tour through the Feather river country, exploring the high Sierras in that district. The return to San Francisco was made by way of Eureka and the coast. Mrs. Darbee stated that the outing was a success in every way and she was enthusiastic in her praise of the camp outfit which was carried in the machine and added greatly to the pleasure of the trip. It was a particular convenience this year, she said, for the crowded condition of the resorts made it impossible at times to get accommodations. Mrs. Darbee has started shipping in large volume, the majority of the stock being asters, chrysanthemums and plumosus at present. Last week she shipped greens to Detroit to decorate the convention hall.

Six acres of land in San Leandro, Cal., have been purchased by Joseph Proietti, a grower who is noted for an excellent choice of gladioli and daffodils, and he has already started to remove his bulbs from the old location between San Leandro and Elmhurst. The new farm is larger and more conveniently located and when the replanting is completed Mr. Proietti will have one of the largest bulb farms for cut flowers in this district. It is understood that he paid about $10,000 for the new location.

Domoto Bros. are busy with aster shipments, as are Enomoto & Co. The stock from both these establishments is in excellent shape.

Plans are now being prepared by Emerson Knight, landscape engineer with offices in the Monadnock building, for residence gardens which will cover about three acres on the estate of Chas. A. Gale, at Pleasanton, Cal.

M. H. Douglass, a nurseryman of Hanford, Cal., was a recent visitor in San Francisco. M. M.

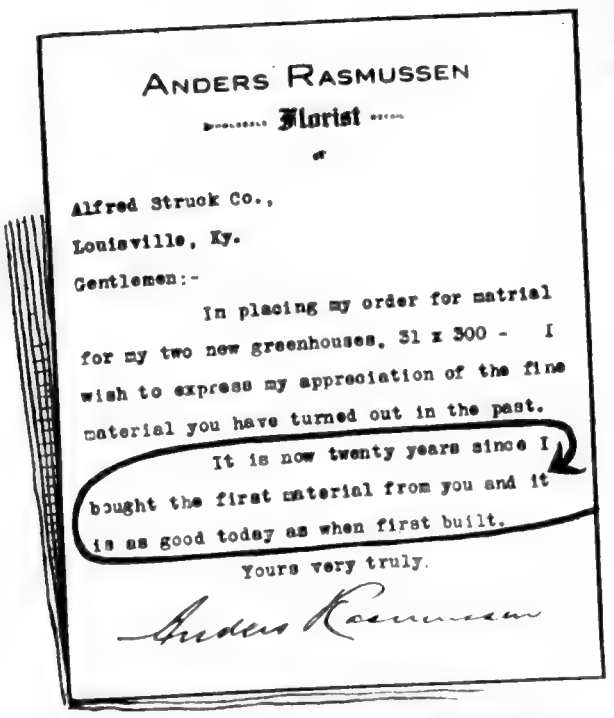
DETROIT.

On the Outskirts.

I am wondering how many florists realize what treasures await them if they haunt the roads not so frequented by men. I was more than ever impressed on my last trip to the country. On one side borders of euphorbia; here and everywhere ruffles of queen's lace. There a patch of blazing star; here a splash of orange milkweed. In the wilder places, long arching branches of blackberries as pleasing to the eye when gathered while they are bright red as they are pleasing to the palate when the sun has finished its work. Combine in your mind's eye a lovely bunch of roses bordered with either queen's lace or euphorbia and say whether the wild and the cultivated do not complement each other.

Various Notes.



Two recent weddings have involved members of Mr. Breitmeyer's staff. H. E. Taylor brought a Washington bride to our midst and John Moore, of the Woodward store, married Miss E. Voelker, of Detroit.

Philip Breitmeyer entertained his branch and department heads last week, at his home on Willis avenue. Past successes and thoughts for the future were discussed.

Herman Rogers, with Taepke, has returned from the east.

CARNATIONS

"LADDIE." You will remember what a scramble there was for rooted cuttings of the variety last season, and how often letters were returned marked "sold out." I have made arrangements with one of the leading Carnation specialists in this country, who has a large stock of this variety, and I have had reserved for me a quantity for January, February and March delivery, 1920, and if you are in the market for this variety, would advise you to place order at once, as I could get reservation of only about one-third of quantity I wanted, and these will be sold up in a very short while. Price, $8.50 per 100, $75.00 per 1000. Terms, one-third cash deposit with order, balance just before shipment is made. No field plants this season. Will also be in position to supply other varieties.
A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.

Lest you forget the "fourteen points" of AGMCO Angle Eave Superiority

1. No leak on top, as the bar projects over the eave.

2. It clasps the bar on both sides clear to the top. It can't move sideways in a storm or get loose.

3. No gap in the putty strip. No leak at end of light. The clasp is made to prevent it.

4. Plenty of space in here so putty can be cleaned out. There is no lodging place for dirt and moisture.

5. A heavy zinc strip for putty. It makes a water and air-tight job.

6. All edges beveled and tapered to shed water. Easily cleaned and painted.

7. Drip actually falls in drip gutter instead of missing it.

8. Bolts as thick as the eave. Two heavy galvanized bolts. Flat heads shed water and dirt. Clasps that slip on may slip off.

9. Drip from bar does not touch eave angle but drops directly from the bar to drip gutter. A special AGMCO feature.

10. Drip gutter of ample size and specially fitted for down-spouts of angle iron that never stop up or rust out.

11. The longest bar rest of any clasp made. Screw far back from end never splits bar. Split bars mean quick decay.

12. Large hole here means end of bar can be painted. It's free of moisture. It's always clean. Makes a real job.

13. Small ledge here allows removal of drip for painting and cleaning. It's an easy job the AGMCO way.

14. The post top is strong. Never breaks and can't come off.

Ponder these Points.
Prove them with your own knowledge.
Make them a part of your trade equipment.
Make them a part of your next greenhouse.

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND THREE

To be exact, the Gasser Company's house is 60 feet 7 inches wide and 400 feet long. It is located in the outskirts of Cleveland.

The Rest of What Brown Said About the Gasser Company's Rose House

IN the S. A. F. Souvenir Program we published PART of what Mr. Brown, General Manager of the Gasser Company of Cleveland, stated about their L. & B. Rose House.

We promised there to let you know ALL that Mr. Brown said that night at the Florist Club, when a lot of the growers got him in a corner and started pinning him down to what they called "cold facts."

So, here it is. Furthermore, he admits having said it. Particularly does Mr. Brown warm to the subject when an interested audience is present. The gathering at the Florist Club was an occasion of this kind.

He started off like this: "The superior qualities of the Gasser Rose House can be most fully appreciated by comparing it with the Pipe Frame Ridge and Furrow House, of which most of our range consists, a number of these houses having been put up less than ten years ago."

Casually the question was asked, "How, then, did you come to decide upon so radical a departure from the greenhouse construction which your firm has always employed?"

With this question, Mr. Brown took a flying start. "Well, it was this way. When we realized that the time had come for expansion, the late Mr. Bartells, for many years the Manager of our Greenhouses, and I decided to investigate thoroughly the various greenhouse constructions. Our object was to find the most economical one that would bring us the largest returns upon our investment, OVER THE LONGEST PERIOD OF TIME.

"Our search for information took us to prominent flower growing establishments all over the country, and after the quest for knowledge was ended, our unanimous verdict was: first, the comparatively wide, separated Iron Frame Greenhouse is best for our purpose, and second, the Lord & Burnham House ranks A-1 in this class."

"So far, so good," aid the audience. "But has your two years' experi confirmed the wisdom of your judgment?" "Absolutely," said Mr. Brown. "In fact, the results have been far beyond our most sanguine expectations.

"Our Rose House is about 60 feet wide and 400 feet long. It is most economical to operate, maintain and heat. To operate, because one can care for more roses than in the small connected houses. The absence of repairs and breakage of glass, make maintenance low. Economical to heat, owing to the large volume of air enclosed and the consequent reduction of radiation required.

"The growing conditions are ideal in Winter, because of the uniform temperature which can be maintained and the flood of sunlight which is admitted, entirely unobstructed by the small, but strong, structural members high above the ground.

"The ease of maintaining proper ventilation is almost unbelievable when compared with the difficulties in obtaining this in the smaller houses. When we first discussed the building of a wide house a slight doubt arose as to whether the four lines of ventilating sash would be adequate, but we find them more efficient than would be twice the number of lines in low Ridge and Furrow Houses. Ample ventilation is evidenced by the fact that our Rose House is unequaled for Summer growing.

"Of course, we mustn't forget that a large factor in the returns from the Rose House is the superior quality and greater quantity of the stock.

"Yes, we had the courage of our convictions when we took this step, and experience has proven that we chose well.

"It's a fallacy for a grower to feel that the area covered by his greenhouse is more important than its construction. If it's necessary to economize, cut down size, but don't sacrifice quality. The so-called 'cheap house' is a delusion and a snare; but like a thing of beauty, a well built one is a joy forever."

To which let us add, when you are READY to talk of building, say when and where, and we'll be there.

If You Were One

Of the many hundreds of Florists who visited

The Randall Room at the Detroit Convention

You came away with some conception of the wonderful variety and great size of Randall's stock of Florists' Supplies. Our representatives booked an immense amount of business there because our display was a revelation to great numbers of Florists.

Buyers on whom Randall salesmen call know they get everything for which they ask, but no Florist in his own store has the time or patience to let the salesman even call the list of Randall's stock. The best way to know the resources of this establishment is to Visit the Chicago Market.

There are many other things which may be done with pleasure and profit in the Chicago market, but it will pay every florist to spend a day every now and then at Randall's. It takes more than a day to see Randall's samples and go through Randall's factory, for here is

The World's Largest Stock of Florists' Supplies.

Randall's is first hands. Randall's actually manufactures in its own factories a large variety of merchandise, is distributor for other factories and is direct importer from Europe on such lines as cannot be better made at home. The stock is so large, so varied, that it never fails to afford new ideas of business possibilities for the Retail Florist or Jobber, and the prices are so close they are seldom equaled and never beaten by anyone selling at a profit.

The Randall Supply business has become the largest in America, but it would be still larger if more buyers came personally to market and saw the opportunities here afforded them. Also, it would be larger NOW if Florists generally appreciated how scarce merchandise is likely to be next winter. PRICES CANNOT FALL.

It is high time orders were being placed for Autumn and Winter. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

ANNOUNCEMENT

WE recently acquired the plant of the Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O. This plant, with our two in Lima, O., and one in Ada, O., all of which are devoted to roses, gives us the distinction of being the largest rose growers in this section of the country. All the popular varieties of roses are grown. We are going in particularly heavy on

Premier and Columbia

We are now in position to take on some few more regular buyers. Shipping facilities from both Dayton and Lima are unexcelled.

Retailers who appreciate quality stock and fair treatment should get in touch with us.

Dreer's Choice Double Herbaceous Peonies

With the present quarantine in force against the importation of nearly all kinds of bulbs, roots and plants, it will only be a short time when there will be a shortage of this class of stock and prices will naturally advance.

We are fortunate in having this season the largest stock of Peonies that we have yet produced, all in the finest commercial varieties, which we offer in strong divisions of three to five eyes each and in stock that is true to name. Ready for delivery after September 25th.

TERMS.

Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business during the Fall rush we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. PROTESTS QUARANTINE 37

At the closing session of the Detroit convention, after spirited discussion following the address of C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, the S. A. F. passed resolutions unanimously protesting against the regulations of Quarantine 37 and the autocratic methods of the board.

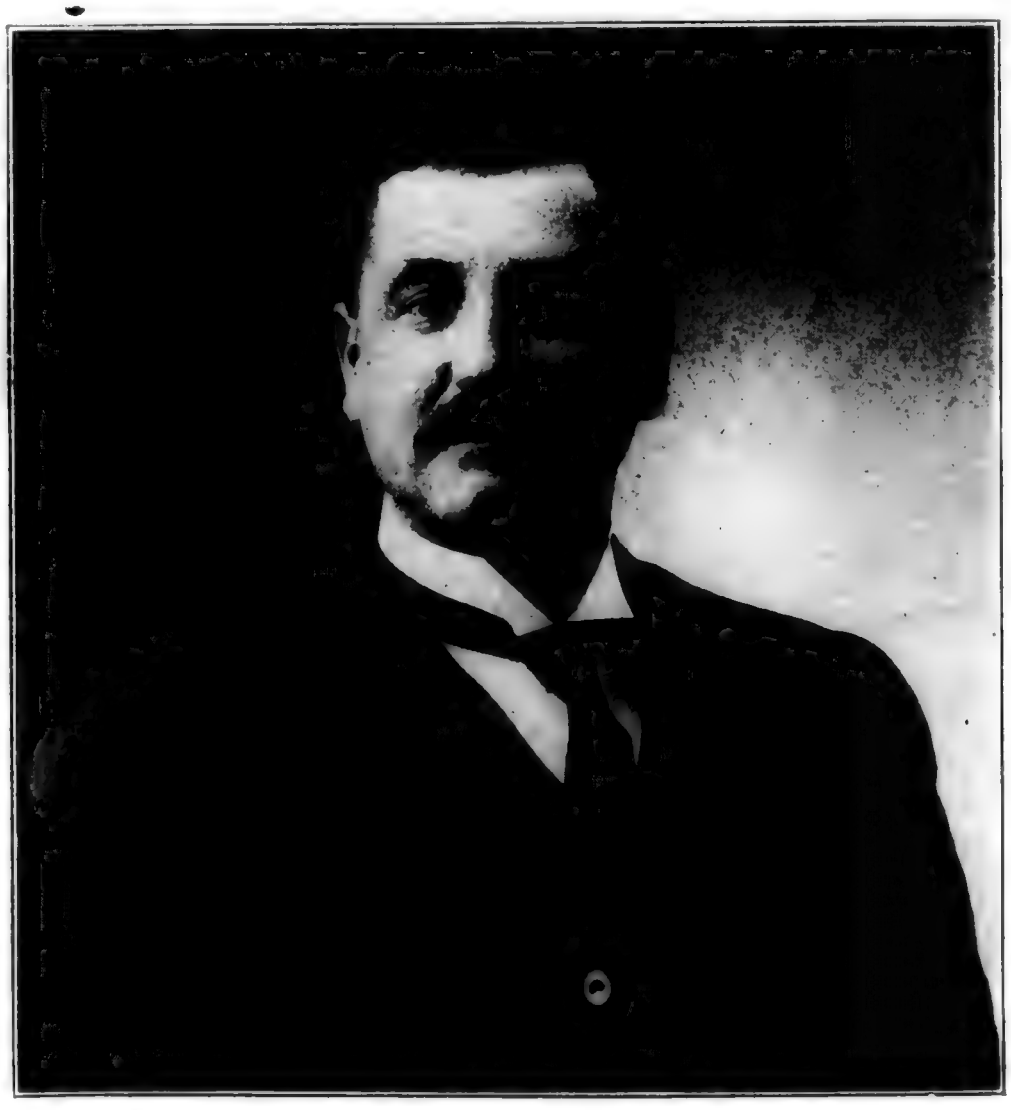
THE appearance of Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, before the convention of the Society of American Florists at its closing session was the occasion for direct fire by members of the society on the board and its handiwork, Quarantine No. 37. The afternoon was easily the livest of the sessions of the convention. The discussion which followed Dr. Marlatt's address was not confined to disapproval of the embargo. It included criticism of the board itself, its composition, its conduct, its judgment and its attitude in regard to the interests affected by its rulings.

Dr. Marlatt undertook to outline the work of the board, to show its importance to the agriculture of the country. In comparison with the agricultural interests involved, the horticultural interests were slight indeed. The board, he said, spends a million dollars annually and directs the spending of another million from other sources. Out of this sum the amount expended on horticulture is only about $50,000. To fight the boll weevil in the cotton fields vast amounts are necessary; to combat citrous fruit pests $300,000 has been spent; the corn borer has drawn $250,000 from the board and Congress may be called upon for $500,000 more.

To Save Agriculture.

In order that the vital necessities, such as corn, wheat, cotton, etc., may not be endangered, the horticultural industries are called upon to make the sacrifice entailed by Quarantine No. 37. When one pest may cause so much havoc as one of these, the only safe course, according to the board, is to bar the way to foreign insects as completely as possible.

That the embargo is not a newly conceived idea, but had been fought for by himself for many years, was declared by Dr. Marlatt. The intention had been to impose restrictions gradually, eventually excluding all importations about 1925. But the success with which the lid was placed on importations during the war led to the belief that the measure could be enforced at once. So the quarantine went into effect as it did.



Dr. Marlatt explained also that the actions of the board were not the result of personal judgments of five men, but were based upon the information supplied the board by state entomologists and inspectors all over the country. He insisted that, however little acquainted these men might be with florists' stock, they were authorities on insect pests and plant diseases. Whatever errors had been made in the quarantine would, he said, have to be remedied by amendments, but he believed the embargo was, in the main, right and would be permanent.

Upon the conclusion of Dr. Marlatt's remarks W. F. Gude presented the report of the committee on tariff and legislation, held over from the previous day. In this report, published in full on another page of this issue, he told of the efforts made against the quarantine's enactment. He concluded with a request for definite instructions from the society in convention, to give the committee greater backing in any further action it might take.

The subject was then declared open for discussion.

H. B. Dorner, stating that he spoke from his personal viewpoint and not as representing the University of Illinois, where he is professor of floriculture, drew much applause when he declared that the trade was not against a quarantine, but that what it wanted was a sane quarantine.

Condemning the conduct of the Federal Horticultural Board in imposing the quarantine as autocratic, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, said, "You have struck the horticulture of this country the hardest blow it has ever received." He pointed out inconsistencies in the rulings of the board, particularly in regard to bulbs, and criticised the board not only in regard to its actions but also in regard to the manner in which it took action.

Abraham Lincoln Miller.
(President-elect Society of American Florists.)

Injustice Charged.

Transmitting the protest of Philadelphia retailers, Charles H. Grakelow asked of Dr. Marlatt, first, how plants flourished so well in foreign countries whence came the pests that proved so damaging here, and, second, why the growers of plants were not represented on the board which made decisions so vital to their interests.

John E. Lager, of Summit, N. J., and Joseph Manda, of West Orange, N. J., dwelt on the injustice done the orchid growers of the country, who, after cheerfully acquiescing in the war embargo, were allowed no opportunity to obtain a stock from abroad before the bars were permanently dropped. Mr. Lager believed distinction should have been made between plants whose importation was essential and those not essential, and made a plea for the trade's representation on the board. Mr. Manda held up the board to ridicule because it refused reëntry into the United States of stock he had shipped to Toronto for the convention there the week previous.

Two in Defense.

C. L. Washburn, of Hinsdale, Ill., told of the palms being grown in California and of other stock previously imported which might be grown in this country, and expressed the belief that the quarantine would not be permanently detrimental to the trade's interests.

Declaring the florists of the middle west were in support of the board's action, E. G. Hill expressed approval of the quarantine because it was a measure which acted to the greatest good of the nation by protecting its agricultural products.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., affirmed his support of the policy of "America first," if it were necessary for the trade to sacrifice to that end, but voiced also as his belief that the trade should not be sacrificed as guilty of bringing in dangerous pests until definitely proved so, the burden of such proof resting on the board.

After Dr. Marlatt had made a brief reply to the criticisms embodied in the speeches of the society's members, reaffirming his belief in the quarantine but admitting that some corrections might be made after hearings had been held, F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., expressed his belief that the quarantine was unconstitutional and amounted to confiscation. Then S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, presented the resolution, which the society straightway adopted, placing it on record in certain and vigorous terms as opposed to the quarantine. The resolution is as follows:

The Resolution.

WHEREAS, on June 1, "Quarantine No. 37 with regulations" became effective, prohibiting further importation of many plants and plant products and raw materials essential to the conduct and expansion of our business, and places burdensome, expensive and unnecessary restrictions on the importation of other important classes of horticultural products, and

WHEREAS, the members of this society require and consider themselves entitled to real constructive regulation and efficient inspection, and are not satisfied with destructive, business-wrecking regulations as a substitute, therefore be it

RESOLVED that the Society of American Florists at its annual meeting held in Detroit, Mich., August 19 to 21, attended by 1,500 delegates, unanimously protests against these drastic regulations, also the autocratic methods used by the Federal Horticultural Board in promulgating them. And be it further

RESOLVED that this convention respectfully offers the following constructive suggestions:

1. That Quarantine No. 37 with regulations be rescinded, and that in its place such regulations be made which by correct methods of inspection will within reason properly safeguard the country against the invasion of foreign pests and diseases, but which will not unnecessarily interfere with the horticultural interests of the country.
2. That at least two members of the present Federal Horticultural Board of five bureau chiefs be replaced by practical horticulturists, who will not be entirely out of touch with the horticultural trade and its requirements.
3. Or that three practical horticulturists be added to the board's present membership of five.
4. That this reorganized board call hearings at a time when those interested can attend, giving separate hearings to each of these important classifications: (1) orchids; (2) bulbs and roots; (3) nursery stock; (4) roses; (5) dracæna canes and other similar raw materials.

And be it further

RESOLVED that the secretary be requested to send a copy of this resolution to the members of the House Committee on Agriculture.

CLOSE OF THE CONVENTION.

Toss Wins Election.

When the polls closed Friday, the returns were: For president, A. L. Miller, 234; J. F. Sullivan, 187; for vice-president, F. C. W. Brown, 369; for secretary, John Young, 386; for treasurer, J. J. Hess, 371; for directors, H. P. Knoble, 273; Paul F. Klingsporn, 256, and Irwin Bertermann, 256.

To avoid the delay of a new election to decide the tie for director, the two contestants, Paul F. Klingsporn and Irwin Bertermann, agreed to a decision by a tossed coin. R. C. Kerr tossed the half-dollar and it came down in Mr. Klingsporn's favor, whereupon he was announced director of the society by President Ammann.

Closing Business.

With the final session Friday afternoon, when Dr. Marlatt was heard, was joined the morning's business session.

Resolutions to remember sick members of the society by telegram were proposed by J. C. Vaughan. It was decided to "Say It with Flowers," also. The absent ones mentioned were J. D. Carmody, Robert Craig, Geo. A. Kuhl, John N. May and P. O'Mara.

Communications were read, one inviting the S. A. F. to represent American horticulture in an allied conference in Paris, one from the Florists' Club of Washington proposing a "Say It with Flowers" week, and one from the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. advocating a flower day.

John Young stated that the exhibits in the trade's display numbered eighty-five and that floor space had been sold to the value of $5,300.

Silver Service for Ammann.

Charles H. Grakelow wound up his forensic flights before the convention with one of particular brilliancy, presenting President Ammann with a silver table service in expression of the society's gratitude for his faithful and valued services during the year of his office.

Prof. F. L. Mulford, who came from Washington to read a paper for Prof. L. C. Corbett, departed unheard, the paper being filed, since the hour was late when the quarantine discussion ended.

Report on Exhibits.

The judges of the trade's exhibits were lavish in praise, particularly of the supply houses' efforts in staging such excellent displays. The judges of the florists' supplies exhibits, R. C. Kerr, F. C. W. Brown and G. E. M. Stumpp, commended the exhibitors for their initiative and effort and for their fine novelties shown. Certificates of merit were awarded the A. L. Randall Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. Honorable mention was given to Wertheimer Bros., New York. The following were highly commended: Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Cohen & Hiller, New York; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh; Geo. B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y.; Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; R. E. Gebhardt Co., Chicago, and C. S. Ford, Philadelphia. Special mention was made of the Bergman-Koropp Co., Chicago.

The judges of the plant section, A. L. Miller, Irwin Bertermann and Chas. H. Grakelow, made the following awards:

C. U. Liggit, of Philadelphia, honorable mention for Nephrolepis Macawii, a sport of Scottii, a fast grower, more compact than, and as good a keeper as Scottii; stock is not being disseminated.

George Wittbold Co., Chicago, for extra well grown cyclamen, a cultural certificate.

C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, for a fine display of aucuba, a cultural certificate.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, highly commended on the collection of fine palms and highly colored crotons.

W. A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., honorable mention on Juniperus Mandaianum, Dracæna Longii and Dahlia Mandaiana.

Jos. Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., highly commended on a remarkably clean collection of palms.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., for foliage plants and evergreens.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y. Special stress is laid on the new fern, Victory, a sport of Teddy, Jr., with a rapid growth and a branching at end of fronds, making it a shapely plant that should be a commercial success, and we recommend it most highly—a bronze medal. Also honorable mention for the display of Tarrytown fern and moss fern.

Arcadia Auditorium, Detroit, on the Afternoon of the Opening Day of the Convention.

Max Schling, of New York, a certificate of merit for three most beautiful, artistic steamer baskets.

Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich., highly commended for display of evergreens.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, honorable mention for a beautiful display of foliage plants.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., honorable mention on lilacs.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., an honorable mention for the new gladiolus, White America.

Additional Exhibits.

In addition to the exhibits described in last week's issue of The Review were the following, staged after the opening day:

Laurel festooning, cut ferns and holly were shown by the Crowl Fern Co., of Millington, Mass., with Manager E. W. Vineca in charge.

J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., had a collection of cyclamens and begonias.

Walter Mott outdistanced the bill of lading on the insecticides from Beacon, N. Y., and so all he had to show were the two famous exposition diplomas of Benjamin Hammond.

W. J. Boas, of Philadelphia, had a representative present, but made no exhibits of boxes.

The Kanawha Mfg. Co., Chicago, did not put up a Bernhard boiler, but had plenty of literature on its table.

Evertite glazing cement and the Oh Boy glazing gun were displayed by the Excello Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O.

On the Stage.

On the stage of the auditorium were the offices of the F. T. D., where M. Bloy presided and proved a most efficient aid to the visitors in general, aside from doing effective campaigning for the organization, and also of the publicity campaign fund, where John H. Pepper took orders for signs, slides and advertising helps, as well as contributions.

LOCAL PREPARATIONS.

The Detroit florists justified their reputation as excellent advertisers in their work in behalf of the convention. The newspapers all had notices of the meeting, some of them quite elaborate. Some of the dailies published editorials welcoming the florists. On the morning of August 18 a page in colors in the Detroit Free Press told about the meeting and exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society and the growth in popularity of the flower. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, was author of the article. Banners bearing announcements of the convention hung at the entrance of the Hotel Statler and of the Arcadia auditorium and across the street where the street cars stopped for the latter place. The souvenir album was an elaborate piece of work, not so large as that at the Chicago convention, but still a mark of Detroit enterprise.

The local florists had coined a slogan in their publicity concerning the convention, "By their flowers ye shall know them; Say It with Flowers," and to that end distributed gladiolus sprays and asters, for the ladies to carry and the men to put in their buttonholes, respectively.

In entertainment the hospitality of Detroit was bounded only by the time limit. Wednesday afternoon was a theater party for the ladies at the Temple theater, and Thursday afternoon an automobile ride was arranged for them. For Wednesday night a moonlight excursion on the steamer Britannia was provided, with music, dancing and buffet supper aboard. The bowling contest was rolled Thursday evening. These definitely programmed events were not enough for Detroit. Invitations for anywhere one wanted to go on Friday were offered, to the Ford plant, to the Hudson plant, or anywhere else.

To the energetic president of the Detroit Florists' Club, J. F. Sullivan, much credit is due for thorough arrangements. The vigilant care of the ex-mayor, Philip Breitmeyer, should also receive its due. The chairmen of the committees were as follows:

Finance—E. A. Fetters.
Subscriptions—C. H. Plumb.
Hotels and Reception—E. A. Fetters.
Decoration—Henry Forster.
Badges and Publicity—Wayne McLaughlin.
Press—M. Bloy.
Automobiles—A. Pochelon.
Refreshments—Philip Breitmeyer.
Bowling—Joseph Streit.
Music and Entertainments—Walter Taepke.
